EASTERN ROADS AGREE ON PLAN TO MERGE LINES

Draft Program for Four Systems.

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The heads of the four great eastern railroads ended ten days of conference today by agreeing on a plan of consolidation for their territory. The agreement was a decisively effective demonstration of railroading ambition brought to a common focus by legislation and economic forces. Chief among the latter. The executives were assembling for their final conference at 11 o'clock in the offices of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad. An hour or two later a petition embodying their conclusions was on its way to the interstate commerce commission.

JOHN J. BERNET. [Blank Stello Photo.]

Having provided for the realignment of 50,000 miles of railroad valued at nearly 10 billion dollars, the executives sauntered or hurried from the conference to their respective offices. They showed no noticeable signs of elation. Although each of them had in the past authorized the expenditure of millions of dollars on consolidation projects which in some cases were irreconcilable with one another, they had at the last made peace on terms which represented a triumph for none, but, it was hoped, opportunities for profit to all.

Executives in Attendance.

The officials who participated in the conferences included Patrick E. Crowley, president; A. H. Harris, chairman of the finance committee, and Orie Brown, counsel of the New York Central railroad. The Baltimore and Ohio was represented by its president, Daniel Willard, and its senior vice president, George Shriver. John J. Bernet was the sole ranking executive of the Chesapeake and Ohio, although it had been expected that O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, organizers of the C. & O. Nickel Plate system, would be present. Gen. Atterbury represented the Pennsylvania. Elisha Lee, vice president of the Pennsylvania, who has attended most consolidation conferences, was absent.

Since the agreement reached by the executives takes the form of a proposed amendment to the interstate commerce commission's final consolidation plan, none of its details were made public. However, the executives issued a statement which announced that an agreement had been reached.

Agreement Is Announced.

This announcement follows:

"The presidents of the Pennsylvania railroad, New York Central lines, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate system authorized the following statement:

"After many conferences the four systems have reached an agreement which will be embodied in an application to be signed and forwarded to the interstate commerce commission, recommending a modification of the commission's plan for grouping the railroads in the eastern district into four systems.

"The four systems will be based on the four trunk lines represented. Although the commission's plan called for the assembly of five systems, the executives believe that their plan in large part coincides with that of the commission."

Nickel Plate Rights Settled.

It was believed the last major problem to be solved was adjudication of rival views held by the Pennsylvania and the New York Central over the proposed allocation of trackage rights on the third railroad—the Nickel Plate. The Pennsylvania desired trackage rights on this road south of Lake Erie between Ashtabula and Brocton, but to this suggestion the New York Central was opposed. The C. & O.-Nickel Plate system was willing to grant these rights to the Pennsylvania in return for possession of the Lehigh Valley.

Railroad officials kept silent on what solution had been reached to this problem, but their attitude made it clear that it represented a compromise. One suggestion was that the Pennsylvania had modified its attitude on the Nickel Plate in return for the abandonment of claims to certain trackage rights on the Lehigh Valley.

FIND 68 PCT. OF COUNTY'S 1929 TAX BILL IS PAID

Praise Given Those Who Have Settled.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Owners of 702,913 parcels of real estate in Cook county have paid their 1929 taxes—a total of $136,824,057.

Another 53,157 persons and corporations, assessed for personal property have turned in $29,313,918 in taxes; and the railroads have paid $12,282,122 out of their total assessment of $12,621,924.

This summary of the record on the 1929 taxes, as of Sept. 30, shows that $178,420,097, or approximately 68⅓ per cent, of the taxes have been paid.

Commends Those Who Pay.

"I believe those taxpayers should be commended," commented County Treasurer McDonough yesterday as he glanced over tables of figures showing the tax collections. "The present conditions are harshly severe for many people, and especially the small property owners. Many of these have been out of work for months, or have been working only part time, and they have used up their savings. I know of scores of cases where the owner has borrowed on his life insurance in order to pay his taxes.

"These people have paid until it hurts much more than it did to buy Liberty bonds during the war. They have done their duty as citizens of Cook county. They have sacrificed themselves to pay, thereby keeping up the morale of public employes and preventing them from getting into financial difficulties.

"That same credit," went on Mr. McDonough, "is due the large property owners who have paid their taxes. They might have gone to court, delayed payments and fought their taxes, and placed the local governments in worse shape than they are in now.

396,724 Owners Haven't Paid.

"There are 396,724 owners of real estate who have not paid their taxes. I have the greatest sympathy for 264,616 of them, who owe $15,170,082 in taxes. They apparently haven't the money with which to pay, but they are not using obstructive tactics.

"The other 132,108 real estate owners, who owe $54,059,860 in taxes, have objected to their taxes and have obtained injunctions preventing collections or sale of their property for taxes."

The taxpayers' association has been urging property owners to join them in resisting tax payments but those who have paid their taxes are considered to be deserving of a bit of credit.

"I firmly believe," Mr. McDonough continued, "that the taxes on the small homes should be reduced. Taxes are so high that they discourage ownership of homes, which is detrimental to civic development. As a little aid to taxpayers, I think that the collection date of Jan. 1 on 1930 taxes should be delayed two months."

Figures Show Situation.

Treasurer McDonough had his assistants compile some brief tables indicating how many owners of real estate have paid their 1929 taxes in comparison with the total number assessed.

The first of the following two tables shows the number of parcels of Cook county property assessed inside and outside the city, and the amount of taxes levied against each area. The second table shows the number of parcels on which taxes have been paid, and the amount, for both the city and country towns. These two summaries follow:

Area—	Parcels.	Taxes extended.
Towns	367,385	$ 35,290,886
Chicago	332,252	167,130,641
Totals	1,099,637	$202,421,527

Area—	Parcels paid.	Taxes paid.
Towns	358,867	$ 26,585,090
Chicago	344,051	110,318,967
Totals	702,913	$136,824,057

These tables show that 63.25 per cent of the real estate owners of the country towns, as measured by the number of parcels, have paid their taxes, and that within the city 64.6 per cent of the real estate owners have paid.

The owners in the country towns have paid 75 per cent of the real estate taxes assessed against them and the owners in the city have paid 66 per cent. For the county as a whole 67.6 per cent of the real estate taxes have been paid. The average real estate tax bill paid in the country towns is $73.85, while in Chicago it is $320.64—more than four times as much.

THOMAS J. LIPTON, FAMOUS FOR TEA AND YACHTS, ILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Sir Thomas J. Lipton is seriously ill at his London home and is under the constant attention of four doctors. The famous challenger of American yachtsmen is suffering from severe chills and his condition is causing his physicians some alarm.

Sir Thomas intended to sail for the United States a few days ago to again challenge America for the cup he has tried so often to win without success. He had announced that he would build a new Shamrock for the race, if his challenge was accepted. Instead a chill, believed to have been contracted while motoring, forced him to bed.

Sir Thomas is 81 years of age. According to his physicians, their patient was conscious all afternoon, but fell into a semi-comatose condition this evening. He retired as chairman of the board of Thomas J. Lipton, Ltd. in 1927.

Chemists Win Hoover's O. K. on 6-Hour Day

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—President Hoover was reported today to have given his general approval of a plan for a six hour working day which is being put in effect among chemical plants allied through the Manufacturing Chemists' association.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

W. D. Huntington of Baltimore, chairman of the executive committee of the organization, said after a conference with Mr. Hoover that the President had "heartily approved" the plan as explained to him. Mr. Huntington said that the program would increase the number of workers employed in the chemical industry by about one-third.

The plan was adopted by the board of directors of the Manufacturing Chemists' association and was recommended to all the members' companies, according to Mr. Huntington. He said that there would be no reduction in hourly rates of wage.

Add Men to Payroll.

Mr. Huntington told the President that at one plant which has adopted the plan 135 men have been added to a payroll of 600.

How far the Hoover administration is prepared to go in recommending shorter working days and shorter working weeks has not yet been determined. It is known that the President and his advisers have been giving thought to the subject, and Secretary Doak had already announced for a six hour day and a five day week.

Mr. Huntington's announcement of the President's endorsement of the chemists' program was taken as an indication that the chief executive approved generally of shorter working hours, both as an aid in solving the unemployment problem and as settling some of the difficulties of laborers already employed.

Holds Conferences.

The President spent much of his time today considering problems of unemployment and government finance. He conferred during the afternoon with Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, and Col. J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget, concerning finance and economies. Others called into conferences during the day were Gov. Meyer of the federal reserve board, and Secretaries Lamont and Stimson. It was stated later that the President was considering a definite plan to assist the business session, but no hint as to what he intended was allowed to come out.

One of the most heartening things which the President has heard for some time came to his ears this morning when a group of dairy, poultry, and produce farmers of the west called to express gratification over his farm relief policies.

The visitors were presented by William F. Schilling, dairy member of the farm board. The President expressed surprise that the delegation did not ask for something.

President Hoover was hurrying today to clear away all pressing matters in preparation for another week-end at his Rapidan camp. He will return to Washington Monday morning.

QUAKE, RAIN, HAIL, AND HEAT WAVE ALL VISIT CALIFORNIA IN ONE DAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A slight earthquake occurred at San Diego today, a dust storm slowed down ships six miles at sea and hail, lightning and high temperatures were experienced in other parts of southern California.

About Los Angeles there was rain, lightning and a southeast gale that stirred up a turbulent sea.

Still farther north, Santa Barbara broiled in a 98 degree temperature, while 20 miles away, in the Buckhorn district of the Santa Barbara forest, ice formed and heavy frost covered the hills.

San Diego's earthquake lasted only 25 seconds, beginning at 3:45:40 a. m., and did no damage. It was the second slight quake in two days.

Find Capone Now Providing Even Pretzels

Two men of sinister appearance entered a Chicago saloon. The bartender paled and whispered to a customer: "Syndicate men—you know, Capone."

"We're using your beer," the bartender stammered hurriedly to the two men.

"We know that," growled the taller of the two men. "But whose ginger-ale you got?"

"Why—the standard kind," said the bartender in surprise, pointing to a case back of the bar.

Must Buy Right Gingerale.

The shorter of the two men strode to the case. Drawing a hefty piece of pipe from a hip pocket, he smashed the bottles of gingerale.

"We're moving in six cases of our gingerale," the two men notified the bartender. "And you'll buy our gingerale from now on."

One of the men dumped a bowl of pretzels on the floor.

"And you'll buy our pretzels after this," he announced. "We'll send you a dozen boxes."

The foregoing is not a burlesque scene from a current revue. It is an incident which has been repeated recently in most of the thousands of saloons and roadhouses in Cook county, it was revealed yesterday. Inquiry revealed that the Capone syndicate, which admittedly controls the sale of beer, alcohol, and whisky in this district, now insists upon selling every commodity which is used in the operation of a saloon or roadhouse.

Must Buy Through Syndicate.

Towels and table linen must be purchased from a Capone company and laundered by a Capone laundry, according to these revelations. Gingerale, soda pop, and carbonated water must be bought through the Capone syndicate. Capone collects a profit from the pretzels which the customer munches, as well as from the beer which he gulps. He exacts a percentage from the ginger ale chaser as well.

This monopoly by the Capone syndicate, which has virtually made a vast chain store system out of the saloons and roadhouses of the county, has resulted in a vastly inferior grade of liquid provender being furnished to the customer, an independent bootlegger who is retiring from business declared yesterday.

Recalls Good Old Days.

"In the good old days when there were at least two mobs fighting for control of the beer and alky business, the customer got a pretty fair break in the matter of drinkables," asserted this man.

"Now, that's all over. There is no more competition. I'm getting out of the business because I'm not allowed to buy good stuff. I was told by a syndicate leader that I would have to sell cheap, cut whisky at syndicate prices or take the usual penalty. My customers want good liquor, but I don't dare get it for them."

The depression has meant nothing to the Capone syndicate, this informant revealed. The retailers, otherwise the saloonkeepers, are forced to purchase as much beer and liquor as in the prosperous days when the public had much money to spend and spent much of it over the bar. As a result, the saloon owners are broke.

Syndicate Pays for Protection.

The monopoly has had a further development, it was learned. Formerly, every saloonkeeper handled the payments for protection of his place. He himself doled out the money to those who allowed him to run. The syndicate during the last few months has relieved the saloonkeeper of this tiresome necessity, it was revealed.

"Our price of $55 a barrel now includes your protection," the saloonkeepers and roadhouse proprietors were told a few months ago. "Pay no attention to the policemen."

The saloonkeepers followed these orders, somewhat timorously at first. They discovered that the Capone syndicate's influence was what it was claimed to be.

"HARD BOILED" CHIEF IS KNOWN ALL OVER CITY

James P. Allman, for thirty-one years a member of the Chicago police force, yesterday took over the task of being its commander in a calm, undemonstrative way.

He was unique. He made no boasts, no promises as to shakeups, no forecasts of the stamping out of crime. He did say, "All violators of the law will be run out—to the best of our ability."

But associates who have known him for the sixteen years Commissioner Allman was a captain recalled his method as a district commander and suggested that his way had always been to talk little and act much. They recalled that one of his favorite methods of reducing crime was to lock up every loiterer found on the streets of his district; that he had said, "If you don't keep the streets clear of gunmen there's no telling how many robberies and burglaries you'll have."

Work a Hobby with Him.

Others remembered that police work was a hobby with him as well as a means of livelihood; that for years he had never taken any time off his official duties except for exercise and pistol practice, and that he is one of the best shots in the department.

Mayor Cermak submitted Capt. Allman's appointment to the council at the morning meeting. It was approved unanimously and with applause. His bond was approved and he was sworn in with a minimum of ceremony. Then Commissioner Allman moved to the commissioner's office on the fifth floor of the city hall and started to work.

His first order announced that he had taken command. His second appointed Capt. William Schoemaker to succeed John Norton as chief of detectives. The third sent Norton back to his civil service rank as lieutenant.

Calm About His Policies.

In his first interview as commissioner the police veteran had nothing to say in large generalities about driving crooks out of Chicago or cleaning up the town. He was asked to announce his policies and announced none except to run out crooks to the best of his ability.

The policy of the administration, he added seriously, was to suppress vice and gambling. This will be followed faithfully by him, he added. He was asked about Alphonse Capone and plans to get rid of him, but his only reply lumped Capone with all other lawbreakers.

Next, the commissioner briefly told about plans for the detective bureau. He and his new detective chief would make changes there, he said, and Capt. Schoemaker would be given the men he needs. He had not definitely decided yet on the future of "Scotland Yard." He was sure the department would be, a little later, reorganized. And he suggested that he probably would move his headquarters in the police building at 11th and State streets.

At the council meeting, when the appointment was announced, Ald. William Rowan praised his selection, declaring that the new commissioner "is not a reformer but believes in the enforcement of law."

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, called the new appointment "good news for the citizens of Chicago."

Never an Adverse Word.

"During the twelve years that the crime commission has been observing the police department," he said, "there has not come to its notice a single adverse word as to Capt. Allman's integrity, ability, efficiency, or independence.

"During that period his superior officers and his subordinates have always spoken of him in terms of commendation. He takes command of the department at a time when courage and character are needed to restore the confidence of the public in the department. To this task Capt. Allman brings both.

"If his past record is evidence of what his future action will be, honest citizens and honest policemen have reason to congratulate themselves upon his selection."

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Mayor Cermak's advisory committee, which did the actual picking of Commissioner Allman after a long survey of all possible candidates, was warm in his praise of Allman and also of the mayor for the manner in which the appointment was handled.

"Allman is as clean as a whistle," said Chairman Avery, "as strong a man as can be found, with an intelligence far beyond what one would suspect from his rugged, soldierly exterior. His integrity is rockbound. I don't know when I have met a man of such simplicity, directness, and courage. And he's a student as well.

"Further, he is entirely free from that ego element with which most men are cursed. He moves automatically on principle. I think he has a clear understanding of the obligations of the position.

No Political Consideration.

"The selection of Capt. Allman was made with the most peculiar absence of political consideration ever seen. The selection was entirely impersonal.

"It was an almost chemical analysis of every person available. No one submitted a name based on political expediency or influence. I think the public annals will not show a more abstract and fair minded approach in the filling of a public office. Allman was the best man that could be found.

"The mayor's attitude was ideal. He indicated in every way a stern and serious determination to meet the great problem of his administration on the soundest principles. The appointment gives the greatest promise of overcoming conditions in Chicago so injurious to its reputation throughout the world."

Wants Smith as Adviser.

Chairman Avery spoke of the desirability of having Bruce Smith of the National Institute of Public Administration come to Chicago as a police adviser for the administration. Smith made the survey and drafted the report of the citizens' police committee upon which Mr. Avery and his associates as well as Mayor Cermak have had their eyes in considering the selection of the new commissioner and the "engineering reconstruction" of the department which may follow.

State's Attorney Swanson was one of those who indorsed the selection of Commissioner Allman.

"I believe he will make a good commissioner," Mr. Swanson said. "I intend to see him and tell him that he will have my full cooperation. I want to go into detail with him in devising plans to suppress bombing and other crimes."

Mayor Cermak's comment on his new cabinet member was brief.

"I picked the best man I could find," he said. "He is a man in whom the public will have confidence. The men in his department will respect him."

Schoemaker on Job.

First Deputy Alcock congratulated the new commissioner during the process of installation and then moved to his regular office at State and 11th streets.

There also late in the afternoon appeared Capt. Schoemaker, "the only man ever reappointed chief of detectives." The new head of the bureau said that his plans would be worked out with Commissioner Allman, but that in the meantime he would see to it that every man at the bureau does his full duty.

Chief Schoemaker said that so far as he was informed he would retain command of the "Scotland Yard" work at the Canalport station, where he has been stationed. He said he thought the continued operation of this secret service branch would be extremely valuable to the work of the bureau.

The city council yesterday ordered Corporation Counsel Sexton to oppose the petition of the Chicago Surface Lines to install one-man street cars on some of their lines in the proceedings now pending before the Illinois commerce commission.

ALD. J. R. QUINN.

The corporation counsel, who has already entered an appearance before the commission on behalf of the city, sent a communication to the council pointing out that, in addition to asking immediate authority to put one-man cars in use on 15 specified lines during the day and on 13 more lines at night or on Sundays, the company likewise seeks blanket authority to put the cars on other lines wherever it sees fit in the interest of economy.

In view of the authority asked by the company, he sought an expression of opinion from the council. The commerce commission has already refused the company a temporary permit to operate the cars pending a full hearing of the case. Fifty one-man cars are now in use in outlying parts of the city. The commission yesterday continued a hearing on the case until Oct. 15.

The council received a communication from Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, voicing the opposition of organized labor to the employment of the smaller cars, which, the federation says, will mean a reduction in the man power employed by the company. He charged that the cars were unsafe. Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] made the same charge.

"I boarded one of those cars in my ward this morning to see how they are operated," Ald. Quinn said. "A number of other people got on when I did. The motorman was busy collecting fares and ran the car a block before he looked to see if anything was in his path."

Asks Curb on Short Selling.

The council adopted a resolution offered by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] asking that the stock exchanges of the country take measures to curb short selling. The resolution requested the governor's revenue commission to examine the matter and report to Gov. Emmerson.

Ald. James C. Moreland [41st] offered a resolution asking President Hoover to call a special session of congress to legalize beer and light wines. The resolution asserted that such action would provide work for 1,500,000 persons.

Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th] and Sheldon W. Govier [9th] cast the only dissenting votes.

"I'm in favor of modification of the Volstead act, but its just bunk for the city council to pass resolutions on the subject," Ald. Govier said.

On the recommendation of Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, the council instructed Corporation Counsel Sexton to dismiss proceedings to condemn an abandoned quarry at 19th and Lincoln streets for use as a city dump.

The city now pays a contractor who has leased the quarry 42 cents a cubic yard for the privilege of dumping rubbish there, and could dump for 15 cents a yard if it condemned the property, the records show.

REPORT HOOVER MEN FAVOR MOVEMENT TO CURB SHORT SELLING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The belief that congressional action will have to be taken to curb the activities of shorts on the New York stock exchange is widely held by administration officials, it became known today. President Hoover has been closely scrutinizing Wall street activities for several days and is represented as agreeing with Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], that investigation of short selling during the recent drop in securities prices is certain to come.

According to authoritative information disclosed today, President Hoover in recent weeks has talked the stock exchange situation over on various occasions with exchange officials. He was represented today as having advised them that unless they acted voluntarily to remedy a situation which permitted "bear raids" of the type which have characterized market operations recently, legislative means to curb this practice would be worked out by congress.

PEACE PARLEYS BROKEN OFF IN MOVIE STRIFE

Both Sides Firm; Little Hope for Accord.

All negotiations toward peace between the motion picture operators and the independent theater owners now employing nonunion operators were dropped last night after a series of conferences lasting throughout the day. The latest efforts at arbitration and conciliation were started by Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson. Nine theaters have been bombed since the trouble began.

THOMAS D. NASH. [Walinger Photo.]

The mayor will receive three letters explaining the situation this morning. One from the operators' union, signed by its attorney, Thomas D. Nash, charges the theater owners with breaking a wage contract with the operators. The owners' letter states that the operators are making no attempt to effect an unselfish settlement of the lockout. Assistant State's Attorney C. E. Lounsbury, who presided at yesterday's meeting, also wrote to the mayor, inclosing the other communications and criticising the operators' stand.

Urges Arbitration Meeting.

Mr. Lounsbury's letter suggested that the mayor call the contesting parties into conference in his office "with the demand that the public interests and the reputation of Chicago be considered of paramount importance to both of these warring factions and that they submit their controversy to a board of arbitration.

"The representatives of the union," Lounsbury wrote, "refused to arbitrate any of the matters in dispute between the theater owners' association and the union, with one exception, and in that case surrounded the arbitration with such restriction as would make arbitration folly in the judgment of said association."

Negotiations Broken Off.

After what had seemed to be an amicable morning meeting which brought signs of an agreement whereby the union men would reenter about 90 houses now using imported operators, the negotiations terminated late in the afternoon, each side blaming the other and predicting no chance of an agreement.

At one time during the afternoon, according to Mr. Lounsbury, the discussion went back to an original suggestion that the principal questions in the dispute—whether the theaters can afford to hire two operators on each shift and if they are on record in a contract to hire two—be referred to a committee of five arbiters. The operators would select two, the owners two, and the four so selected would choose the fifth.

The union balked at this, its representatives, Thomas E. Maloy, business agent, and Thomas J. Reynolds, president, declaring that the four arbiters could never get together on a fifth man satisfactory to both sides. They further asserted that the trade they represent is a specialized one and that a person not familiar with it would not be competent to decide questions pertaining to it.

Reject Owners' Proposals.

Earlier suggestions by the owners' representatives — Aaron Saperstein, president of the Allied Theater Owners of Illinois, and Attorneys Theodore Levin and Howard Ellis—were that a board of three judges of the Circuit or Superior Court be named to arbitrate the matter or, if preferred, three lawyers named by the president of the Chicago Bar association. The union would accept neither proposal.

Much bickering was reported on the interpretation of the agreement and the clause pertaining to the hiring of two operators. Mr. Lounsbury said that when the agreement was signed in 1930, two operators were working in each booth and that the union contends that because a clause in the agreement states that "all other working conditions are to remain the same," two men must be kept.

The owners' attorneys replied that an agreement is only decided by contract and that nothing in any contract between the union and the owners compels hiring of two operators.

Prosecutors Lounsbury and Charles Bellows during the day investigated the bombing of the Canada Dry Ginger Ale company plant, 18th avenue and South Maywood drive, Maywood, early yesterday and the attacks on three nonunion barber shops in Chicago. The bomb caused damage estimated at $2,000. Lieut. John E. Peterson of Maywood said he believed it had been thrown by a disgruntled former employé.

The barber shops, all employing nonunion labor, are at 330 North Clarke street, 732 North Clark street and 700 North Clark street. The furniture in the first two was wrecked and Charles Hernon, cashier at 330 North Clark street, was beaten by two invaders. Michael Le Verso, owner of the shop at 732 North Clark street, said he had asked for police protection three days ago after he had been visited by two men. They warned him against cutting prices, he said.

BANDITS ROB HEALTH RESORT IN WINNETKA

Four armed men entered the North Shore Health resort on Sheridan road in Winnetka yesterday afternoon, terrified the manager, William Whitaker, five women employés, and a clerk, and after looting the safe escaped with $3,000 and checks for $750.

One of the robbers had pretended to be suffering from an injured foot and was supported by his companions when he went into Whitaker's office. Then the four men drew pistols. Two of them guarded Miss Genevieve Olson, the office manager, four nurses and a clerk, James Johnson, while the others compelled Whitaker to open the safe.

Before leaving the bandits cut all the telephone wires into the health resort. A taxicab driver who arrived as they were going out, was forced to give up his ignition keys.

Rob Fifteen in Restaurant.

About $500 and a diamond ring valued at $1,200 were obtained by two robbers who held up Louis Maginson, owner of a restaurant at 510 West Jackson boulevard, and fourteen patrons in the early evening.

Maginson surrendered $280. Harry Ehlers, 5529 Hyde Park boulevard, who was standing at the cigar counter when the men entered, had to give up $30 and the diamond ring. The remaining patrons were forced to hand over small amounts they had in their pockets.

The robbers escaped in an automobile in which a woman sat.

Burglars entered the apartment of Mrs. Frank Applegren, 7649 Eastlake terrace, during the afternoon, and escaped with a chest of silver. Mrs. Applegren, a school teacher, had left $35 of board of education scrip on top of the chest, but the burglars passed this.

Robbed of Dental Gold.

Miss Edna Wolf, 2970 Sheridan road, saleswoman for J. N. Ney & Co., and Thomas J. Dee & Co., both of 55 East Washington, was robbed of dental gold valued at $1,000 by a lone robber who forced her into a doorway at 6031 Broadway. She was delivering the metal to a dentist.

A total of thirty-three holdups were reported at Chicago police headquarters between 8 a. m. and 11 p. m.

Among those robbed, and their losses, were: Morton pharmacy, 100 North Wells street, $79; Isadore Korosty, grocer at 5921 Prairie avenue, $45; O'Brien meat market, $21 East 69th street, $250; Harry Goldman, clothing store at 8 North Crawford avenue, $45, and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at 869 West Van Buren street, $25.

Burglars entered the home of J. G. Huber, 5861 Everett avenue, late last night and took clothing, silver and jewelry valued at $5,000. Members of the family were absent at the time.

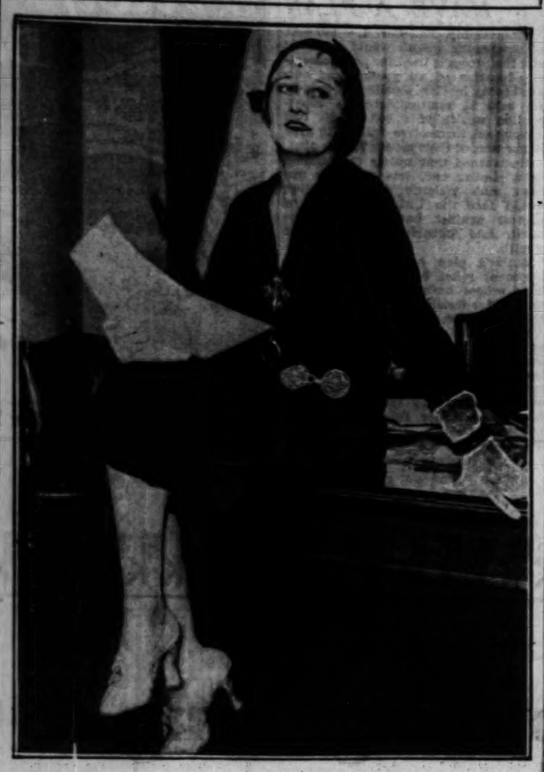
The raid resulted in lodging of wholesale gambling and liquor charges. Twenty cases of gin and 100 bottles of other liquors were confiscated, together with roulette, faro, craps, poker and other gambling paraphernalia. Two thousand dollars cash also was taken.

Among well known men jailed were Harry Carey, actor; Wallace Fox, director; Marvin Park, theater manager; Joseph De La Motte, actor, and Gene Morgan, orchestra leader. They were released later on $50 bond apiece.

AIRPLANE LEADS TO DIVORCE



MRS. EDNA G. STRONG.

Waives Alimony

The measures which Charles E. Strong, owner of the Harlem airport at 87th street and Harlem avenue, is alleged to have taken to quell the back seat driving of his wife whenever they went for a plane ride won Mrs. Edna G. Strong, 1114 East Marquette road, a divorce yesterday. She is a toe dancer, using the stage name of Teddy Martain, and is under contract to appear in the Ziegfeld Follies, she told Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude.

Mrs. Strong testified that she is a pilot herself, and had flown airplanes in the southwest. On frequent occasions while flying with her husband, she said, she urged him to let her take the controls. His conduct on those occasions, she charged, was to maintain silence while they were in the air, and, after he had landed the plane, to slap her soundly.

After Judge Trude had granted a decree, Attorney Harry X. Cole informed the court that Mrs. Strong has always supported herself by her dancing, and would waive alimony.

Moscow Relents; May Heat Residences Twice a Week

MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Owing to unseasonably cold weather in Moscow, soviet authorities have modified a recent decree by ruling that homes may be heated once every three days until the regular heating season begins Oct. 15. The temperature today was in the upper thirties. Citizens previously had been forbidden, as a fuel economy measure, to heat their homes without special authorization.

Woman, 72, Asks Divorce, Naming Aimee's Church

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Thomas F. Stansberry, 91 year old civil war veteran, was sued for divorce, and Angelus Temple named, in an action filed today by 72 year old Mrs. Hattie Stansberry. She charges that the church of the Rev. Aimee McPherson has been recipient of the major part of her husband's $100, monthly pension, as a result of which she lacks for necessities.

A COOLIDGE IS SLUGGED; IT'S FOR KEEPING SILENT

In good old cowboy fashion Motorcycle Policeman Charles Marine, 30 years old, 2454 North La Claire avenue, assigned to the Cragin district, celebrated the change in police commissioners.

Early last evening he walked in Fullerton avenue shouting, "Alcock's out and Allman's in. Whoopee! I'm a wild wolf and this is my night to howl." And occasionally, just to add emphasis, he fired his service pistol.

Pedestrians gave Marine a wide path. But when he came to 5049 Fullerton avenue he turned into the real estate office of Benjamin L. Coolidge, where he demanded that Mr. Coolidge also cheer for Allman. Mr. Coolidge said that he was satisfied with the new commissioner but that he didn't choose to cheer.

So Marine fired the last bullet from his pistol into the ceiling and struck the real estate agent on the chin with his fist. Meanwhile a squad from the Cragin station, led by Lieut. Thomas O'Hare, had been summoned by residents of the neighborhood. They took Marine to the station. There he went to sleep after Mr. Coolidge had signed a complaint charging assault.

ORDER 6 PER CENT CUT IN DOMESTIC GAS RATES HERE

Commission Ruling Also Affects Suburbs.

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday ordered the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company to reduce its rate to domestic users of gas by approximately 6½ per cent and to reduce its rate for house heating by approximately 31 per cent as a condition to the issuance of authority to mix natural gas piped from Texas with the product manufactured here. A statement was issued later by the gas company, but it did not say definitely that the company would accept and comply with the order.

C. W. HADLEY. [Wallinger Photo.]

The commerce commission also ordered the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, which serves the suburbs of Chicago, to reduce its domestic rate by aproximately 5 per cent and its rate for house heating by approximately 30 per cent.

Offered 3½ Per Cent Cut.

Previously, when asking permission to supply a mixture of natural and manufactured gas the Peoples company had voluntarily offered to reduce its rate by 3½ per cent for domestic use and 22 per cent for heating. The suburban company had offered to make reductions of 2 per cent and 20 per cent.

Chairman Charles W. Hadley of the commerce commission said the reductions ordered were the result of investigations carried on independently by commission engineers and also were based on testimony submitted during hearings on the petitions of the two companies. The hearings have been continued to Oct. 27.

Based on the present volume of business, the commerce commission's order would mean a reduction of $2,275,000 in the annual net revenue of the People's Gas company, and a reduction of $542,000 for the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, according to Commissioner J. Paul Kuhn.

The two companies are ordered to file new schedules of "temporary experimental rates" making the approximate reductions specified by the state body. The rates, if accepted, are to apply on all bills subsequent to meter readings of Oct. 15. Not until the new rates are in effect will the companies be permitted to mix the gases, it was explained.

Statement by Company.

"On its face at first glance, the proposals in the order seem serious, but are not necessarily disquieting," said the statement issued by George F. Mitchell, president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. "Recognition by the commission of the necessity of a load building rate for house heating is very reassuring and goes far to offset the proposed cut in revenue from other domestic business.

"But we cannot undertake to be specific about the effects until we apply the proposed reduction percentages to all classes of our business, both present and prospective, that would be affected by them.

"Meanwhile our attitude toward the commission's order is the same as it has been from the beginning toward this whole matter of utilizing natural gas. As the commission's order says, there is a large experimental element in the situation.

A Complex Problem.

"From the first we have approached it as a problem of many complexities, a problem involving factors that have to be estimated or otherwise assumed because there is no tangible experience on them.

"Our studies on the probable effects of the commission's order will be continued in the same spirit and a conclusion reached, I believe, in two or three days."

In issuing the order Chairman Hadley said: "Pending the final disposition of the issues involved in these cases, the commission believes that the public should immediately benefit from any rate reductions which may now be reasonably possible."

NURSE WILL MARRY LEGLESS SAILOR SHE HAD FOR A PATIENT

Shrewsbury, Mass., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The marriage next Monday of Mrs. Hattie Johnson, a nurse, and John Lonroth, a legless sailor, will culminate a romance which started in Worcester hospital after the war. The couple met when Lonroth entered the hospital for an operation upon his legs, paralyzed through a spinal injury incurred when he was blown from his hammock during a tropic hurricane while serving in the navy.

Lonroth's leg nerves were injured and the operations failed to restore them. In all, Lonroth underwent ninety-three operations and eventually his legs were amputated.

The nurse became interested in her patient and the interest developed into love as she observed his courage and suffering. Today the couple filed marriage intentions here.

ETHELIND TERRY TO ASK DIVORCE FROM BOGEAUS

Benjamin E. Bogeaus of Chicago, not long ago classed as a wealthy apartment owner, with a twelve story structure at 444 St. James place, was mentioned in a dispatch from Philadelphia yesterday to the effect that Bogeaus' wife, Ethelind Terry, musical comedy star, was planning to sue for divorce.

A week ago Bogeaus' brother, who goes by the name of Morris Bogoslowski was arrested with two other men and accused of extorting thousands of dollars out of Chicago physicians and with bombing several homes of those who refused to pay blackmail.

Get London Inquiry.

William Schoemaker, new chief of detectives, yesterday received a query from London police headquarters asking information about Bogeaus. According to the London police Bogeaus is sojourning at the Park Lane hotel in the British metropolis.

The actress wife of Bogeaus, who now is in Philadelphia, is anxious to end the romance which began when she said "none but millionaires will be considered matrimonially." The dispatch from the east quoted Miss Terry as saying that her marriage to Bogeaus had been a mistake. She said she didn't know where he was and didn't care and that she was ready to ask a divorce.

Head of Hotel Company.

Bogeaus is said to have qualified for the hand of Miss Terry as an apartment house owner of Chicago and Atlantic City and as a head of a $5,000,000 hotel company. They were married May 8, 1929.

On Jan. 24, 1929, Bogeaus and his wife, who then were residing at 444 St. James place, were held up in front of their home by two bandits. Mrs. Bogeaus reported the loss of jewelry valued at $30,000. Bogeaus was held in custody of the police a night and a part of a day for questioning on the robbery. While Bogeaus was being held at that time his brother, Morris Bogoslowski, was locked up in the county jail on a capias naming him as a member of a forgery ring.

10,000 DUPED BY MILK RACKET, U. S. AGENT SAYS

Two Held on Bonds After U. S. Raid.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Thomas Trippa, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Phillip L. Sullivan.

Evidence uncovered following a raid on the offices of the Chicago Infant Free Milk depot on the thirteenth floor at 20 East Jackson boulevard disclosed yesterday that 10,000 persons have been duped into contributing an average of $1,200 a week to the organization on the understanding that the money was to be used to buy milk for undernourished children.

According to Assistant United States District Attorney Francis Kennedy, who is handling prosecution of the case, investigators found that not more than $30 was being spent each week for milk. After the expense of running the organization were paid, the remainder was split between the two alleged promoters of the scheme, he said.

Two Held on Bonds.

Those alleged to have been in charge of operations are Jacob L. Karchmer and H. J. Metcalfe, both of 6445 Elaine street. They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud and held in bonds of $1,000 each pending further investigation. Commissioner Walker continued hearing on their cases until Oct. 13.

The pair, according to Kennedy, hired about a dozen men and women to solicit contributions, paying each 3½ per cent of his or her daily collections. An added weekly bonus also was paid, Kennedy said, ranging from 5 per cent on weekly collections amounting to over $80 to 15 per cent on collections over $150. He said that the organization had been in operation since last June.

Five Women Are Released.

Five young women employed in the office were questioned and released yesterday. Twelve men who were detained will be turned over to the state for prosecution.

The raid was made Wednesday night on warants for Karchmer and Metcalfe. Literature found in the offices indicated that the organization also operated under the name of the Universal Advertisers. Money was solicited by telephone and by mail, according to Kennedy. Files confiscated disclosed a list of 10,000 persons whom the organization had contacted successfully for contributions. It was estimated that collections amounted to $200 daily.

Mussolini Is Now Grandpa; Son Born to Daughter, Edda

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 1.—Premier Mussolini received a cable today from Shanghai announcing that he is the grandfather of another "balilla." His eldest child and favorite daughter, Edda, gave birth to a son. Edda married Count Galeazzo Ciano a year ago last April. They left shortly after their marriage for Shanghai, where Count Ciano is Italian consul general.

POLICE GUARD WATER MAIN AFTER THREAT

The temporary water main at the Little Calumet river at 131st and Halsted streets, Riverdale, which supplies Harvey and seven other towns and villages with Chicago water, was guarded by two county highway policemen last night as the result of anonymous threats received by the Harvey water department.

The permanent main from Chicago to Harvey burst last Saturday at a point in the middle of the bed of the river, thirty feet below the surface of the water, cutting off the water supply of Harvey, South Holland, Hazelcrest, Phoenix, Markham, Oak Forest, Specialville, and Posen. Work was rushed immediately on a temporary main at that point, and 22 workmen, some of whom were said to be nonunion laborers, were put on the job. The temporary repairs were completed Tuesday night, and water pumped through to the towns and villages.

The Harvey water department yesterday received threats, and last night the police were assigned to guard duty.

McDonough Praises Those Who Have Settled.

taxes were assessed have paid. These payments are 64½ per cent of the personal property taxes levied. The following two tables show the number of persons assessed for personal property taxes in the city and the country towns and the number who pay and the amounts paid:

Area—	Persons assessed.	Taxes extended.
Towns	78,531	$ 3,119,223
Chicago	187,070	42,381,984
Totals	265,601	$ 45,501,207
Area—	Payers.	Amount paid.
Towns	33,385	$ 2,124,618
Chicago	19,772	27,189,300
Totals	53,157	$ 29,313,918

This is the largest amount of personal property taxes ever paid in the history of Cook county. From the above two tables it is apparent that many more persons paid personal property taxes in the suburbs and rural districts than within Chicago, but the average tax in the country towns was only $63.64. In Chicago the bulk of the personal property taxes has been paid by the utilities and large corporations, with the result that the average tax is $1,375.

68½ Per Cent of Tax Bill Paid.

Of the total 1929 tax bill of the county, about 68½ per cent has been paid up to yesterday morning. The following summary shows the amount of taxes paid of the three chief kinds of local taxes:

Property—	Taxes extended.	Taxes paid.
Personal	$ 45,501,207	$ 29,313,918
Real estate	202,421,527	136,824,057
Railroad	12,621,934	12,382,122
Totals	$260,544,668	$178,420,097

Those figures indicate that 64.4 per cent of the personal property taxes have been paid, 67.6 per cent of the real estate taxes, and 97.3 per cent of the railroad taxes.

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The real estate of New York's five boroughs was tentatively valued for tax purposes today at $19,296,985,571, a new record, and $1,117,166,654 more than last year's record final valuation.

While real estate assessments are increased to an extent described as seeming to be "stupendous, particularly so on account of existing conditions," the tentative personal property assessments, amounting to $736,444,690, reflect current conditions by a decrease of $10,717,245.

The larger part of the increase in realty assessment was due to the expiration of the ten year tax exemption period, which was established to encourage building.

The assessments are subject to challenge, and a flood of protests, even larger than the 40,000 or more lodged last year, is expected.

Augustus Dunham Fined for Reckless Auto Driving

Augustus Phelps Dunham, 26 years old, 210 East Pearson street, was fined $100 for reckless driving yesterday by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden. Dunham, a son of Robert J. Dunham, president of the Universal Oil Products company, was arrested Wednesday night after his automobile had struck one driven by A. L. Lassen, 4130 North Campbell avenue, at Wellington and Sheffield avenues. Police said they found a bottle of liquor in Dunham's car.

DIES FROM EFFECTS OF GAS.

SCHOOL BOARD TO AWAIT COURT ACTION ON SCRIP

Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan informed Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday that the school board will issue no more scrip pending the hearing Monday on a bill for an injunction to restrain the school trustees from such action.

Judge Finnegan indicated on Wednesday that he would issue a temporary injunction forbidding the scrip issue unless he received such an assurance. Attorneys Sullivan and Frank Righeimer, representing the school board, and James A. O'Callaghan and Thomas Greenacre, who were employed by Miss Margaret Haley, business agent of the Chicago Teachers federation, told Judge Finnegan that they could present their evidence in two hours for each side.

Judge Finnegan permitted counsel for the janitors' and school engineers' unions to file intervening petitions in which they opposed the issuance of the injunction. Attorney Thurlow Essington, who represented the elementary teachers' and men teachers' unions, withdrew his motion to file the petition.

GEN. BUTLER AND 14 MILLIONAIRES HAVE A PLAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A plan whereby wealth would be taxed and the proceeds used for governmental education of all youths was outlined today by Gen. Smedley D. Butler. He said 14 multimillionaires, representing wealth of $5,000,000,000, had announced themselves willing to give 50 per cent of their money for his plan.

He warned that unless the scheme or a similar one, was put into use soon mob violence and revolution would face the United States as a protest against poverty, unemployment, and unequal distribution of wealth.

Butler's plan contemplates unemployment relief by providing nationwide school building, road construction and subsidies for invention and infant industries.

He revealed that he had conferred, at their request, with the millionaires on the "serious situation confronting the republic." These men, he said, stand ready to give up 50 per cent of their wealth by taxation to back his plan. Butler refused to reveal any names.

BUY a Challenger Suit
wear it six months. If at the end of that time with normal care and usage it has not given satisfactory wear or retained its smartly tailored style, bring it back and we will refund your money

Only a few years ago we sold suits at $45 that were not only considered good value by us, but were readily accepted as such by the very men of good taste who now hesitate to pay less than that.

Today this $25 Challenger suit of ours is even better than the $45 suit was at that time. We made both lines ourselves. WE KNOW.

It is possible to do this because of lower prices in the basic markets—because of better organization and larger production facilities.

There are three principal things that the buyer looks for in purchasing clothing:

(1) good fabric quality; (2) workmanship;
(3) style in both fabric and finished garments.

All of these are embodied in our Challenger suits this Fall to a degree never before attained in men's clothing at or near this price.

NEW CONTRACT RULES RUIN OLD BRIDGE ALIBIS

There's Only One System Now, Experts Say.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Foolishly they're standardizing contract bridge. In fact, it's already standardized. Charles True Adams of Chicago made that clear yesterday in opening a three day session of the high seguls of the realm of grand slams in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Moreover, there's a book about it—a combination bridge text, constitution and by-laws of the game.

Now the official procedure on pre-emptive bids, jump shifts and initial actions by, as adjudicated in solemn conclave by a council of virtually all the recognized high authorities of the bridge playing world, is abolishing that old reliable alibi: "Sorry, partner, I didn't recognize your system." From this time forward, there's going to be only one system.

Experts Tell Rules.

For three days, beginning with the initial gatherings yesterday, these experts are expounding their common rules and regulations to bridge instructors from within a radius of 150 miles of Chicago. These wiser ones will in turn communicate their knowledge to their home communities, and before long, if you go down three doubled when you should have registered a grand slam, you won't be able to put the blame on the system.

"A deck of cards," comments the new book, which bears the title "The Official System of Contract Bridge," "can be distributed into 53,644,737,765,488,792,839,237,440,000 combinations and even the experts have been unable to cover perfectly every situation that arises."

They have gone far enough, however, to eliminate most of the misunderstandings involved in the present confusion, wherein almost everybody bases his plays on one of the better known authorities, with individual embroiderings of his own inspiration.

Under the new rules, when a bid is made the inference will be as nearly uniform in every circumstance as it can be made. Equally, when one's partner raises a bid the original bidder will understand much more accurately the probable strength of the tricks he may count on if he obtains the contract.

Bridge Authorities Present.

Present yesterday and subscribing to the newer order were these exponents of contract bridge as it ought to be played: Charles True Adams, Sidney Lenz, S. Barclay, Walter Wyman, Commander Winfield Liggett, Milton C. Work, E. V. Shepherd, Capt. F. F. French, E. C. Wolfe, E. Hall Bowes, Victor Smith, George Reith, F. D. Courtenay, Henry Jaeger, Madeleine Kerwin, and others.

Contract, with its multiplied scores and bonuses, its much greater penalties and the necessity of bidding every trick before it is made, demands a much keener estimate of trick values than auction bridge, it was pointed out by the experts. It necessitates the bid of one's partner to a far greater extent.

When the system of reckoning around the bridge tables at yesterday's session began to rival in intricacy those used to beat the house at Monte Carlo, the heated discussions as to the interpretation to be placed on each call frequently halted the playing.

When the contract devotees begin to reach common ground in their understanding of bids and takeouts, contract is due for a sudden accelerated popularity it has never before enjoyed, the professionals say.

Guards Pheasants

MRS. SCOTT DURAND.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county yesterday made Mrs. Scott Durand, society woman and owner of the Crabtree farm at Lake Bluff, a special deputy sheriff in order that she may protect hen pheasants on her property.

Property owners throughout Lake county are protecting the female birds, shooting of which became legal this year through an oversight by the state legislature, by arresting hunters who enter their property for trespassing. All of the large estates along the north shore are posted against trespassing and Sheriff Tiffany has deputized a number of farmers throughout the county that they may protect the birds.

Mrs. Durand is patrolling her farm, accompanied by several employés and a large police dog. There are 300 hen pheasants on the farm, she told Sheriff Tiffany.

HAVE CONGRESS PICK PRESIDENT, RADICALS' PLAN

Unpledged Electors Basis of Scheme.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Rumblings of a new presidential movement in the western states reached Capitol hill today. The political independents of that section have a unique proposal that presidential electors who are committed to no candidate be chosen.

By such a plan, fostered in 25 states, they believe the election of the next President would be thrown into the house of representatives. A majority of the electoral votes is necessary for the election of a President.

The scheme apparently springs from the northwestern states whose senators grouped together last session in opposition to the tariff and farm relief policies of President Hoover.

Free to Vote for Any One.

Of course, the independent electors—if elected—would be free to vote for any man for President and their candidate would be open to choice in the voting of the house.

The scheme fits in, to some extent, with embryo plans to put up "favorite son" presidential candidates in some western states.

Leaders of the senate Republican independents who have been in frequent opposition to President Hoover have refused to sanction a third party. The independent electors proposal is understood to be the alternative step of those wishing a third party.

None of the leaders of the Republican independents so far has stepped forward in opposition to President Hoover for the Republican nomination. Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, however, has suggested half a dozen possible "progressive" presidential candidates, including Senators Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Norris of Nebraska, and La Follette of Wisconsin, and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Borah Won't Comment.

Senator Borah returned to the capital today from the west, but declined to discuss politics, although he did assert it was necessary for the Republicans to organize a "constructive and aggressive program."

On his way east at Sioux City, Ia., Senator Borah proposed a program calling for reductions in the war reparations, curtailment of armaments, and immediate consideration of the monetary situation.

It is understood that special legislation would be required in many states to permit independent presidential electors to get on the ballots.

Reports of this presidential movement intimate that it will be fostered in 25 states, principally in the west and central west, if it is carried through.

THIRTY DAYS OF 90° OR OVER SET A HEAT RECORD FOR CHICAGO

The summer just passed leaves a record distinguished for heat. Sept. 21 practically marked the turn from summer to autumn. Between June 18 and Sept. 21, inclusive, there were thirty days when the temperature in Chicago was 90 degrees or higher. This included three days with a temperature of 98. The maximum on July 1, which was the highest the official weather bureau thermometer reached during the summer, was 98.3.

There were seven June days with a record of 90 or higher; in July there were nine days with that record; in August, five days, and in September nine days. W. A. Bayliss, 606 South Michigan avenue, has drawn up from the weather reports published in THE TRIBUNE, the following items, showing the hot days:

June 18	90	July 28	96
June 19	94	Aug. 2	93
June 25	96	Aug. 4	92
June 26	95	Aug. 6	90
June 28	98	Aug. 8	93
June 29	93	Aug. 17	92
June 30	93	Sept. 8	90
July 1	98.3	Sept. 9	91
July 14	90	Sept. 10	94
July 15	97	Sept. 11	91
July 16	96	Sept. 12	90
July 17	93	Sept. 13	92
July 19	90	Sept. 16	92
July 26	91	Sept. 20	91
July 27	91	Sept. 21	90

The only year approximating this year's frequency of heat records was in 1921, when the number of days with 90 degrees or higher was 22.

Condition of Edison Announced as Unchanged

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The condition of Thomas A. Edison was unchanged today, according to an announcement made at his home here.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe visited the inventor in his study and said later that "although Mr. Edison spent a restless night, his condition seems unchanged this morning."

FLIES TO DYING FATHER; HELD FOR BAD CHECK

Abe H. Goldbogen of Los Angeles was taken into custody by Chicago detectives last evening as he stepped from an airplane at the Chicago airport after a flight from Los Angeles to Chicago to be at his dying father's bedside. Hyman Goldbogen, the father, of 2034 Le Moyne avenue, died shortly after the son arrived in the city and without the presence of the son at his deathbed.

Goldbogen, who is 25 years old, received a message in Los Angeles Wednesday stating his father was near death. He obtained passage east in a plane of the United Airlines company, and, according to a telegram to the police here from the police in Los Angeles, he gave the airways company a check for $150. The message said the check had been put through a bank there and returned to the airways company marked "insufficient funds." It was because of the check that the young man was seized. Los Angeles police reported a warrant had been sworn out for Goldbogen's arrest, and the detective bureau here is holding him.

THREE DONORS GIVE $200,000 TO RELIEF FUND

Drive Is Started Among Wealthy Citizens.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The first day of the drive for special gifts from wealthy citizens brought $200,000 yesterday to the joint emergency relief fund for the unemployed. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, who heads this drive, announced three gifts.

The largest of the donations was from Cyrus H. McCormick, who contributed $100,000. Last year Mr. McCormick gave $50,000 to the governor's unemployment fund. He also made other contributions to charity.

The second donor yesterday was Mrs. Francis Neilson, who subscribed $50,000. She gave $1,500 to the governor's committee last year.

The third gift, also for $50,000, came from Sewell L. Avery. His contribution last year to the governor's committee was $10,000.

Large Gifts Sought.

This comparison of contributions of last year and this year indicates the extent to which an effort is being made to obtain large sums from the wealthy citizens.

Last winter the fund raising committee collected $5,000,000, while for this winter $8,800,000 is the goal set for the joint emergency relief committee. The campaign among the wealthy has been started in advance of the general drive to obtain funds from other sources, and it is hoped that the special gifts from wealthy folk will constitute a large part of the aggregate to be obtained.

"The well-to-do of Chicago," said Mr. Hutchins, "must give to this fund larger amounts than they have ever before contributed for relief. A great emergency exists, and Chicagoans must meet the situation. Every man and woman of means knows what he or she can give, and we expect them to do their full duty—carry the full share of the community load."

Party to Raise Funds.

The second of a series of 100 per cent benefit entertainments will be given by the Shriners of Chicago in the form of a bridge party for women at Medinah temple tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Ralph E. Lidster, chairman of the Medinah entertainment committee, has made arrangements for a record crowd. Tickets may be bought at Medinah temple. Motion pictures will be an added feature of the affair.

The first of the benefit entertainments was the baseball game between the Sox and the Cubs, which turned in $46,445 to the joint emergency relief fund. This, added to the three personal gifts of yesterday, starts the committee off with $246,445.

The Kiwanis clubs of Chicago announced yesterday through Daniel S. Wentworth a plan to coöperate actively with the joint relief organization.

Clubs outside of Chicago are coöperating directly with their local relief committees," said Mr. Wentworth. "In Chicago we will soon be able to announce our plan of action. We are facing a real crisis in this country and the problem demands the immediate consideration of every level headed business man."

At the conference held yesterday in the Hotel Sherman 22 clubs were represented. The representatives decided to hold a civic rally on Oct. 22 in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman to put into effect plans to be worked out in the meantime.

Hear Workers' Committee.

The governor's relief commission, which is concerned exclusively with organization and suggestions to communities, gave a public hearing yesterday to the Chicago workers committee on unemployment. This committee is circulating a petition for a special session of the legislature to provide money for employment. It wanted the governor's commission to approve such a step, but the commission did not do so.

The principal speakers for the workers' committee were Miss Lea Taylor of the Chicago Commons, the Rev. D. M. Nichol of the Watson Park Congregational church, Karl Borders of the League for Industrial Democracy, Samuel Lavin of the clothing workers, John Werlik of the metal polishers, and H. Schneif of the organization for unemployment insurance.

It was reported to the governor's commission that Springfield expects to raise $175,000 from private sources and to obtain $55,000 from the public funds for the care of its needy. Joliet plans to raise privately $200,000 and to have the public treasury contribute $80,000.

2 SWIM TREACHEROUS HELL GATE TO ESCAPE FROM ISLAND PRISON

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Two youths swam a half-mile against the treacherous currents of Hell Gate today and escaped from Randall's island, where they had been inmates of the house of refuge.

A third, who started to swim to liberty with them, was rescued, his nerve and wind gone, by house of refuge guards from a wrecked barge half way across the river.

The youths had paused there to regain their strength before finishing their swim. Ahead of them was the most dangerous stretch of their dash to liberty. Those who know the dangers of the Hell Gate say the chances were 10 to 1 against their making it alive. However, two of them plunged in again and were seen to make The Bronx bank of the river safely.

GIRL SUSPECTED AS GANG'S LURE GIVEN FREEDOM

Danville, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Miss Irene Thompson Hendrix, 22, former Charleston, Ill., woman who was arrested in Kansas City, her present home, last week as a suspected lure for a gang blackmailing business men after enticing them to violate the Mann act, was freed today by federal authorities.

United States District Attorney Paul Jones said the young woman had convinced him she was the victim of mistaken identity and that she was not the woman sought. She persistently has declared her innocence. Jones said she left at once for Kansas City.

U. S. BARGE LINES MAKING MONEY DESPITE SLUMP

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Hard times have boosted the business of at least one concern—the government Inland Waterways corporation.

Officials of the corporation, which operates the federal barge lines, said today that shippers, with their margin of profit lowered, were seeking the cheapest means of transportation.

"We're making money," Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, director of barge lines operations, said. "We expect to continue to make money. In addition, we have $3,000,000 of the $10,000,000 congress voted us three years ago in reserve."

Ashburn said he did not expect to ask congress for any more money.

The barge lines cleared about $150,000 during the first seven months of this year. It has put 321 steamboats and barges on the Mississippi and its tributaries.

The law setting up the corporation provided for the eventual transfer of the boats to private ownership. Gen. Ashburn believes, however, that the time for disposal of the lines has not come.

"It might undo all the good we have done," he said. "The barge line is not yet firmly enough established. Besides the law directed us to install the service on the Missouri and Illinois rivers. We have not done that yet."

4 ATTRACTIVE JELL-O MOLDS AND 24-PAGE RECIPE BOOKLET FREE

WITH THE PURCHASE OF SIX PACKAGES OF JELL-O

PHONE your order this minute—or hurry to your grocer's to-day! A gift that every woman wants! Four aluminum Jell-O molds in the new quarter-pint individual size (large enough to hold a good-sized portion of Jell-O)! And a 24-page recipe booklet! All Free with the purchase of six packages of Jell-O at the regular price. Any combination of flavors that you prefer.

You know how enticing a molded Jell-O dessert or salad is . . . how delicate it is . . . how delicious. No wonder women prefer Jell-O!

Did You Know That Jell-O Is the Choice of Seven Women Out of Ten?

It is! And for two good reasons!

First, because Jell-O is flavored with pure fruit flavors. Those words "pure fruit flavor" on the Jell-O package are your protection—the U.S. Government permits their use only when the flavor comes from fruit itself. And remember—no synthetic flavor ever quite catches the real flavor of real fruit. To fastidious housewives and careful mothers—an all-important point.

Second, because Jell-O is always delicately tender—even when it is made up the day before.

Serve a molded Jell-O triumph to-night! You can—if you hurry to your grocer now—or phone him. He is waiting for your order.

SHELTERS TO BAR THOSE COMING TO CITY FOR RELIEF

Ryerson Tells Plans to Care for Homeless.

"Every effort possible is being made by the Joint Emergency Relief fund to give relief only to regular residents of Chicago and Cook county," said Edward L. Ryerson Jr. yesterday in discussing THE TRIBUNE story of Thursday disclosing that men are flocking to Chicago for free food and lodging. Mr. Ryerson is chairman of the relief committee.

"Private feeding and lodging stations over which the fund has no control, and which furnish meals and lodgings to homeless men indiscriminately, and having no coördination with the work of other institutions, add greatly to the difficulties of the problem," Mr. Ryerson continued. "There are in Chicago two feeding stations which each feed several hundred men once a day, and one which gives lodgings and two meals daily to several hundred more. These have received considerable publicity. These three major places and a few smaller ones are run independently of the relief fund, and consequently we are not able to say who shall be cared for at these stations. It is a duplication of the work being done under the control of the fund, and is confusing to the public."

Describes Relief Fund Work.

Regarding the work of the relief fund in caring for single persons Mr. Ryerson said: "The fund maintains a clearing house at which all men sheltered and fed in approved lodging houses and feeding stations must register. The clearing house was started last year and has been maintained through the summer at 162 North Union avenue. It will be moved to 116 South Green street and will be enlarged. This bureau is in charge of trained men, experienced in handling homeless men.

"All men must register, giving their last place of residence and they are then given a ticket assigning them to a particular lodging house. No man can be admitted to a lodging house under the supervision of the fund without a registration card. In these lodging houses two meals, breakfast and dinner, are given those who spend the night there.

"The New Start lodge of the Salvation Army at 509 North Union avenue and the municipal lodging house at 162 North Union avenue, are operated under the direction of the fund. The New Start lodge contains 2,020 beds and has facilities for feeding more than 2,000 men. The municipal lodging house has accomodations for 115. At 116 South Green street in the building where the clearing house will be located, we are arranging accommodations for 350.

Plan Other Shelters.

"There is being operated under our direction a feeding station at 3140 Indiana avenue with facilities for 1,500. Other shelters are being operated and more are to be opened. We expect to have capacity for sheltering and feeding 10,000 homeless men in lodging houses under the control of the fund.

"These shelters are equipped with comfortable cots and warm blankets, shower baths, and other facilities. The men are fed good, wholesome food. Men who do not live in Chicago are given temporary shelter and food for a day or so and sent on their way.

Plea for Coöperation.

"As long as shelters and feeding stations are maintained over which we have no control, there doubtless will be many men cared for who do not belong in Chicago. Homeless men naturally travel to the large cities in the winter time. To hundreds of these, Chicago probably is the only place they can call home although as soon as warm weather comes they leave to seek work.

"The job of giving relief in Chicago this year is tremendous. All agencies engaged in such work should cooperate in a coördinated program.

"After all, our biggest task is family relief. The cost of housing and feeding homeless men and women last year was only 4 per cent of the total expenditures.

BRITISH HEIRESS, HIT BY TAXES, TO SELL PALACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Taxation is slowly undermining the oldest and most impregnable estates in England.

Lady Mountbatten, heiress to one of the greatest fortunes in the country, left by her grandfather, Sir Ernest Cassel, plans to sell her palace, known as Brook House and built by her grandfather, who expressed a wish in his will that the place should never be sold. The burden of increased taxes forced her to put up the property for sale. When Brook House is sold it probably will be converted into flats. She is going to Malta to join her husband, Lord Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of King George, who is stationed there with the British fleet.

Earl to Sell Castle.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The earl of Tankerville, who succeeded to the estate of his father two years ago, today announced that on account of heavy taxation and death duties he will close Chillingham castle in Northumberland. The Tankerville estate is celebrated for its herd of white wild cattle, which have been raised there for 700 years. There are nearly 50 in the herd and the anunal upkeep of each costs about $50. The earl of Tankerville, as Lord Ossulston, has been a civilian air pilot. He has been living in a cottage on the estate.

TWO ROBBERY SUSPECTS FREED.

YOUNG COUPLE ASKS ANNULMENT AFTER ELOPING

Suit to annul the marriage of Mrs. Ruth Allworth Hindley, daughter of Frank E. Allworth, 427 8th street, Wilmette, and Kenneth Hindley, 21 years old, son of the Rev. John G. Hindley, pastor of the Wilmette Congregational church, was instituted yesterday in the Superior court.

The young couple recite in the bill that they eloped to Waukegan on Sept. 12 and that Mrs. Hindley is only 17 years old. After the ceremony they returned to the homes of their respective parents. Young Hindley is a student at Northwestern university. His wife, whose father is secretary treasurer of Allworth Brothers, tea merchants, has continued to live with her parents.

MURDER VERDICT IS RETURNED.

A verdict of murder was voted yesterday by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Martin E. Bockner, 27 years old, 4048 North Spaulding avenue, who was found shot to death at the wheel of his taxicab on Sept. 19.

MacDONALD WILL CALL ELECTION; RIOTING SPREADS

Glasgow Police Battle Mob of 50,000.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Prime Minister MacDonald has decided to call a general election at the earliest possible moment, which means that it will be held late this month or early in November. Mr. MacDonald has not yet decided when to make the announcement. It may be made when he addresses his constituents at Seaham Harbor tomorrow, or it may be postponed until the adjournment of parliament next Wednesday, or even until after parliament has adjourned.

Meanwhile, the rioting by jobless crowds spread today to other sections of the country. The disorders were most serious at Glasgow and Salford, Lancashire, and Bristol. At Glasgow a mob of 50,000 unemployed was charged by mounted police on Glasgow Green tonight after a day of disorders. Ten men and one woman were arrested. They included John McGovern, Labor member of parliament. He will appear at the police battled a mob for nearly an hour at the city hall.

Politicians Vs. Financiers.

The information regarding Mr. MacDonald's decision to call a general election came from a source close to the prime minister and is said to mean a triumph for the politicians over the financiers. The key to the British crisis, this informant said, is that it is both financial and political, and the politicians do not understand the financiers or the financiers the politicians.

The politicians are pressing for an immediate election on the ground that anything is better than the present uncertainty and that they are unable to do any effective work in the less than two years of office before them at best and without any effective mandate from the country. If returned with a great majority for five years, then, they argue, they will be able to take the most drastic steps necessary for setting things right.

Financiers Oppose Election.

The financiers argue that the first thing is to stabilize the currency at some fixed rate, and that the uncertainty of an election will deal another crushing blow to the money markets of the world. Some financiers are said to have told the government frankly that the banks could not stand four weeks of election agitation. Of course, there is still a possibility that the financial view may prevail at the last moment, but Mr. MacDonald, while slow to take steps, is very stubborn about changing his mind once it is made up.

David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, from his convalescence at his country home at Churt, Surrey, is straining every effort to prevent an election unless he gets his pound of flesh, which is about twice as many safeguards for the Liberals as the party holds now. The Conservatives are naturally unwilling to guarantee these safeguards, and Lloyd George threatens, if his demands are turned down, to form an alliance with the Laborites and lead a campaign against the "National" party. If he did so, he could take with him about half the present Liberal members of parliament and an unknown proportion of Liberal court tomorrow on charges of forming a disorderly crowd. At Salford, in the heart of the hard hit textile area, police voters. Most of the Liberal ministers in the national government, however, are expected to stand by MacDonald.

Heavy penalties for food profiteering, including fines of $500 or three months' imprisonment, or both, are included in a foodstuffs exploitation prevention bill introduced in the house of commons this evening by the president of the board of trade. The measure authorizes the board to take exceptional measures to prevent or remedy shortages of foods and drinks or unreasonable increases in prices. The government is given drastic powers to deal with all kinds of profiteering, and the profits of profiteers are liable to be confiscated.

WOMEN OF SPAIN OVER 23 OBTAIN RIGHT TO VOTE

Suffrage Amendment Is Passed, 160 to 121.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Oct. 1.—Spanish women won the right to vote tonight in parliament after a duel between the only two women members. They obtained it by a big majority, as 160 deputies, mostly Socialists, voted to make Spain the first of the so-called Latin countries, except Uruguay, to grant complete suffrage to women. One hundred and twenty-one members voted against them.

It was ladies' day all around. They packed the galleries and even stormed the lobbies on propaganda raids, and the two women deputies captained the opposing forces on the floor. Both are unmarried and both are lawyers.

Clara Campoamar, gentle and earnest, is the daughter of an old political family and a member of Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux's so-called radical party. Victoria Kent is of another world. She has bold features, wears a beret, and strides like a man. She is a radical Socialist and, as director of prisons, has authorized sexual freedom for her wards.

Women Oppose Each Other.

Clara demanded the vote right away. Victoria opposed it.

"It is significant that a woman should rise here to say it is dangerous to grant women the vote in Spain," Victoria said. "Let their love for the republic be awakened first. If all women of Spain were university girls, or workers, I would grant them the vote. But there are women of the middle classes and aristocracy who do not love the republic."

Clara was gently indignant.

"Many women undoubtedly might favor the return of the monarchy and might lean towards the church," she argued. "Many women worship Primo de Rivera, the former dictator. But it was women who rose against the Cuban war and against the Moroccan disasters. Women worked to bring about the republic. Do not women suffer to pay taxes and reap the consequences of our legislation? We're all children of both sexes."

Although Clara and Victoria are not friends, only the slightest sarcasm prevailed, but gentle Clara unloosened a very harsh Spanish word when one deputy introduced a motion that women be only allowed the right to vote at the age of 45, "when they had attained wisdom."

A Paradoxical Performance.

Twenty-three years was the legal age set for both sexes. To the 4,000,000 male electors of Spain will be added 4,000,000 wome nwhenever the new electoral census is taken.

"That may take a long time," grinned Victoria Kent afterwards. "I hope so, because I intended to shoot myself if the women really start to vote."

It was a paradoxical performance in other respects. Radicals and radical Socialists voted against suffrage for women, certain that the republic will be tricked by women who want a monarchy. Some diehard conservative elements voted for women's suffrage hoping just that would happen.

REED DEMANDS U. S. FIRE ITS SNOOPER ARMY

Ex-Senator Tells Ideas on Trade Recovery.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Getting the government out of interference with business and agriculture is the first need in the revival of prosperity, according to James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President next year. He added that as an initial step the administration at Washington might well discharge "an army of prohibition snoopers and spies and hordes of officials and taxgatherers" who swarm over the land like the plagues of Eypt "devouring the substance of the people."

JAMES A. REED.

The old thunderer of the senate, looking more like Andy Jackson than ever, at the Congress hotel yesterday indulged in comment on the times. Its general theme was "too much government" and the need of a return to the fundamentals of the constitution.

Practical Sense Needed.

"What is needed in our government now," he said, "is some practical hard sense and a recognition that prosperity will be restored by the industry of the people and must come from the bottom, not the top.

"Congress and the President can interfere with business and cause disaster. There was never a law passed which produced a dollar of real wealth. Let the government quit undertaking oppressive interference and withdraw such interference, and the people will work the revival out.

"For one thing, reduce the tariff, which is closing the markets of the world to us. Let the government quit interfering with the farm question and with the markets for cotton, wheat and hogs. That interference has resulted in depression of prices. Reduce the tariff and it would help arrest the movement to exclude us from markets. Quit the levying of tribute behind a high tariff wall for the enrichment of manufacturers who go to Europe and invest millions in factories and in the employment of labor to occupy markets which ought to be kept open for American labor.

Fire Army of Snoopers!

"Government ought to get out of a great number of activities which are causing vast expenditures of money collected from the people.

"For one thing it ought to discharge its army of snoopers and spies and stop squandering three or four hundred million dollars to enforce prohibition. It ought to cut its taxes to the bone, because every dollar collected is that much withdrawn from industry. It has the same effect as tapping the veins of a strong, healthy man."

In national politics ex-Senator Reed says things look Democratic next year.

"I don't see that Coolidge could have done anything else but come out for Hoover," said Mr. Reed. "Both have served the same masters. Hoover has continued Coolidge's policies. The difference between them is that Hoover was in office when the debacle came.

"I'm curious to know what's going to be done about wheat. The operations in wheat have been the most foolish government experiment in a hundred years. It is responsible for the depression in wheat prices. If an individual had said he was going into the market, saying he intended to buy immense quantities and dump them any moment, do you suppose anybody would be willing to buy wheat? It spreads over the world, because when the market drops here it drops in Liverpool and everywhere.

"Any man who thinks that the price of wheat can be controlled for two seasons, to keep up the price, simply doesn't know wheat. It's grown everywhere. When they fix the price of wheat higher than the value of other farm products farmers will raise a surplus next season that will break every market.

"Government interference has impaired the free, open market. The grain dealers are afraid to buy, so are the millers. And now we have the spectacle of millions hungry when we have so much wheat on hand we can't consume.

"I hope the Democrats will adopt a sound platform and not become advocates of any wild experimental things."

NEED POLICE AID TO KEEP U. S. DRY, OFFICIAL SAYS

Two groups of women, the central union of the W. C. T. U. and the law enforcement committee of the Chicago Woman's club, yesterday heard prohibition law enforcement officials discuss their efforts to make the 18th amendment a success.

"It was never intended that the government should police a district in the enforcement of prohibition," Robert W. Coyne, assistant prohibition administrator for this district, told the Woman's club meeting. "The government should be permitted to concentrate on major violations and conspiracies, leaving the policing to the police forces. Until the police do this the national prohibition law will not be enforced."

Mrs. Herbert Y. McMullen, a club member, told how she had visited the public houses in England last summer in order to learn of the liquor situation there.

"The Duke of Gloucester was a crowded place and there was a room for women," she said. "Outside the place I saw three policemen who were ready to take the men home as soon as the chucker-out threw the drunks into the street. Unless they get violent there are no arrests. Women there don't seem to notice that children hang around public houses."

At the W. C. T. U. meeting in the Auditorium hotel Mrs. Annie M. Crook of the permit bureau of industrial alcohol in the Chicago territory said: "Despite all printed reports every employé in our department is a gentleman. They wouldn't, under any circumstances, go snooping around knocking at people's doors. They go to the doctors first."

Policeman and Woman Hurt in Auto Collision

Policeman John O. Barrath, 37 years old, of 5728 Eddy street, attached to the Irving Park station, and Mrs. Anna Brown, 39 years old, 955 North Rockwell street, were injured last night in an automobile collision at Central and Montrose avenues. The policeman's injuries were serious, physicians at the Belmont hospital said. Mrs. Brown was riding with her husband, M. A. Brown, 40 years old, when their car struck that of Barrath. Brown was held by police pending the outcome of Barrath's injuries.

Shoots Man He Says Was Driving His Auto Away

Angelo Marino, 23 years old, of 4831 West 23d place, was shot in the neck and seriously wounded early this morning in front of 5848 West Madison street by Thomas Schultz, 25 years old, of 15 North Mayfield avenue. Schultz told the Austin police Marino had started to drive away in an automobile Schultz had parked in Madison street. Police held Schultz for further investigation.

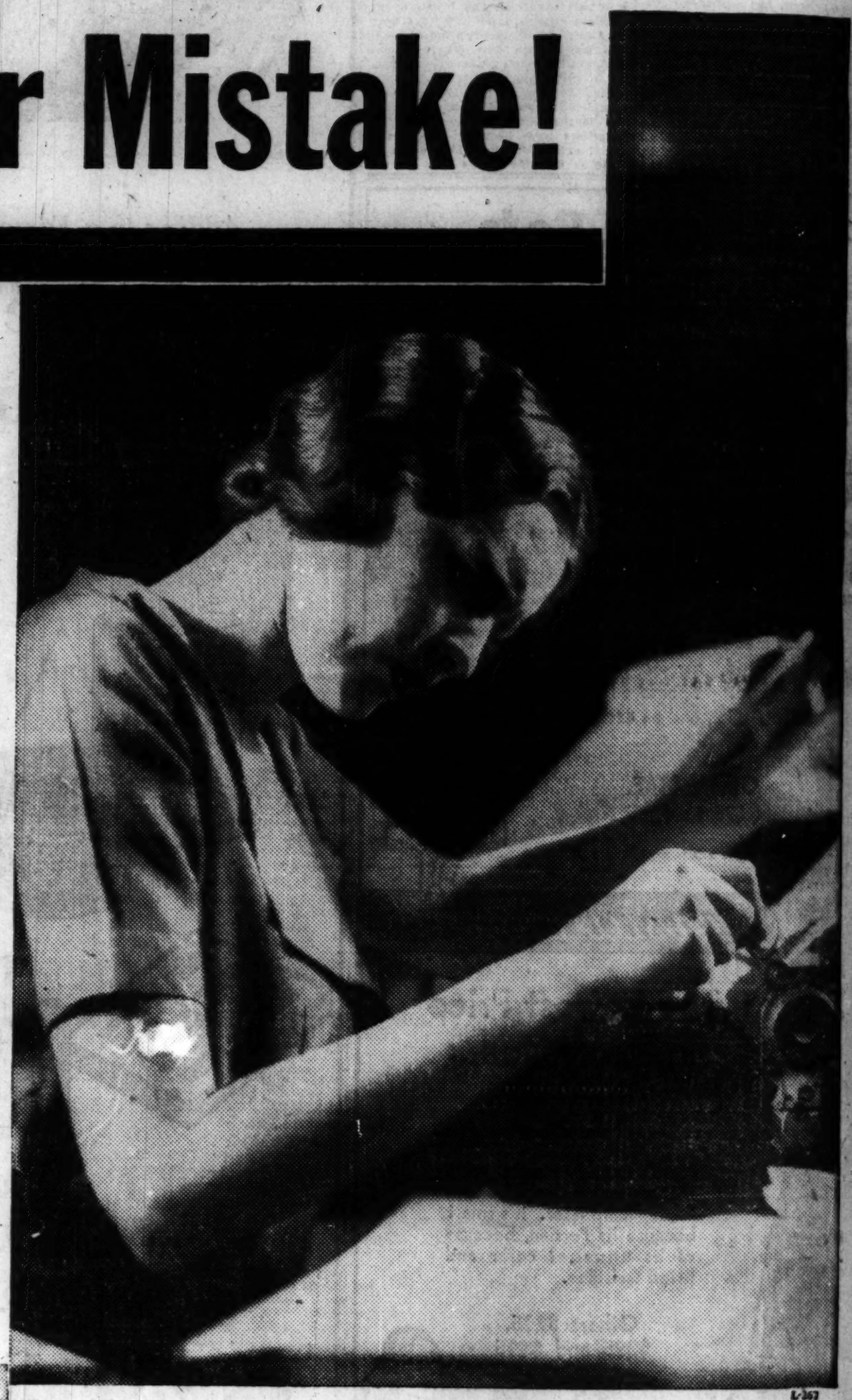
Another Mistake!



LITTLE troubles and difficulties . . . petty annoyances . . . we all have them!

When we're "all on edge," "jumpy," "irritable" . . . we blame it on them.

But usually it's the other way around! The real trouble lies in the nervous tension under which we live and work. We've got "bottled up" nerves!

Science, for example, has lately pointed out some interesting facts about chewing gum—and nerves.

Biochemical research has now proved that chewing gum is a definite help in smoothing out tense and tired nerves. Wrigley's actually aids in counteracting nervous tension, in promoting nervous relaxation.

You might try it out yourself. Thousands are convinced there's really something in it. When "nerves" are getting the best of you—try Wrigley's. See if it doesn't relieve the tension and help to make your little troubles fewer!

If you really want to know: There are in that portion of the face directly connected with gum chewing, the trunks of the 5th or trigeminal nerve and also the 7th nerve. Both are directly connected with the medulla and most of the other nerves. Gum chewing, which necessitates the massage and relaxation of these nerves (scientists say) definitely reduces nervous tension, promotes nervous relaxation.

A. F. L. TO FIGHT FOR BEER BILL, GREEN ASSERTS

Will Rally Its Friends in Next Congress.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Definite steps to obtain the return of beer through congressional action will be taken by organized labor, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said here today.

The labor chief, on his way to Vancouver, B. C., for the annual convention of the federation next week, said the organization will "emphatically reaffirm" its stand for modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer containing 2.75 per cent alcohol.

WILLIAM GREEN.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment, however, is not urged by the federation, he stated.

The federation will go on record, Green said, against wage cuts and the allocation of idle workers to public and private jobs as "temporary relief in an acute situation."

Promotes True Temperance.

Discussing opinion there had been a radical change in public opinion on the prohibition question, Green declared the federation is "planning to call upon its friends in congress to support legislation to bring about modification."

"The federation is firmly convinced modification of the Volstead act will serve to promote true temperance," he added. "Modification is necessary to help economic conditions throughout the nation by stimulating production enterprises in many lines—construction of breweries, greater demand for farm products, and by stimulating transportation."

Turning to wage reductions Green said, "They add to the seriousness of an already serious situation."

Says "Keep Off Wage Scale."

"We feel that in the present emergency corporations should find other means to economize than by attacking the wage structure. The work should be distributed among all men to keep them as consumers in the market.

"The consuming market of the nation, which is made up mainly of the working classes, is influenced by fear, which is bad psychology. They are afraid of the banks, afraid of losing their jobs, afraid their wages will be reduced.

"The workingmen are refusing to buy, the idle cannot buy. The great consuming power of the nation cannot be restored until the fear is gone."

Communism Not U. S. Menace.

Green said he did not believe communism was a menace in the United States at present. "The American Federation of Labor is a bulwark against communism, and as long as the federation functions there need be no fear."

Green paused here briefly and then continued to Vancouver, with other officials and delegates. The convention opens next Monday.

New Orleans for Referendum.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 1.—(AP)—The board of directors of the New Orleans stock exchange and the New Orleans cotton exchange today adopted resolutions, supporting the stand of the American Legion for a national referendum on prohibition and indorsed legalization of light wines and beer.

COMING CONGRESS TO BE THE WETTEST SINCE PROHIBITTION

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The congress that convenes Dec. 7 will be the wettest since prohibition went into effect, according to an analysis of the membership of the house and the senate published today in Repeal, the anti-prohibition monthly.

"Approximately, the wet forces number 174, or about one-third of the total membership in both the senate and the house of representatives," the article says. "The 1930 elections increased the anti-prohibition strength from 15 to 20 senators and from 75 to 154 representatives."

Repeal lists 72 senators as drys, 20 as wets, and 4 doubtful; 262 representatives as drys, 155 as wets, and 10 doubtful. There are also eight vacancies, one of which has been filled by a wet since the article was printed.

JAPAN RUSHES TROOPS TO FIGHT CHINESE RIOTERS

Foes Are Accused of Murdering Children.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 1.—Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander in chief of the Japanese army occupying the Mukden district in Manchuria, today announced that Chinese soldiers had murdered seven Japanese women and children, one man, eleven Coreans, and had kidnaped twelve Coreans. The alleged atrocities occurred in the towns of Tatiengtsu, Chihkuanshan, Angnahe, Paichitsai, and Tsaihopu, east of the Japanese owned South Manchurian railway between Mukden and Changchun.

Gen. Honjo rushed airplanes to the district and said he had discovered that the atrocities were committed by 5,000 disorganized Chinese soldiers who had been expelled from Mukden as a result of the original Japanese occupation. In order to protect the lives of other Japanese residents, Gen. Honjo has dispatched a battalion of Japanese troops of 700 men into the district where the atrocities occurred. Officers were instructed to withdraw the troops when the situation is cleared.

100,000 Chinese Out of Work.

The economic situation in the Mukden district is becoming worse. It is estimated that more than 100,000 Chinese laborers are out of work as a result of the closing of the government arsenals, truck factories, and semi-official private enterprises, including coal mines. Laborers also failed to receive their back pay, due yesterday. It is reported that the Japanese yesterday sent $500,000 here from Dairen in order to finance the municipal administration which has been created within the zone.

The local manager of the National City bank of New York today sent a strong letter to the Japanese consul, Kyujiro Hayashi, urging an early reopening of the large Chinese banks, which were sealed and closed by Japanese military forces Sept. 19.

Demand Speedy Action.

The National City bank's letter stated:

"We have substantial deposits of silver on the Chinese frontier and in the provincial banks, and hence our business is impeded and damaged as a result of the Japanese seizure and continued holding of the banks. It has occurred to us that Tokio is not informed of the situation as the facts hardly coincide with the impression given in statements emanating from Tokio. You will understand we were obliged to withdraw our deposits from the Chinese banks, hence we would appreciate information regarding what action to take in this connection."

Local Americans in the Mukden district are seriously concerned over the recent distribution of leaflets in the Chinese language urging an anti-American boycott. The pamphlets stated:

"America is a double-faced nation which pretends friendship to China, but does not do anything as a result. We believe the Japanese are more trustworthy in the long run, as the Japanese carry out their professions."

RIOT IN SHANGHAI

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—[Friday.]—Shanghai was under martial law today as the result of a clash between police and Chinese students. Police fired upon the student rioters, killing two and wounding four. The shots were fired into the student mob from in front of police headquarters.

A large crowd had gathered in front of the police station after inflammatory bills had been posted on police boxes attacking Japan. Police deny they fired the shots that killed and wounded the students. They blamed communist agitators.

Further progress was made yesterday at Canton in the conference between the rebel Cantonese government and the Chinese state political council, the Kuomintang, in the effort to reunite the warring factions. Indications are that changes in the Nanking government will be made shortly. A careful investigation of reports of more attacks upon Coreans in Manchuria, according to the Chinese, indicates that the Japanese are using alleged outrages for the purpose of justifying them to continue to hold various towns.

A Game of Deception.

In addition, with censorship on both sides, much misinformation is gaining world wide publicity. Many observers believe that both China and Japan are playing a game of trying to deceive the world by giving out details beyond the real state of affairs.

A convenient method in such procedure consists of using words in either language which convey erroneous ideas to neutral minds. For instance, in yesterday's dispatches, it was reported that the further massacre of Coreans in Kirin province had occurred, whereas the incident occurred only six miles north of Mukden, from which the garrison was driven out by the Japanese.

Urge Drive on Mukden.

Tiehling is the first station beyond Mukden and Kaiyuan the second. It was between these two towns that the clash occurred, reports of which were so highly exaggerated because the arrival of the ousted soldiers.

Among the suggestions of a new Chinese government forwarded to Nanking from Canton is one which proposes that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, in addition to yielding the presidency, shall take personal command of Chinese armies and lead them on to Mukden. Wang Ching-wei, radical, Hu Han-ming, or Yu Yu-jen are suggested for the presidency, although the first named will possibly become president of the legislative yuan.

Dr. Alfred Sze, China's delegate to the league of nations, has definitely declined the post of foreign minister of the Nanking government made vacant by the resignation of C. T. Wang. W. W. Yen and Wellington Koo, also a former foreign minister, have been summoned to Nanking by a personal invitation from President Chiang to consider taking the post. Although several Cantonese leaders urge the selection of Eugene Chen as foreign minister, best information is that the Canton conference deems him unsuited at this critical time.

See Definite Adjustment.

Although many widely varying versions have been published, this seems to be the fairest summary. A definite adjustment is likely within a few days. Meanwhile, most Chinese hope that China and Japan will find a way to permit the league of nations to make recommendations. On the other hand, while the league seems to await concrete suggestions before acting. Further conferences at both Canton and Nanking will possibly devise methods whereby some plan of action can be worked out.

Stimson Confers with Envoy.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—Secretary of State Stimson conferred on the Manchurian situation for several hours today with W. Cameron Forbes, American ambassador at Tokio. Later it was made known at the state department that the Hoover administration had no immediate intention of dispatching any additional notes to either Japan or China. Officials, however, refused to commit themselves beyond stating that public opinion in China, as well as developments in Manchuria, were being closely watched. Ambassador Forbes will return to Japan shortly.

Waukegan Suicide Victim Leaves Estate of $140,000

The will of A. L. Brummond, owner of a dairy company in Waukegan, who hanged himself Sept. 18, showed an estate estimated at $140,000 when it was filed for probate yesterday before Probate Judge Martin C. Decker at Waukegan. The estate was left to the widow, Mrs. Grace Brummond, and two children.

First Chief of Gary's Fire Department Missing

Joseph Feely, 70 years old, who was the first chief of the Gary fire department, serving from 1908 to 1914, has been missing from his home at 635 Van Buren street, Gary, since noon on Tuesday. Relatives yesterday requested the aid of the police in a search for Feely. They said he had been in good mental and physical condition and that he was collecting rents from his properties the day he disappeared.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

WE NEED A PSYCHIATRIST.

What the United States seems to need more than anything else at this moment is a psychiatrist, a mass psychiatrist. Panic psychology has destroyed all sense of realities and prices no longer have any intelligible relation to values. Making the fullest allowance for the most serious difficulties with which individuals and the country have to contend does not account for the vague alarms that are paralyzing sane judgment and obstructing the substantial revival awaiting the return of courage and common sense. The basic material strength of the country remains unimpaired. It is morale that is lacking, a fact which is not conducive to our self-respect as a people and one of which we are going some day to be ashamed.

Looking upon this mood, observers abroad are puzzled and rather reasonably contemptuous. There they speak of the United States as the richest and most powerful country in the world today, as it is. Only here in America do we seem unaware of it, intensifying our difficulties and retarding our recovery by ignoring it. A psychiatrist might read the riddle of our weakness for us and thus help us to get rid of it. We have financial and business tribulations, but our chief trouble is something like a psychosis which exaggerates them beyond reason. That we can cure, and the cure of our material difficulties will not be slow following.

Meanwhile, for those who have kept their heads above the stormy surface of events, this is a time of unequaled opportunity, for the undercurrent of American strength will certainly carry them to prosperity. Not on some sunny tomorrow, but in stormy today, the great successes of the future are laying their foundations.

DISARMAMENT BY EXAMPLE.

The Navy league has issued a timely pamphlet on the proposal for a naval holiday. It presents facts which the public ought to consider before it approves the proposal or any terms our government is induced to accept in naval agreements. We have now some plausible generalities from Mr. Borah and others who habitually oppose the building up or maintenance of the national defense. But these are faulty guides in the absence of knowledge of conditions which control the practical results.

The league's statement of general policy is admirable and, we are confident, expresses a view which the people of the United States would approve if their preoccupation with the problems of business revival permitted them to give a proper share of their attention to those of our international relations. The league asserts that it "is most heartily in favor of a naval holiday along any rational lines that will definitely help the United States fleet to approach nearer to parity with the British fleet and to the ratios of the London treaty with that of the Japanese. But, on the other hand, we have very cogent reasons for believing that a naval holiday that would tend to set the United States back from attaining these treaty ratios with the British and Japanese would be counter to the interests of the country and unacceptable to the American people, if the latter be informed rather than deceived."

Report comes from Washington that the President proposes to accomplish his most drastic economies at the expense of the navy department. In short, that we shall adopt a naval holiday without regard to what may be agreed upon abroad. At the same time we hear from Europe that the Italian representative's [Foreign Minister Grandi's] proposal for a naval holiday will finally be shaped on vague lines, which of course means that it is realized that substantial reductions are not to be expected, and that the proposal will turn out to be nothing but a gesture to impress us and quiet such demand as may exist in Europe for relief from armament expenditure.

The Navy league's study of naval facts as they bear on relative naval strength is summarized as follows: Although the London treaty calls for over all ratios of 10.0-10.2-6.8 as between the American, British, and Japanese fleets of aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines, the present actual ratio in under-age completed vessels in these categories is 10.0-14.8-11.2.

A holiday which would stop all naval building in 1932 would change the ratio to 10.0-17.1-13.4, which would represent an average gain in these categories to the four other naval powers over the United States of 19.6 per cent.

A naval holiday which would permit construction of vessels now building or appropriated for, but would prohibit the laying down of new keels in 1932, would change the ratio to 10.0-15.0-12.7, or an average gain to the four treaty powers over us of 14.8 per cent.

Ambassador Wilson, representing our state department at the league of nations meeting, asserted that any undertaking not to augment existing naval strength for a year would cause us an embarrassment and a dislocation of construction plans. "Nevertheless, we regard the general question of disarmament as so important and the necessity of creating a psychological condition propitious for the conference as so urgent that we are willing to forego our treaty rights in this respect."

This is the pacifist theory of disarmament through American example, which Mr. Hoover has fastened upon American policy. It has no support from the nation, only from pacifist and politico-clerical organizations. Its practical result has been the progressive deterioration of American naval defense, with no sign of the expected compensations in armament reduction abroad. It represents futile sacrifice and it is the duty especially of the American press to summon the attention of the American people to its folly and its mischievous results.

THE HIGH COST OF EXTRAVAGANCE.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Snowden have been hailed as models of statesmanship for the part they have played in the last few weeks in attempting to meet the British financial crisis. This is curious in view of the fact that these same gentlemen were in command when the damage was done. They may have sacrificed their own political future by their tardy recognition of their previous mistakes, but if their personal sacrifice was to count for anything it should have been made months ago.

The retrenchment came too late. It should have been adopted when the regular budget was approved. If a clear-headed calculation of income had been made then the expenditures would have been held down to reasonable limits. The British position, under those circumstances, might have been strong enough to weather the storm which appeared first in Austria and Germany and moved rapidly upon England. As it was, there was little confidence in the Bank of England and the bank was in no position to meet the run upon it. When retrenchments could no longer be avoided they were made more or less indiscriminately with the resultant mutiny in the fleet. The whole story is characterized by wishful thinking, procrastination and avoidance of unpleasant truth. If that is statesmanship it is time to revise the dictionaries.

These observations are offered not by way of holding up the British politicians to scorn for their failures and mistakes, but rather to point the moral for the people of this country. We are already well started along the same road. Our federal government last year ran up a deficit of more than $900,000,000 and this year's deficit may be considerably larger. Congress will meet early in December. There is talk of reducing government expenditures, but the attack has been confined solely to the navy, and it looks as if the extravagant appropriations for the departments, bureaus and commissions will scarcely be touched. At the same time the country is being prepared for enormous borrowings for unspecified public works, most of which, it may be safely assumed, will be of little or no benefit to the nation. Already the latest of the United States government flotations is selling below par, an indication of what must happen if the federal debt is further augmented.

Unless we are to follow Britain into insolvency we must avoid the mistakes made by the British politicians. Our governments must retrench. The shameful condition in which the local governments of Chicago find themselves today is another portent of what must happen unless expenses are slashed. There is a striking similarity between the British position and that in Chicago, with the difference that in Britain they are paying their public servants in depreciated money; here we are not paying many of our public servants at all.

It will take courage to reduce expenses to conform to income, but lack of courage has virtually destroyed the credit of Great Britain, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, and Chicago.

BETTER TIME ON RAILWAYS.

Canadian railways are speeding up their trains. The Royal York on the Canadian Pacific Montreal-Chicago run has just made 124 miles in 108 minutes, an average of 68.9 miles per hour. Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National, recently told the Canadian railroad commission that since speeding up the Montreal-Toronto service the trains have returned half a million dollars, his opinion being that faster schedules have appreciably increased earnings.

American railroads should take notice. Faster service, we are confident, will offset much of the new competition of which our railroads and railroads elsewhere are complaining. The Business Week predicts that the New York-Chicago special trains will soon be put back on the 18 hour schedule first fixed for them but abandoned because it was believed the speed was too high for safety. It is now believed that better equipment and roadbeds have made higher speed permissible, and we cannot doubt that it is in view of the recent accomplishment of English, French, and Canadian trains. The Twentieth Century now averages only 48 m. p. h., as against 54½ m. p. h. in 1905 under the 18 hour schedule, to say nothing of the much higher foreign records. American equipment and American management are not inferior and the safety of the traveling public can be assured as well on our roads as elsewhere. Motor and airplane competition makes a revision of schedules desirable if not necessary, and the public will respond to better service without doubt.

Editorial of the Day

FROZEN WITH HORROR.

[Providence Evening Bulletin.]

It was no trick at all, apparently, for R. R. Atcherly to steal the show in the air races at Cleveland when he appeared upon the scene in the guise of an inexperienced professor of aviation who had written a book on flying and guaranteed to put his theories into practice then and there.

Atcherly is, of course, a skilled flyer. And he flirted with death on a very safe margin. But the stands didn't know that until afterwards. And they arose en masse "frozen with horror."

How we all love to be frozen with horror—have since the beginning of history! If some admired leader wasn't freezing his public by dropping a few chosen friends on huge meat hooks, some gladiator was dimpling his opponent's chest with the point of his spear, while the horrified multitudes hung breathless. He pressed and they were deeply gratified.

But styles change. The executioner, the archer, the hangman, and Mme. Guillotine have all passed in "most admired disorder." Gravity has become the mighty antagonist. The human fly crawls up skyscraper walls, freezing the faces below with horror. Ladies turn out to watch him in blanched expectation of fainting when he falls.

But it is the tumbling aviator who holds the center of interest. He is the latest of thrillers. Mr. Atcherly is but continuing a glorious tradition—and continuing it, we must say, exceptionally well.

AMONG CAUSES OF CANCER.

A FEW points about cancer seem to be definitely established. Among them are the following:

Prolonged application of certain tars and oils can cause it. Likewise, prolonged exposure to mild irritation.

Inheritance is a factor, though not an outstanding one, in the causation.

Exposure to X-rays and radium can cause it.

Prolonged exposure to sunlight and wind may cause it.

Leucoplakia patches in the mouth are often followed by cancer, though just why is not known.

Cancer of the skin is declining.

Chimney sweep cancer has disappeared.

Cancer generally is very much on the increase.

There are some other opinions, held by good people, that are not so well established.

There has been some difference of opinion as to the responsibility of tar and oils, the reason for which is becoming known. It is pretty generally accepted now that various oils and tars differ in their ability to produce cancer. Drs. Twort investigated the cancer producing power of different mineral oils and confirmed the common view that some were quite dangerous and others but mildly so.

Venezuela oils are the most dangerous. Russia and Pennsylvania oils are only one-tenth as high. A great range was found in Texas oils. One specimen from that state had thirty times the cancer causing capacity of another from the same state. There is no report on Oklahoma oils. [What Gov. Murray will do about the discrimination against his state was not part of the report.]

Just what it is in oils and tars that causes cancer has not been decided, though there has been work which shows just about where in the mixture is located the causative material.

The spindle oils have more of it than the heavier grade oils. Certain temperature qualities of oils point to the cause. The method of refining oil has much to do with deciding how much of a cancer producer the product will be. This suggests that by using the right method of refining, oil and tar could be made entirely safe. As soon as this safe process is established a way might be found to adapt it to tobacco so that smokers might be guaranteed against cancer.

Drs. Twort found that adding lanolin to sperm oil greatly reduced its cancer producing properties. Addition of 10 per cent lanolin reduced the cancer producing power of sperm oil by 90 per cent.

RINGWORM OF NAILS.

Mrs. B. E. L. writes: You recently mentioned something about the large toenail being dead looking and very thick. You said the correspondent probably had ringworm of the nail, and to use ringworm remedies for it. As I am bothered with the same thing, will you tell me the accepted treatment for toenail ringworm?

REPLY.

The nail must be thinned, as much excess nail and skin as possible must be removed. the nail and tissues around must be treated with crystol, Castellani's carbol fuchsin paint, or other ringworm remedies with high penetrating powers. The chance of curing ringworm of the nails by home medication is very slim.

STITCHES AND HEALING.

D. writes: My brother had a leg operation some time ago. To date, one or two places where the stitches were taken out, have not healed. He has applied ointments. Do you think it would be better to leave off all salves and ointments?

REPLY.

I am sure that applying salves and ointments does no good.

If I were an old family doctor, I would say burn out the proud flesh with alum or something else, and then expose the places to direct sunlight and air.

Is it possible that there are stitches or other foreign material in the bottom of the nonhealing places?

GROUP BUYING ORGANIZATION.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A holds an annual membership in a group buying organization. B, a membership salesman, sells him a life membership which A pays for in three monthly payments. Pending the balancing of commissions on other membership sales the cash had not been turned into the association by B when A decided he did not want the life membership, demanded the return of his money and the cancellation of his application, which was duly authorized, signed, and receipted for with duplicate copy of application. What is the legal status? 1. Can A force withdrawal as above? 2. Has the association the legal right to accept his withdrawal? 3. To what extent, if any, could the membership salesman be held for return of membership money? J. F. K.

1. Yes, unless the association had agreed to accept the application so that there was something more than the mere offer on A's part.

2. We see no legal objection on the bare facts that you state.

3. If it was understood that the salesman was acting as agent only and he, in fact, was authorized to act as agent, then remedies should be enforced against his principal.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WATER METERS.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[Friend of the People.]—Some time ago the water department had their men dig holes along Grand avenue to put in water meters. They put the meter in my two story frame house and some other property, but they failed to dig to put meters in a number of three and four story buildings close by. Will you please tell me why this is and if there is a city ordinance which permits them to skip buildings in this manner? T. R.

Water meters are installed by authority of city ordinance, and our workmen when working in any neighborhood meter any premises which comes under its jurisdiction. In regard to our not metering buildings on Grand avenue, we wish to advise that the following meters have been installed in the premises shown: 1746325, 1746173, 1134897, and 1132206. The last mentioned building was metered yesterday.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

JUST WHAT IS the American language? Prof. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago, who is preparing the first American Bible, changes the verse in Proverbs, which in the King James version reads, "So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth," to "So will poverty come upon you like a footpad." But, Prof., is footpad typical of American usage? How many people say, "I was walking around the block and I was robbed by a footpad"? A lady at a fashionable dinner, telling of her experience in being held up on her way over, would never say she was waylaid by a footpad. She would much more probably say: "I was just getting out of the car when a dirty crook gimme the works and yells, 'Stick 'em up, sister, and make it snappy!'"

TREES.

Oldest of friends, the trees!
Ere fire came, or iron,
Or the shimmering corn;
When the earth mist was dank,
Ere the promise of dawn,
From the slime, from the muck—
Trees!

Nearest of friends, the trees!
They shield us from storm
And brighten our hearths;
They bring to our tables
The Autumn's fine gold;
They carol our joys
And sing to our griefs.
They cradle our young
And coffin our dead.
Nearest of friends—
Trees!

Truest of friends, the trees!
Men wander far
At a word or a nod;
Life is a grief,
Love is a chance,
Faith stumbles oft,
Joy is soon past.
Oldest of friends,
Nearest of friends,
Truest of friends—
Trees!

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

NEW YORK is itself once more; it's got another Waldorf-Astoria. Peacock alley is abloom once more, but there is still one thing missing from the picture, the Waldorf four-sided bar; but down in New York they try to be brave and say that some day, some way, somehow, even that will be back again. And, indeed, who knows? Who knows?

MR. SZE is the new foreign minister of China and will make Japan stop picking on China. Sez Sze.

THE ADMINISTRATION is cutting our navy down in a manner that makes the preparedness exponents weep and the pacifists shriek with joy. But should we disarm in the face of the fact that if the government wants to do no more than vaccinate some cows out in Iowa we've got to call out the militia?

A SPEAKEASY COSTUME is now a necessary part of what fashion editors love to call milady's toilet. One kind is of velvet with a cute little jacket and not formal, oh dear, no, not formal, for a speakeasy is anything but formal; put your hat down on the next seat and look away a minute and you will find a large, fat policeman sitting all over the hat. The fashion editors say they yield to a long felt want in designing speakeasy costumes. And if there's twenty thousand speakeasies in Chicago, as the statisticians aver, we can easily see that this is so. We should think that a tasty, not to say swell, speakeasy costume should be of mauve or crushed tomato asbestos, as somebody might spill some hootch on it, and lots of moonshine hootch these days will eat the tail off a cast iron rabbit, so it must be very hard on a dress. A speakeasy costume should have rather a dashing effect, so as to give zip and piquancy to the remark so often heard addressed to the barkeep in a speakeasy—viz.: "Listen, you poor fish, I asked for drinking whisky, not the cooking whisky. Now snap into and bring out something that's at least fifteen minutes old."

THERE IS ENTIRELY too much bomb tossing going on. We should have an amendment to the constitution forbidding the careless throwing about of pineapples. Because if it was in the constitution that no one should toss a bomb, then, of course, no one would toss a bomb. Write to your congressman today!

TO MARJORIE F. W.

Thanks for your verses, Marjorie F. W.,
I own their sweetness, gentleness, and worth.
But did the sad reflection ever trouble you
That never leaf nor bloom has known rebirth?

The leaf that falls today, the earth enfolding,
"Rests for a space," you say. A space? Ah, vain!
New flowers may spring from where the leaf lies molding,
But never bloom last summer's flowers again.

Another June, another race of roses,
Another harvest time, another fall,
Another winter—so the cycle closes,
With snow and bleak oblivion for all.

ÆOLUS.

A LOT OF PEOPLE think Cal Coolidge said "no" in his story regarding the presidential race next year. We will give two gutta percha razor blades for anybody that finds a "no" in Cal's whole article from beginning to end. "No" is not in his vocabulary. We are going to slip up on Cal some time and ask him if he is a Russian soviet or a Hindu Sun Worshiper or a Dancing Dervish or a Japanese Geisha just to try and trap him into saying "no." But what's the use?

SEN. WATSON says if short selling is continued congress will investigate the stock exchange. Which must have given Wall street a hearty laugh yesterday even if stocks did root down to new lows. H. H. K.

THE STEP-CHILD

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 2, 1915.

AMSTERDAM.—All the railroads in Germany and Belgium have been given over for the movement of German reinforcements to the western front, according to information received here.

LONDON.—The great French offensive has made new progress, the war office announced. The report tells of advances in the Givenchy wood, the capture of additional machine guns and prisoners in the Champagne region, and the stopping of a German bombardment in the Argonne by a French counter offensive. Sir John French reports that British airmen have taken part in seventeen engagements in seven days, losing only one. The Germans claim, however, that counter attacks north of Loos continue to press back the English. Alf French attacks in the Arras and Champagne regions, including a violent onslaught northwest of Massiges, broke down, Berlin says.

WASHINGTON. — The American charge that Great Britain has disrupted neutral commerce of the United States to the great profit of competing British trade is denied in a note from Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, which was made public by the state department.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 2, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Almost every development at the court of inquiry today was claimed as favorable to Rear Admiral Schley by himself and his counsel. Under cross-examination the testimony of Rear Admiral Evans of the Iowa, which was so damaging to Schley yesterday, was weakened to a considerable extent. Capt. Sigsbee, whose testimony was expected to be strongly adverse to Schley, developed into an extremely favorable witness. Admiral Evans changed his estimates of distances of the flying squadron from Santiago from thirty miles to twenty-two and other distances originally given by Evans were equally exaggerated.

CHICAGO.—In the hope that it would benefit his health, former United States Senator Charles B. Farwell, submitted to a critical surgical operation at St. Luke's hospital. It was reported that he was resting easily and his attending surgeons express the confidence that he will recover. He is 78 years old.

CHICAGO.—The wedding of Miss Mamie Rothschild, daughter of Mrs. M. M. Rothschild to Alfred S. Austrian took place at the Hotel Metropole, the ceremony being performed by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch. Another wedding of the day was that of Miss Alice Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Poole, and Leverett Thompson, who were married by Dr. J. G. K. McClure and Dr. Notman at the Poole home. Miss Bertha Poole and Murry Nelson Jr. were the only bridal attendants.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 2, 1881.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—A horse thief in the county jail named Charles Pierce murdered Teddy Franks, the county jailer, while Franks was transferring the prisoner from one cell to another. Within a few moments after the tragedy a large crowd gathered about the jail. An hour later they began the work of breaking into the jail and for two hours worked with six sledge hammers and battering rams on the gates and doors. Sheriff Aior and his deputies soon learned that they could do nothing to restrain the mob which by this time numbered fully 5,000 persons. Senator Fifer and other prominent citizens tried to talk to the leaders of the mob but in vain. The mob finally gained admittance to the jail, secured Pierce, took him to a tree on Market street and hanged him. A great many women in the vast crowd cheered on the mob. Because of the horrible tragedy the saloons were closed at 10 o'clock this evening that further trouble might be avoided. The people were inflamed because of the reversal of the sentence of Patsy Devine to be hanged for the murder of Aaron Goodfellow. The father of Goodfellow was one of the first to cry for a mob and tried to excite it to lynch both Pierce and Devine.

OPPORTUNITY FOR A PHILANTHROPIST.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—To tide our school teachers over their present payless period is it not possible for one of our philanthropists to temporarily forego one of their million dollar gifts to already wealthy universities and instead use the money in the form of an advance to the teachers?

A temporary office could be opened, a small clerical force hired and three or four per cent [per annum] interest charged to pay operating expenses and offset such losses as may be occasioned by death, etc.

As any of the 3½ per cent per month loan companies can testify, the credit risk is excellent.

J. MILTON BLACKNEY.

PUTTING THE GOLD TO WORK.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—I have been doing a lot of thinking lately [as who has not?] about that five billion dollars of gold in the vaults of the government at Washington. As I understand it, that money has been accumulated over a period of years from principally three sources: Internal revenue, tariff on imports, and payments of principal and interest on foreign loans. And yet, notwithstanding the enormous unprecedented amount of gold on hand, the government is broke; it faces a deficit for the present year and is considering raising the tariff and the income taxes.

What for? To store away more gold in its vaults, which is as useless and unproductive as if it were still unmined? Why would it not be sound economic practice to loan one billion to England without interest, another billion to Germany, on the same terms, a third billion to the states and municipalities of this country, and a fourth billion, half to the principal South American countries and half to China and Japan, reserving the fifth billion for our own uses and needs? And I mean uses, not hoarding. If an individual has a pile of money and refuses to spend it, we consider him unwise and call him a miser. How is the situation any different in the case of a nation? Why should not our five billion dollars be put to work? I ask this question in all seriousness out of my own dense ignorance on this subject and without any taint of political partisanship. HART E. BAKER.

A GALLANT POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—While waiting to enter the Adler planetarium on Saturday afternoon I saw a south park policeman, No. 177, carry a cripple from the bottom of the steps up to the door of the building. The south park system may well be proud of an officer who would take the time to do such a kind and courteous act. JOHN M. GARVEY.

PARADOX.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 22.—It seems to me President Hoover has a lot of crust asking the Legionnaires to be patriotic, and at the same time he sits back without saying a word about the wild spending of the taxpayers' money right and left trying to enforce an unenforceable law. D. J. DANCES.

WHAT LINCOLN SAID.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The quotation given by A. S. G. in today's TRIBUNE is a very free version of the words of Lincoln in his reply to Judge Douglas at the seventh and last joint debate at Alton, Oct. 15, 1858. Lincoln actually said: "That is the real issue. That is the issue that will continue when these poor tongues of Judge Douglas and myself shall be silent. It is the eternal struggle between these two principles—right and wrong—throughout the world. They are the two principles that have stood face to face from the beginning of time; and will ever continue to struggle. The one is the common right of humanity, and the other the divine right of kings. It is the same principle in whatever shape it develops itself. It is the same spirit that says, 'You toil and work and earn bread, and I'll eat it.' No matter in what shape it comes, whether from the mouth of a king who seeks to bestride the people of his own nation and live by the fruit of their labor, or from one race of men as an apology for enslaving another race, it is the same tyrannical principle." A PAIN IN THE AGRICULTURAL NECK.

Hampton, Ia., Sept. 21.—Your Mr. Paul Potter gives me a pain in the neck.

How any man so poorly informed on farming would undertake to write articles on the subject is beyond my understanding. I realize that Mr. Potter is paid for what he writes by the foot, yard, or acre and I think that he writes very nicely for a man who knows as little of his subject as he evidently does.

Why don't you put Mr. Potter in some other department and if you must have farm articles in your paper put some one on the job that knows his cornfields?

Mr. Potter's article in today's paper tells how nicely the dairy farmer is doing on thirteen cent oats, which is merely a nice way of saying that the dairy farmer will be among the last to go broke.

Your paper is a city paper [and not so bad], but for the love of heaven stick to gang wars, unpaid school teachers, overpaid public servants, love nests, and the price of "alky" in the downtown districts and let us boys out in the sticks take care of the farm situation in case there should be such a thing.

Give my regards to Mr. Potter and tell him if he should ever have the good luck to be in Hampton to look me up and I will give him the real low down on the farm business. J. W. BARNT.

GAMBLING RAIDS.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Now that our Mayor Cermak has trained his guns on the bookmakers, why don't he carry on the good work by closing the stock exchange and the board of trade? If you invest in stock or grains you either make or lose money, but if you wager on a horse the horse sometimes is scratched and you get your money back. 'Tis to laugh. H. B.

MOSLEMS YIELD TO FLATTERY AND MAY QUIT GANDHI

British Sway Followers of Allah.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—It appeared today that after all the Indian round table conference might crash on the rocks of communal discord just as the more astute British diplomats calculated it would.

For after Prime Minister MacDonald had adjourned the minorities committee for another week today at the request of Mahatma Gandhi, India's nationalist leader, to enable the Hindus and Moslems and smaller minorities to come to some kind of an agreement, the British seemed to have the Indians squabbling among themselves about their shares of the spoils—spoils which Gandhi reminded them Great Britain had not yet given them and might not, unless they patched up their differences and presented a united front.

Moslems Yield to Flattery.

To climax matters there was a strange scene in one of the committee rooms of the house of commons tonight where the Conservatives had gathered the Mohammedan delegates and flattered them with all sorts of nice words until the Moslem leaders became so pleased they were singing loudly their praise of the king-emperor and the future of India within the British empire.

"Grant us our Moslem demands and we will remain loyal subjects of the king-emperor," Sir Mohammad Shafi and Shaukat Ali told members of the commons and the house of lords, mostly Conservatives.

Gandhi Is Worried.

Lord Brentford spoke, assuring the Moslems that the British empire, which contained more followers of Allah than any other nation, "wanted to do the right thing by them now." It was an open bid for Moslem allegiance, for if they can now be split away from the Hindus the chances for Gandhi to obtain self-government are dim and the British know it.

Gandhi said tonight that things looked dark but he is still "optimistic." He will take a few minutes off tomorrow from his political worries to celebrate his birthday. He will be 62. Five hundred friends, half English, half Indian, will sit down to a fruit luncheon at noon in Westminster palace rooms. Tonight he received a purse of $2,377, which he said would be used to provide work for Indians facing starvation.

Seek Permit for Mooney to Broadcast from Prison

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Radio station WDR of Newark, N. J., today made public a telegram to Gov. James Rolph Jr. of California asking permission to arrange a broadcast by Tom Mooney from his cell in San Quentin prison so that he may state his case to the nation. Mooney was convicted for the preparedness day bombing in San Francisco in 1916.

Warden Doesn't Take to Plan.

San Quentin, Cal., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Warden James B. Holohan said today he would not permit Tom Mooney "or any one else in the prison" to make an address over the radio.

GANDHI DISCIPLE

M. H. H. RAJPUT

M. H. H. Rajput, a leader of the military caste of India, friend and supporter of Gandhi, arrived in Chicago from the Pacific coast yesterday on his way to London to confer with the mahatma. Rajput said that if Gandhi's passive campaign fails to aid India, the 1,500,000 members of his militant caste stand ready to enter the field.

Rajput was formerly in charge of Great Britain's secret service in India and is known as a philosopher. He is a graduate of Oxford university and served as a British army officer during the war.

He would not attempt to predict the outcome of the London conference, but pointed out that they are having one far reaching effect on India, because the association of Gandhi with Aga Khan is bringing the Hindus and the Moslems to a better understanding.

Raspberry Patch Bears Third Crop This Season

Pana, Ill., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Byron Anderson today displayed a branch of a raspberry bush on which were twenty-two ripe red raspberries. This is the third crop at the Anderson patch this season. Berries were fully developed and of delicious flavor.

RECEIVER GIVES REPORT ON STATE OF BAIN BANKS

Assets of Closed Chain Being Liquidated.

Financial statements showing the condition of the twelve Bain banks now in the hands of a receiver were issued yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. The condition of the banks is shown as of Aug. 31. The assets are being liquidated, but as yet no announcement has been made by the receivers as to the possible distribution of any dividends or the dates on which partial payments to the depositors may be expected. The reports on the Bain chain as certified by Irwin T. Gilruth, who was appointed by Mr. Nelson to act as receiver for all of the twelve banks, are as follows:

Attorney Wm. R. Swissler Named Master in Chancery

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday appointed Attorney William R. Swissler as a master in chancery of the Circuit court. Attorney Swissler graduated at the University of Michigan law school and has practiced in Chicago since his graduation.

EASTERN ROADS AGREE ON PLAN TO MERGE LINES

ley made by the New York Central. These rights, it was said, would have opened a way for the New York Central into Pennsylvania territory. The New York road has long considered an east-and-west route through Buffalo as its prerogative.

Fifth Trunk Line Doomed.

Today's meeting was a consummation for which leading minds in the railroad world have labored, but it also was the final quietus to two ambitious schemes for consolidation in the east. L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson, bought control of the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley some years ago with the object of creating a fifth trunk line, but in this effort he was successfully opposed by rival railroads and by the interstate commerce commission.

William H. Williams, chairman of the Wabash, then took up the fifth trunk line project, but his plans never went much beyond the paper stage. As a result of his ambitions he was deposed from the chairmanship of the Missouri Pacific when the Van Sweringens obtained control of the western system.

Nickel Plate Gets Lehigh.

Mr. Loree sold the Lehigh Valley and the Wabash to the Pennsylvania when he abandoned his plan, and these two roads figure in the agreement reached today. The Lehigh Valley is to go to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate and the Wabash will remain in Pennsylvania control. The Ann Arbor, now controlled by the Wabash, will go to the Baltimore and Ohio.

The Baltimore and Ohio has nearly 50 per cent control of the Reading and it has an agreement with the New York Central for acquisition of the latter road's 25 per cent interest in the Reading. The Western Maryland, for acquisition of control of which the Baltimore and Ohio was cited by the commission under the Clayton anti-trust act, also would go to the Baltimore and Ohio under the executives' plan. The Baltimore and Ohio is already in possession of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and the Buffalo and Susquehanna and of the property formerly held by the Chicago and Alton railroad.

The Pennsylvania also is under Clayton act citation and order for its control of the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley and is fighting the order in the courts. Through an affiliate the Pennsylvania controls the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton and the agreement provides for continuance of this control.

These New Salts Are Wonderful!

A HOST OF FAT FOLKS CAN'T BE WRONG

When you take Kruschen Salts for a few days that old indolent arm-chair feeling deserts you—it doesn't matter how fat you are—the urge for activity has got you—and you're stepping out and lively.

And best of all you like this activity—you walk and enjoy it—you thought you'd never dance again but you find you're getting as spry as ever—the old tingling active feeling reaches even your feet.

Kruschen is a combination of six minera. salts.

Why not try one $1 cent bottle—a bottle lasts 4 weeks and one bottle is enough to prove to you that Kruschen will make you feel younger—spryer—more energetic—you'll enjoy life—every minute of it—and lose fat.

As one stout woman wrote: "Kruschen Salts are worth their weight in gold to me."

A half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning helps amazingly to keep one healthy and stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys in splendid condition—frees your system from harmful toxins and acids.

Your druggist sells lots of Kruschen Salts—so do good druggists everywhere—with a guarantee of full and complete satisfaction—or money back.

"HE HAD a nice office and offered coal at bargain prices. I wanted to save money and he looked honest, that's why I paid him in advance for several tons of coal." That is what a number of people have told the Bureau in recent days after failing to get delivery of coal which they had ordered, and paid for, from a totally unknown man posing as a coal dealer.

This fly-by-nighter had obtained temporary offices and offered coal to the public at less than it costs dealers, got his money in advance, and then disappeared, leaving no forwarding address. The people who paid not only failed to get a bargain, but lost their money.

Nearly every year about this time confidence game operators victimize Chicago coal purchasers by offering bargains in coal—either getting the money in advance and then disappearing or delivering poor quality, short weight and mixed grades.

When buying coal or coke—

BEFORE YOU INVEST—INVESTIGATE. The sensible way to get the greatest return for money spent is to select a reliable dealer with an established business and reputation. Such a dealer will give you full weight of uniform quality coal, and back every sale with a guarantee of satisfaction. Protect yourself by knowing your dealer.

JURY TO WIND UP WAUKEGAN BANK INQUIRY TODAY

Indictment Due in Case of Bankers.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county announced yesterday that the special grand jury which has been investigating the collapse of the Waukegan State bank would conclude its inquiry today. Only one witness is scheduled to be heard. He is Ward Cable, formerly a director of the National Bank of the Republic, two former officers of which were named with State Auditor Oscar Nelson on conspiracy charges in true bills voted by the Lake county jury on Wednesday.

Mr. Smith said Auditor Nelson had sent word that he would appear before Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady and give bonds on conspiracy charge and on a previous indictment charging the auditor with misfeasance and malfeasance of duty because of his failure to close the Waukegan bank earlier. The bank was closed last June 11. The conspiracy indictment, naming Auditor Nelson; George Woodruff, former chairman of the board of directors of the National Bank of the Republic, and William H. Miller, former vice president, is to be returned before Judge Dady today, it was reported.

Will Seek to Indict Lawyers.

No other indictments are to be voted by the special jury, Prosecutor Smith said, but he said he intends to ask the October grand jury, which will be impaneled on Monday, to vote indictments charging perjury against two Chicago lawyers, Maurice L. Freedman and Lewis Schaffer.

The two attorneys had a suit ready to file against the stockholders of the Waukegan bank as soon as notice of its being closed was posted on the door of the bank last June 17, Mr. Smith said. Their stories as to how they had received advance intimations of the bank's suspension were not in accord with the testimony of other witnesses, according to the prosecutor.

Lawyers' Story of Trip.

The lawyers said they went to Waukegan to collect a bill of $45 and they arrived at 2:30 o'clock of the morning at which the bank was to close. About 5 o'clock they arose and hired a taxicab driven by Charles Lawrence, who said they asked him if he knew any depositor of the bank, according to testimony. He named his mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Miller, from whom they obtained permission to bring suit in her name.

Attorney Freedman testified before the grand jury on Wednesday after refusing to sign an immunity waiver, but Prosecutor Smith said he did not gain immunity thereby.

Directors Close Bank.

The Calumet National bank, 9047 Commercial avenue, was closed last night by its board of directors after a conference with A. J. Leyburn, chief national bank examiner of this district. Its president was Emil Seip. It had deposits of $2,500,000.

Five hundred depositors of the Columbia State Savings bank of 5146 West Chicago avenue, which was closed on March 30 by State Auditor Nelson, met last night at the Austin community hall, Parkside avenue and Lake street. State's Attorney Smith spoke on his activities in connection with the grand jury investigation into the closing of the Waukegan State bank.

SHOOTS WIFE TO DEATH; WOUNDS HIS DAUGHTER

Mrs. Rose Mazur, 43 years old, 3551 West 37th street, died in St. Anthony's hospital late yesterday from three bullet wounds she suffered when her husband, John, 44 years old, shot her and their daughter, Mary, 16 years old, during a quarrel in their home earlier in the day. The trouble started when Mazur accused his wife of being unfaithful. Without warning he shot her and then the daughter when the latter attempted to stop him.

Mazur was arrested by Sergt. William Duffy of the Brighton Park police. The daughter was shot in the right hip. Mazur is employed by the city water pipe extension department.

Catch Boy Lookout for Bandits After Store Holdup

Police, responding to a burglar alarm in the clothing store of Abraham Oppenheim, 4554 South Ashland avenue, early yesterday, arrived too late for the burglars but seized an 11 year old boy who acted as their "lookout." The youngster is Walter Koziel, 448 South Richmond street, who, according to the police, was once confined in the St. Charles reform school. He refused to name his two accomplices, saying that he knew one of them only as "Frank." The police found the boy standing in the store, his arms filled with clothing.

One Million Dollars

. . . But to Get It She Must Marry Her Cousin, Who Has Disappeared

OLD Alexander Harken was a strange, bitter man. He found a vicious joy in having his eccentric and degrading will read aloud to his family while he lay gasping on his deathbed. The shock of it killed his wife that night. His daughter, Anne (or was she some one else's daughter, with those fair eyes?) he left to be auctioned off for one million dollars—the value of his estate. Why did he insist that his nephew—outcast son of his estranged brother—should inherit his riches upon so queer a condition? Why was another nephew desperately anxious that his missing cousin should never be found? What was it moved Anne to her strange behavior?

These are a few of the puzzles that will thrill you in "The Road of Desperation," Mary Hastings Bradley's great new mystery romance which starts in

JUDGE REFUSES TO STOP FACTOR RECEIVER SUIT

Claim of English Birth Is Challenged.

A motion to dismiss the suit for receivership against John [Jake the Barber] Factor because of lack of jurisdiction was overruled yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

JAKE FACTOR.

The Rev. Arthur Travers Faber, an English clergyman, is demanding a receiver for the $3,000,000 trust fund which Factor established for his wife and son. It is charged that Factor established the trust with money obtained in a stock swindle for which the British government is trying to extradite Factor to England for trial on charges of defrauding British investors out of $7,000,000.

Battle Over Citizenship.

Dismissal of the suit was asked on the grounds that Factor, one time west side barber, and the complaint were both born in England. Attorney David Stansbury, representing Factor, argued that since his client is not a citizen of the United States he cannot be sued by another alien in a United States court.

Attorney John H. S. Lee of the counsel for the British crown caused a stir in court when he presented Judge Wilkerson with a photostatic copy of Factor's marriage license, taken out in 1924. This document set forth that Factor was born in Chicago. On the witness stand Factor asserted that his wife, Rella, had written in his place of birth, although he admitted that handwriting at other places in the license was his.

Factor Is Cross-Examined.

Cross-examined by Attorney Lee, Factor testified that he was born in Hull, England, in 1892, the son of a Polish rabbi. His father brought him to this country in 1905, Factor declared. When Factor admitted that he had only his father's word that he was born in England, Judge Wilkerson decided that this was only "hearsay evidence." A passport of Factor's stating that he was born in England would come under the same category, Judge Wilkerson ruled.

Attorney Stansbury asked for a continuance of fifteen days so that he could obtain a deposition on Factor's birth from his mother, now in Los Angeles. Judge Wilkerson denied the request and set Oct. 26 as the date for hearing on other contested motions.

Rules Rum Padlock Writs Needn't Be Served on Owner

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—In a decision which, if upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals, is expected to double the number of padlock decrees obtained by the government Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey ruled today that service of complaint in padlock action is valid even though the person served is not a proprietor or tenant of a place where the prohibition law has been violated. The ruling, which upsets a long accepted understanding in this district that service is not valid unless it is made upon the actual proprietor or lessee of a speakeasy or resort where liquor is sold, was opposed by Sanford H. Cohen and William E. Riseley, attorneys, who indicated that they would appeal.

DAMAGE SUIT OF SINGER AGAINST KAHN DISMISSED

Judge Throws Action Out of Court.

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The $500,000 damage suit of Lydia Lindgren, who calls herself "the Swedish nightingale," against Otto H. Kahn, music patron and banker, was dismissed today.

MME. LINDGREN.

Justice Charles J. Durham, in the Supreme court at Long Island City, held that the plaintiff had failed to establish a prima facie case. Granting the motion of Mr. Kahn's attorney, who asked the dismissal before he produced any witnesses, the justice remarked that "this type of action is not favored by the court."

He held that Mme. Lindgren and her attorney, Emil N. Baar, had failed to establish that there had been an agreement between her and Mr. Kahn and further that the discontinuance of a slander suit did not constitute consideration for a legal agreement.

In 1929 Mme. Lindgren filed a suit against Mme. Julie Claussen, another "Swedish nightingale," who was alleged to have said that Mme. Lindgren was "no singer," but a friend of Mr. Kahn and that he "got all her engagements for her."

She testified in the present action that Mr. Kahn asked her to withdraw that suit and that he promised and gave her $13,000, and further promised, but did not give her, a $3,000 annuity and $135,000 for a trust fund.

In 1926, she said, Mr. Kahn gave her a $150,000 trust fund, but she spent almost all of this during a concert tour which she said she made in Europe on "the ill advice" of Mr. Kahn.

George W. Whiteside, counsel for Mr. Kahn, in his plea for the dismissal of the case declared there were no questions in the suit needing legal consideration, and termed it a "nuisance case, with no legal standing."

The motives behind its filing, he said, were apparent, including Mme. Lindgren's desire for the limelight, and he praised Mr. Kahn for not being cowed but having courage to go through with the matter in court.

It was an outrage that the case ever got to court, Mr. Whiteside said.

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

AAA REPORT

certifies to excellent lubrication by New Iso-Vis in Willys-Knight

1 Iso-Vis Motor Oil did not thin out from dilution.

2 During the entire test of 9,000 miles, all parts of engine and chassis were lubricated effectively.

3 Consumption: Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy) in 1,000 mile test at 30 m. p. h.—1.31 qts. (average for all cars). At higher speeds, all oils showed greatly increased consumption.

4 Carbon: only 2.7 grams per cylinder at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy).

5 Cylinder Wear: too slight to measure.

WILLYS-KNIGHT visiting dealers on long tour

THIS CAR is something to get excited about. See it at your Willys-Knight dealer. It zipped through a year's average mileage in 24 days and nights at high speed on the Indianapolis Speedway. Note the fine condition of its engine after the strain it went through.

Your car will never go through such an ordeal. But its engine deserves the protection that this engine enjoys. New Iso-Vis Motor Oil protects because it will not thin out from dilution.

Read the A. A. A. report. These facts were taken from the certified results of the 13-car lubrication study conducted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

Enjoy this type of lubrication in your car. When you change your oil, fill up with New Iso-Vis.

New Polarine also is refined by our new process—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25c a quart

MUSCLE SHOALS COMMISSION HAS THREEFOLD PLAN

Will Be Reported at Once to President.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A joint commission appointed on recommendation of President Hoover reported today that it has decided on a threefold plan for operation of the government $150,000,000 power project at Muscle Shoals.

The commission, meeting here for a series of conferences, announced that the plan, which has in view primarily the manufacture of fertilizer by private interests, would be recommended to President Hoover forthwith.

The commission's statement set forth that the manufacture of fertilizer, cooperative scientific research, and establishment of industrial chemical operations as an essential adjunct to the manufacture of fertilizer, had been found "economically feasible and desirable," and would be the main features embodied in its proposal to the President.

"For Quantity Production."

The statement said the commission had found the properties could be used and operated for "quantity production and manufacture of types of commercial fertilizer of greater concentration than those which are now sold the farmer."

Cooperative scientific research and experimental practices by agricultural agencies, national, state and county, it was explained, would be desirable "in the development of scientific methods of improvement of soil fertility and for introduction of methods as developed among fertilizer users."

"It is the definite conclusion of the commission," the statement added, "that the foregoing public benefits can best be obtained by private operation under lease contracts through cooperative negotiations."

Suggests Leasing.

The commission's plan, which it explained is tentative and subject to change, provides the leasing of the properties to a lessee who will pay a "reasonable rental on mutually agreeable terms" for a period of fifty years, with the Boulder dam clause on renegotiation after ten years as to the price, to be included.

"Preference as a lessee should be accorded to a corporation, exclusively owned and controlled by an organization of farmers," the statement said, "provided such organization is prepared financially and otherwise to carry out the purposes of legislation equally effectively or better than privately owned corporations."

ELOPING HEIRESS

Mrs. Thomas Cartledge Jr. of Phialdelphia, who before her elopement and marriage in Maryland was Miss Jane Stetson, 22 year old daughter of John B. Stetson Jr. of Philadelphia, former ambassador to Poland.

CHICAGO RADIO POWER LIMITS ARE UNCHANGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Upholding the right of station WGN to its exclusive channel with high power, the federal radio commission today denied without reservation the application of station WCFL of the Chicago Federation of Labor for the facilities of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station.

Simultaneously the commission decided the entire high power issue in which two dozen leading stations were involved, authorizing nine stations in various parts of the country to use 50,000 watts and granting power of 25,000 watts to a half dozen others. Station WMAQ, affiliated with the Chicago Daily News, was denied outright its application for 50,000 watts, and under the decision remains with an output of only 5,000 watts. WGN operates with 25,000 watts.

Chicago Situation Unchanged.

Apparently the commission kept hands off the muddled Chicago radio situation because of the resentment of other areas in the middle west to the circumstance that the Chicago district now has more than its full quota of stations. W-G-N had been recommended, among four other applicant stations in Chicago, for the maximum power, to fill one of the two vacancies existing in the fourth radio zone, but the commission left the setup unchanged in denying the applications of WCFL, WMAQ, and WBBM, of Columbia, for 50,000 watts.

Reasons for its decision have not yet been made public by the commission. Statements of fact probably will be forthcoming within a few days, and until that time, the decisions are understood to be tentative. The action clears away the high power issue which has dangled before the commission for more than a year. It is probable, however, that petitions to the Court of Appeals here will be noted by one or more of the rejected applicants.

Examiner Is Overridden.

The commission's actions override Chief Examiner Yost in two instances in so far as the 50,000 watt grants were concerned. Originally Mr. Yost had recommended that all qualified applicants be accorded the maximum power, but the commission remanded his report with instructions that he select from among the applicant stations those he believed best qualified, from the standpoint of all around service to fill the eight vacancies which existed at that time. Under commission regulations only 20 of the 40 cleared channels may accommodate stations of the maximum power, or four to each zone.

In submitting his supplemental report under protest last February, Mr. Yost recommended that of the seven applicants in the fourth zone, stations W-G-N and WCCO at Minneapolis be given the maximum power assignments. He recommended increases to 25,000 watts for such of the other stations as did not have that power.

Iowa Station Substituted.

The commission, because of its intent to steer clear of the Chicago situation, substituted station WHO—WOC at Des Moines—Davenport, Ia., for W-G-N. It also overrode Mr. Yost on his recommendation that WMAQ be given 25,000 watts and denied WCFL'S request for the W-G-N facilities. Station WTMJ of Milwaukee was denied outright its request for the cleared channel occupied jointly by stations WENR and WLS, in Chicago, both now using the same 50,000 watt transmitter.

At the same time the commission took occasion to decide several other high power cases which were not heard as a part of the general hearings last September. It granted to station KFAB at Lincoln, Neb., an increase in power to 25,000 watts, but denied its application for full time on the 770 kilocycle channel, which it shares with station WBBM. Station WOWO at Fort Wayne, Ind., was denied its application for 50,000 watts and full time, as was station WFBM of Indianapolis, which sought to wrest the 1160 kilocycle channel from WOWO and station WWVA of Wheeling, W. Va., sharing time on the channel.

BROKER FOR WOLF FREED ON BOND IN TWO INDICTMENTS

Weiss Gives Bail on Theft Charges.

Two indictments charging larceny by bailee were returned by the grand jury yesterday against David D. Weiss, tailor-broker, a member of the Chicago Board of Trade. The indictments were returned before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court. Weiss handled approximately $1,000,000 worth of stocks for Walter E. Wolf, embezzler of $3,666,929 from the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

After the indictments were returned Weiss posted $12,000 in Liberty bonds as bail and was released. Detectives arrested him Wednesday night. It is reported that two more true bills are to be returned against Weiss.

Weiss is charged with separate thefts of $55,000, $40,000, $16,000, and $15,000. Since Weiss is alleged to have stolen these amounts from Wolf, who had in turn purloined the stocks from the bank, the state placed three counts in each indictment. One count charged theft from Wolf, another from the bank, and a third charged theft from both Wolf and the bank. Wolf has already pleaded guilty to ten charges of embezzlement and will be sentenced next Thursday.

Attorney Leonard Ettelson, representing Weiss, demanded to know why his client had "been singled out of all the brokers who handled Wolf's transactions." Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers replied that the investigation had not been completed.

COL. M'CULLOCH, ENGINEER, DIES AT 64 IN EAST

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Col. Ernest McCullough, widely known engineer, soldier and editor, died today at his Long Island City home after a three day illness. He was 64.

Col. McCullough was a specialist in building, designing and construction. He was born in New York in 1867. He was graduated from the Chicago Institute of Technology in 1885.

Col. McCullough practiced engineering in Syracuse, N. Y., and was a registered architect in Illinois. He made a brilliant record in the world war and was wounded near Cambrai in 1917.

Col. McCullough's first wife, the former Elizabeth T. Seymour of Troy, N. Y., died in 1918. The following year he married Mlle. Therese Claquin at Tours, France, who survives, with three children by his first wife.

HENRY C. LYTTON WILL DEDICATE REMODELED HUB

Henry C. Lytton, veteran State street merchant, who retired from business eleven years ago, will return to Chicago next week to dedicate the remodeled Hub store, his son, George Lytton, president of the company, said yesterday.

Mr. Lytton will bring to Chicago with him his prediction of the trends in architecture, styles, and customs during the next century. A scroll bearing those predictions will be placed in a vault behind a bronze plaque in the new arcade entrance to the store.

Mr. Lytton, who is 85 years old, is still an ardent golfer. He recently returned to the United States after spending a year touring in Europe.

Students at Illinois All Singing "How Dry I Am"

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—"How dry I am" is likely to become the campus song at the University of Illinois. Dr. J. H. Beard, university health officer, announced today that the institution's water supply is unfit for drinking and ordered that all campus drinking fountains be turned off until a new filtration plant is completed. Dr. Beard said he did not know how long the students would be deprived of water.

William H. Dicks, 76, Art Dealer Many Years, Dead

William H. Dicks, 76 years old, a dealer in rare art at 624 South Michigan avenue, died suddenly last night in his apartment at the Sheridan Surf hotel. His death was attributed to heart failure. Mr. Dicks was considered an authority on art, and had followed his profession in Chicago for more than 50 years. He was born in England. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Isabelle Holden Dicks.

Dr. Chisholm, Canadian Historian, Dies at 90

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Dr. Thomas Chisholm, 90, who sat as Conservative member of parliament for East Huron from 1904 to 1911, died tonight, a victim of heart trouble complicated by pneumonia. He wrote a number of historical works in addition to carrying on a wide practice as physician. Among his literary works was "Rhyming History of England" and "Dialogues of English History."

THREE ELECTRIC LINES WIN IN SPEED CONTESTS

The three electric interurban railways serving metropolitan Chicago yesterday made a clean sweep in the 1931 international speed contest. Announcement of the winners was made at the 50th annual convention of the American Electric Railway association in Atlantic City, N. J.

First honors and the electric traction speed trophy were awarded to the Chicago, North Shore, and Milwaukee railroad. Second and third awards went, respectively, to the Chicago, South Shore, and South Bend railroad, and the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroad.

In winning the speed trophy, the North Shore line established an official elapsed speed record of 48.01 miles an hour, including stops, over a distance of 88.02 miles between the loop in Chicago and downtown Milwaukee. The elapsed time speed of the South Shore line was 47.6 miles an hour, including stops, between Chicago and South Bend, while the record of the Aurora and Elgin line was 41.5 miles an hour over an operating route of 41.5 miles.

Chicago's electric roads have held first and second honors steadily since 1927.

REV. J. J. O'BRIEN IS DEAD; PASTOR AT BROOKFIELD

The Rev. John J. O'Brien, 45 years old, pastor of St. Barbara's Roman Catholic church, of Brookfield, died yesterday in Mercy hospital.

The Rev. Father O'Brien had been pastor of St. Barbara's for eight years. Previous to that he was an assistant pastor at St. Pius' church and at All Saints church. He was ordained in 1910 by the late Archbishop Quigley. He received his early education at Niagara Falls, N. Y., and his college training at old St. Ignatius college in Chicago. In his college days he won considerable renown as an athlete.

He is survived by his father, J. D. O'Brien, two sisters, Margaret L. and Helen C. O'Brien, and four brothers, Frederick, Arthur, Daniel, and Joseph.

Funeral service will be at St. Barbara's church tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. Bishop B. J. Shell will celebrate the mass, assisted by the Rev. Luke Lyons. Burial will be in Mount Carmel.

WILLIS HERRICK, OAK PK. BANKER, IS DEAD AT 66

Willis S. Herrick, 66 years old, president of the Avenue State bank of Oak Park, died last night in his home, 175 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, following a stroke of paralysis on Sunday.

Mr. Herrick was one of the founders of the bank thirty years ago. He was president of Herrick, Auerbach & Vastine, insurance underwriters, and a member of the Union League club. His father, the late O. W. Herrick, was one of the original residents of Oak Park.

Surviving Mr. Herrick are his widow and one daughter.

Gen. Pershing and His Son Stop in City on Way East

Addison's Disease Victim Shows Much Improvement

Mrs. Andrew Nelson, 4103 North Overhill avenue, Norwood Park, who is suffering from the rare Addison's disease, was reported yesterday as having greatly improved since she was taken to the Billings hospital on Sept. 9. Cortin, an extract obtained from cattle, is administered as a remedy.

CHICAGO'S TROLLEY BUSES PROVE WORTH, TRACTION MEN TOLD

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Experience with the trolley buses in Chicago, where the largest installation in the world has been made by the Chicago surface lines, shows that there is a definite place for this new vehicle in urban transportation, according to E. J. McIlraith, staff engineer of the Chicago company.

Speaking before the American Electric Railway association today on "Costs and Competition in Street Use" he declared that the trolley bus is economical and more efficient for service where there is not a heavy density of population. Where street traffic is congested, however, or where a high frequency of service is desired, the street cars serve better.

"Street cars can move faster in dense traffic than can steered vehicles," Mr. McIlraith said. "The bus must pull from the curb into a moving lane of traffic and the other vehicles on the street do not keep out of the way of the bus as they do in the case of street cars operaing on fixed rails."

G. A. Richardson, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Surface lines since 1923, was named president of the association. Mr. Richardson is president of the Union League club of Chicago and is interested in several other civic activities.

MOSCOW BURIES AUTO-TRACTOR CHIEF AS A HERO

MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Another hero of the revolution—M. S. Mikhailov-Ivanov, late director of tractor and automobile construction in the soviet union—was buried today in Red square. Thousands attended the ceremony.

Mikhailov-Ivanov, who was a member of the presidium of the supreme economic council, died from typhus three days after he had speeded up the Stalingrad tractor plant to a record production of 100 machines a day.

Troops in winter uniforms, mounted and afoot, stood at attention while Vyacheslaff Molotoff, president of the council of commissars, and C. K. Ordjonikidze, president of the supreme economic council, delivered speeches from the balustrade of Lenin's tomb.

Col. Simmons, Publisher of Railway Age, Is Dead

APPEALS COURT TO HEAR CAPONE AND GUZIK CASES

The October calendar of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals was announced yesterday by Frederick G. Campbell, clerk of the court. The fall session of the court will begin Oct. 6.

The appeal of Al Capone from a six months' jail sentence for contempt of court is among the cases to be set for oral arguments. Other cases include the appeal of Jack Guzik, business manager of the Capone syndicate, from a five year sentence to Leavenworth prison and a fine of $17,500 for violation of the income tax law, and the appeal of County Assessor Gene G. Oliver from a sentence of eighteen months at Leavenworth and a fine of $5,000 also for income tax evasion.

The contempt conviction of Capone arose from his failure to testify before the grand jury in a booze investigation on the ground that he was recuperating from an illness in Florida. Evidence disclosed that he was enjoying the races and other events in Florida while supposedly ill in bed.

I. C. C. IS ASKED TO ORDER RADIO RATES REDUCED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—For the first time in the history of the interstate commerce commission that agency has been asked by a corporation to compel a radio broadcasting company to reduce its rates.

The Sta-Shine Products company, Inc., of Freeport, L. I., engaged in the sale of furniture polish, has just filed a complaint against the National Broadcasting company, station WGBB, of Freeport, and H. H. Carman, its proprietor.

It was contended that the company had sent messages via the Freeport radio station to points in Connecticut and had paid for them, and that while the company wishes to continue sending messages, it is restrained from doing so by the fact that the rates are "exorbitant." The complaint recited that the company was charged $146.43 for 15 minutes for transmitting the message through one station, and $1,480.42 for "so-called 'chain transmission,' all to the great damage of complainant."

GRANTS STEWART NEW HEARING ON CANAL DISCIPLINE

Criminal Lawyer Appears to Protest Penalty.

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor yesterday indicated he will reconsider the one year suspension from law practice recommended against William Scott Stewart, widely known criminal lawyer, for alleged participation in pay roll abuses charged against the sanitary district law department during the Cowen regime. Attorney Stewart appeared in court to present personally his objections to the report which the judge, sitting as commissioner of the Illinois Supreme court, is to deliver in final form this month.

Attorney Stewart insisted he was not on the pay roll at the time charged in the Chicago Bar association's information against 55 lawyers. He declared his compensation was received for past services. The judge has recommended the disbarment of nine attorneys, one and two year suspensions against 38, discharges for seven and referred one for additional instruction.

Points to Evidence of Work.

"The immediate issue in the case of Mr. Stewart," said Judge Taylor, "is to decide between the bar association's representation that he was on the pay roll of the district and his sworn testimony that he was being paid for work done on labor matters in the past. There is, however, uncontradicted evidence of the work done, and in this case the commissioner's original finding, justifying a one year suspension, may have been in error."

Attorney W. R. Matheny, representing the bar association, asked a continuance to offer legal authorities to support his contention that Stewart violated legal ethics. The judge postponed a decision until next Monday.

Objections were presented in behalf of Roy J. Egan, David S. Chesrow, Lee V. Roeder, and Eugene M. Hines, against whom recommendations of a year's suspension were made. Their attorneys held they had performed adequate services for compensation received and they should receive no other punishment than a reprimand.

Garriott Objections Heard.

Lengthy objections were presented in behalf of John C. Garriott Jr., a state representative, for whom the judge has recommended a two year suspension. In the information Garriott was charged with obtaining a position on the district from T. J. Cruse, former president. Garriott is said to have arranged to have the name of his brother-in-law, Hugh Miller, placed on the pay roll for a short period until Garriott filled the place permanently.

Garriott was said to have collected a check of $150 for Miller and taken it to him. Miller refused the check, but it was accepted by his wife, it is charged. Miller later reimbursed the district. Attorney James J. Danaher argued Garriott had not profited by the transaction. This point was admitted by Attorney Matheny, who held Garriott was responsible for the loss of $150 to the coffers of the district.

The judge took the cases of all five lawyers under advisement.

Kirk Withdraws Complaint in Assault on Son in Auto

Wallace F. Kirk, advertising man living at 1100 Lake Shore drive, yesterday withdrew a complaint on which Louis Sarrolli, 1000 Polk street, was arrested on Wednesday, charged with beating Mr. Kirk's son, Samuel, 19 years old. On Tuesday night young Kirk started to take Sarrolli to a hospital after the latter had been hurt in an automobile accident. On the way Sarrolli beat the youth and threw him out of the automobile, Samuel Kirk charged. Mr. Kirk said he believed Sarrolli had been punished enough by an overnight confinement at a police station. Two companions of the prisoner were also released.

SUES FOR RING

[Acme Photo.]

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of Lillian Russell, actress, obtained today a Supreme court order directing Mrs. Dorothy Caruso, widow of Enrico Caruso, to show cause why she shouldn't be examined before trial in an action to recover a diamond and emerald ring. Mrs. Calvit, who says she received the ring from the late Alexander B. Moore, former ambassador to Spain, desires to know under what circumstances Mrs. Caruso obtained it.

Shot by Man in Auto as He Stands in Street

Leo Ruddy, 21 years old, of 3328 Auburn avenue, was shot last night by an unidentified assailant as he stood on the corner of 33d street and Auburn avenue with his friend, Louis Ukrin, 3426 Wallace street. An automobile containing two men drove up and one of the men in the car ordered the two on the sidewalk to "beat it." Ruddy and Ukrin started to leave and the men in the automobile fired a shot which inflicted a flesh wound in Ruddy's back.

Mrs. Lionel Barrymore Sued for Auto Damages

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Lionel Barrymore, known in motion pictures as Irene Fenwick, today was sued for $10,300 as the result of an automobile accident here last July 15. F. C. Conners of Los Angeles charged the actress' sedan crashed into a smaller automobile driven by him, causing injuries to his wife, Marie, and daughter, Jean.

RICE MORE THAN BREAKFAST FOOD TO A GOOD COOK

It Can Please the Palate at Other Meals.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

Although the story of rice is old to most people it's always an interesting tale. From time immemorial rice has been used in eastern countries, and since it was introduced into this country more than two centuries ago Americans have looked upon it as one of the principal cereals. Lest many housewives who are planning ways and means of cutting down on their food budgets this winter forget, it is well to remind them that rice is one of the most inexpensive foods on the market today. Not only is it cheap but it rates high in nutritive value.

Rice has long been noted as a breakfast cereal and aptly fills the bill when served either hot or cold, and covered with cream and sugar. But if the cook is resourceful the use of rice need not stop at the morning repast. There are many ways of serving it at other meals.

For luncheon rice may be combined with cheese or vegetables or used in salads, muffins, croquettes or fritters. At the dinner table it may be found boiled plain and pinch hitting for potatoes, macaroni or spaghetti. There are also rice puddings and rice soups which have always been popular.

Much Is in the Cooking.

When cooked correctly each grain of rice is white and separate. If the simple cooking directions set forth below are followed the rice should be a success.

Use a two quart pot to boil a cup of rice. Fill the pot with water and let it come to a boil. Meanwhile, wash the rice in several waters or in running water until clear. When water has boiled, add two tablespoons of salt. Then add rice slowly so as not to stop the boiling. Keep the water boiling actively until the rice is soft, which should take about 20 minutes. This may be ascertained by pressing two or three grains between the finger and the thumb.

When the rice is thoroughly done, remove the pot from the stove and empty the water and rice into a collander. Shake the collander well to remove the surplus water. The rice is then ready for use. Many cooks follow the above directions and then run clear cold water through the rice, placing it in a heated oven for about two minutes to dry out.

It Can Be Rejuvenated.

Above all, don't forget that the left over rice can be rejuvenated. Put the cold rice in boiling water and stir with a fork for a full minute. Then pour into the collander again and resalt. The warmed over rice will be as fresh as it was at the first cooking.

Here are a few recipes for rice dishes which will probably come in handy at the present time:

RICE SOUFFLE.

1 heaping tablespoon flour.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 cup milk.
1 cup grated cheese.
2 cups cooked rice.
2 eggs.

Melt the butter. Add the flour, salt and milk. Cook together and add the cheese. Stir over the fire and when cheese has melted add the rice. Beat the eggs well and then fold into the rice. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves four.

SAUSAGE AND RICE.

1 can tomatoes.
1 lb. sausage meat.

Cook rice in boiling salted water. Drain and add the seasoned tomatoes. Put in a baking dish and cover thickly with sausage meat which has been made into patties. Bake until sausage is done and brown in a moderate oven for 30 or 45 minutes. Serves six.

Dan Ain't Got No Dispepsy

By Edward F. Younger.

Docteh kim out f'm Glosteh t' see him t'day
An' say: "Yo' is got a swell case of dispepsy, Dan,
Dat's f'm eatin' too much," docteh man say.

Dan whimper 'roun' an' say he nev' did eat too much,
But Sadday night he went t' a ba'hbecue,
Wh'ah he et a few poun's of roas' beef an' such

Dey had slavins of stewed rice an' 'lasses pie
An' p'simmon beer an' some blackberry juice
An' cawfy so pow'ful h'it tas' jes' lak lye

Wh'ah dey flung in a big ol' eyster stew
An' some sahdeens, jes' a can er two.

Den, atter Dan git home, he calls t' min'
He et pickles an' pie, t' sorter fill up,
An' dug int' some pig knuckles dat he fin',
An' drunk a pint of 'lasses, jes' t' dreen de cup.

But he doan' know whut's werritin' dat man.

Cranberries brightened up most of the retail store windows in Chicago this week and the price began to come down preparatory to the flush supply which usually prevails for the holiday seasons of Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's. Prices ranged, retail, from 12½ to 15 cents a pound for the berries.

Potatoes as Low as 19 Cents.

Other average price quotations in a survey of shopping areas found most fruits and vegetables closely following any changes in the wholesale marts. Fresh foods consequently are being sold at generally fair margins over the wholesale prices. Those who like their green appetizers such as radishes and onions can get them for as low as 10 cents for three bunches.

Potatoes are 19 to 25 cents a peck for good quality tubers. Their companions, the sweet potatoes, are selling depending on variety. Nancy Halls are around 4 cents a pound, while the Jerseys are 4½ to 5 cents a pound.

Rutabagas, getting more plentiful as cooler weather increases the harvest in the fields and also the demand in the stores and homes, are selling for 3½ to 4 cents a pound, with some stores charging 5 cents per pound.

Prices on Other Vegetables.

Other vegetable prices include retail quotations on Hubbard squashes. One large group of stores sells the squash "by the pound," charging 3½ cents for each pound. Dry yellow onions are five pounds for 19 cents and up to 5 cents a pound.

Cabbage is 2½ cents a pound retail. Buying tomatoes leads to the discovery of two sets of prices. One price is in a range of two pounds for 15 cents, based on "repacks." A straight price of 5 cents a pound prevails generally on home grown tomatoes.

GOOD BEEF AND PORK IN DEMAND IN SEPTEMBER

Beef of good quality and pork products found a better demand during the month of September, according to reports of authoritative wholesale meat centers in Chicago this week. All pork products are reported to be selling at prices much lower than the range of a year ago.

Hills Bros Coffee is roasted as no other coffee is roasted

Patented, continuous process roasts a little at a time—instead of in bulk

Hills Bros Coffee is never under-roasted nor over-roasted!

• • •

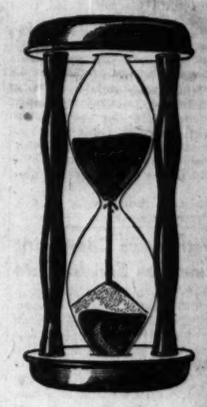
Hills Bros.
The Original Vacuum Pack
COFFEE
No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it FRESH ALWAYS!



As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

a little at a time

. . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

This patented, revolutionary roasting method produces a flawless flavor—and assures uniformity, too! Hills Bros. Coffee never disappoints your taste, because it never varies in flavor!

Coffee, to have a flawless flavor, must be roasted exactly right. Hills Bros. Coffee is! It's roasted a little at a time . . . evenly, continuously, by Controlled Roasting.

Ordinary coffees are roasted in bulk—several hundred pounds at a time. It is physically impossible to control the roast of such coffees. They may be under-roasted or become over-roasted. A shade either way causes you dissatisfaction. There is only one coffee that you know is always perfectly roasted . . . that's Hills Bros. Coffee! For Hills Bros. alone can use Controlled Roasting.

Hills Bros. has its original flavor and aroma every time and everywhere you buy it! Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of Hills Bros.' vacuum cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh.

Make some Hills Bros. Coffee. Take a deep breath of that rich aroma—rising on those fragrant wisps of steam drifting off the cup. But that's only part of the pleasure. Wait till you drink it down! Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can. Order some today.

BY MARY MEADE.

This column wants to make a bow and say, "I'm glad to meet you, and I'm glad to be here. From now on, I'll make an appearance every Friday. My purpose is to help all the mothers who want, or need me to advise them on the feeding of their school children. Please address me in care of Mary Meade, THE TRIBUNE."

Today's subject is malnutrition—a word commonly used and commonly misunderstood by the best of us. In definition it means "faulty nutrition" or improper feeding, which includes the use of too much food, too little food, or the wrong combination of foods in our daily diets.

It is frequently confused with and employed as a synonym of "undernourishment." We have a tendency when speaking of a malnourished child to always picture the thin, wan faced, hollow chested type with which we are all familiar.

Difficult to Recognize.

Many mothers do not recognize malnourishment in their own immediate families. An excellent indication of good health is a regular gain in height and weight each month. The gain will vary slightly in different seasons, the youngsters often adding better than the necessary poundage during the summer months. Unfortunately there is no specific standard of weight for the different ages, because of the particular physical inheritance of each child.

Of course, there are instances when children have achieved normal height and weight, and yet are suffering from malnutrition. Undue fatigue, either from over-work, or over-play, extreme nervousness, dark circles under the eyes, pale and anemic complexions, stooped shoulders, are a few of the signs by which you may recognize such a condition.

Physical defects in a child, lack of sufficient sleep, lack of fresh air and sunlight, and an irritating home atmosphere are contributing causes, but doctors generally agree that the most serious cause of malnutrition is an incorrect diet. Luckily, mothers can correct existing conditions with a little assistance, and it need not be difficult for them to do.

We have discussed the causes and symptoms of malnutrition. Now let's consider the remedies. First of all, outside the realm of food, see that your child has eleven or twelve hours of sleep every night.

Avert Over-Fatigue.

You may even have to supplement this period of rest with a nap after lunch in the beginning. Curb his activities, both work and play, so that he does not become over-fatigued. Have him out of doors as often as weather and time permit, preferably in the sun. If these measures, plus proper feeding, do not produce the desired gain have him examined by a doctor. He may have some physical affliction of which you are unaware.

It should be remembered that when dealing with the undernourished youngster he may eat two or three times the amount of food necessary for the normal child of his age and height. The best way to tuck this much food inside of him is to supply a midmorning, or midafternoon lunch—providing the lunch does NOT spoil his dinner or supper appetite.

Quart of Milk a Day.

A glass of milk—pasteurized—is a good midday lunch. One quart a day is needed by every child, for no other food has as many elements necessary for growth. In cases of undernourishment the amount should be increased to one and one-half quarts, though some of the milk may be admitted to the diet in the preparation of the other foods.

Weekly diets for children—and they are equally good for adults—should consist of one quart of milk, a generous cup of vegetables (some of them raw if the children can chew them thoroughly), a generous cup of fruit (some of which, such as oranges, should be eaten raw, also), and two ounces each of the protein and energy foods, each day. Protein and energy foods often are one and the same—for example, eggs, which supply protein in the white and "energy" in the yolk. Eliminate sweets and stimulating drinks (coffee and tea) from the diets of growing children. Serve them two ounces of meat daily, but no more. A medium sized lamb chop is the equivalent of an ounce of meat.

I might go on indefinitely about food, though a general summing up will probably serve for the average malnourished child. He can eat practically, if he is over six years of age, any food you serve the rest of your family. The exceptions are rich pastries, candies, fried foods [this includes meat, vegetables, etc., which have been treated to pan, or deep fat frying methods] and stimulating drinks.

WEDDING DINNER OF 32 YEARS AGO REALLY A FEAST

Contrasts Sharply with Modern Simplicity.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

What a vast change this twentieth century—or 1931 more in particular—has wrought in this business of entertaining. Elaboration both in menu and decoration has gracefully given way to simplicity and a kindly thought for the physical welfare of guests. How fortunate since so much of the world's wealth has gone up in smoke!

A pleasant reminder of food fashions thirty odd years ago comes to my attention in the form of a caterer's menu for a wedding dinner [a feast it might well be called] dated Nov. 3, 1899. There were seven courses between the blue points and the demi tasse with enough frills and fancies to keep up with the puffed sleeves and voluminous skirts of the day.

An Old Time Caterer.

Julius Carl, owner of a "buffet and restaurant" at the corner of Wabash avenue and Randolph street in that day, was the caterer for the event and his prices were quite as much a departure from 1931 estimates as was the menu. With all of the flowers and decoration necessary for both the ceremony and the reception, Mr. Carl served 30 persons for $60.

The menu is too good to miss for it is so typical of 1899. It follows:

Blue points.
Noodle soup.
Salmon trout, sauce piquante.
Potatoes parisienne.
Filet of beef. Mushrooms. Green peas.
Roman punch.
Turkey, cranberry. Asparagus.
Duck and apple compote.
Chicken, mayonnaise. Potato salad.
Crisp celery. Olives. Salted almonds.
Cucumbers. Radishes.
Fruits in season.
Assorted fancy cakes.
Wedding cakeboxes.
Ice cream and coffee.

How generous Mr. Carl was with his courses of meat and fowl! And although asparagus and green peas were quite out of season in November, he favored his guests with these fresh vegetables.

Greater Simplicity Today.

After the congratulations today, it is more likely to be a wedding breakfast, a glorified tea, or a comparatively simple wedding supper. This, of course, must vary in degree, according to the family fads and fortunes. "Some people," said a sewing woman once to a kind employer, "are different from most; all aren't the same as some." And this philosophy applies admirably to those who are conducting wedding arrangements.

Since so many of our habits have become a good deal straightened the last couple of years, simplicity in everything is the sensibly enforced rule, even those who used to set elaborate fashions. For an afternoon wedding followed by a reception when every one comes together to nibble sandwiches and cake before the departure of the bride and groom, one well known Chicago caterer suggests the following menu:

Salted almonds.
Celery in branches.
Assorted open sandwiches.
Pineapple sherbert.
Petit fours.
Coffee.

He will serve 30 persons this menu for $1.75 per person or 100 or more persons the same menu for $1 per person.

A Typical Supper.

More interesting perhaps in relation to the 32 year old menu is the supper menu suggested by this same caterer. It is a five course meal served to 30 persons for $3.50 per person or to 100 or more people for $2.25 per person. Here it is:

Celery. Mixed olives. Radishes.
One-half stuffed lobster, Ravigotte.
Tomato bouillon.
Breast of chicken. Virginia ham. Mushrooms.
Golden bantam corn.
Potato croquettes.
Fresh grapefruit salad.
Orange sherbert.
Coffee.

And still another wedding supper menu, a little less elaborate, costs only $2.50 per person for 30 persons or $1.75 for 100 people or more.

Orange and Grapefruit supreme.
Celery in branches. Mixed olives.
Grilled filet mignon, mushroom sauce
Au gratin potatoes. Asparagus tips.
Heart of lettuce and tomato.
Special vanilla ice cream. Petit fours.
Coffee.

Perhaps some of our readers have menus or reminders of luncheons, dinners, or parties several decades ago. We shall be glad to receive them for publication on this page.

ZUCCHINI AN OLD ITALIAN VEGETABLE, BUT NEW TO U. S.

Some of Chicago's most exclusive clubs recently announced on their menus the discovery of a "new" vegetable developed out in the Imperial valley of California. It is called succhini.

Various ways of serving the vegetable have been developed by American chefs in their zeal for variety. But for one traveled club member the newness of the succhini was destroyed when he sampled it. He found that years ago he had eaten this vegetable in Italy. It is an edible squash, highly prized among the Italians.

Remove Stains Before They Dry on Materials

Removal of stains from household linens and clothing is an ever present problem to the home maker, yet with accurate methods and a few precautions, most stains can be removed at home. Knowing the type of stain and removing it before it becomes dried into the material are two essential points to remember, according to Miss Frieda Stoll, clothing specialist on the Purdue university home economics extension staff. When a stain has been allowed to dry into materials it permeates the fibers and makes its removal more difficult.

BEFORE YOU BUY GOODS IN CANS READ THE LABEL

Housewives will find new words, printed in boldface type, upon the labels of some canned peaches, peas, pears, tomatoes, cherries, and apricots packed this season and going on the market now. The words are: "Below U. S. standard; low quality but not illegal."

What do the words mean, and what should the housewife do when she finds them on a particular can?

Announces Official Standards.

The words mean that the national pure food law has been amended to authorize the secretary of agriculture to prescribe and formulate quality standards for all canned foods save meat and meat products, and canned milk. The secretary has already announced official standards for peas, peaches, pears, tomatoes, cherries, and apricots, and these standards are now in effect. The amendment, popularly known as the canners' bill, further authorizes the secretary to prescribe the words, "slack filled," on a can, a designation to be printed upon the labels of canned foods that fall below the standards.

The canners' bill also gives the secretary authority to define a standard fill for canned foods. Canned foods shall be considered as of standard fill if the entire contents occupy 90 per cent or more of the volume of the closed container.

Quality Not Affected.

"A housewife with a limited amount of money to spend will be greatly aided in making her purchases of canned foods within the coming months if she will carefully read the labels on the containers," says Dr. P. B. Dunbar. "Nor need she fear that if she buys a can of food labeled with the substantial designation that she is getting an unwholesome product.

"If the food actually were unwholesome, it would of course be illegal under the food and drugs act and subject to action under that measure. She need not hesitate to purchase a food branded, 'Below United States standard; low quality but not illegal,' because that food will carry the nutritive, if not the esthetic, value of standard canned goods."

On Only Six Products.

The housewife need not look for the wording indicating a substandard product on any canned goods, save the six mentioned, for some time to come. The standards for canned peas, peaches, pears, apricots, cherries, and tomatoes are all that have been formulated and officially announced to date.

The food and drug administration will work out standards for other canned foods as rapidly as possible, however.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Widespread comment followed the announcement last Friday in THE TRIBUNE'S food section that poultry experts find no occasion for Chicago and suburban housewives paying more than 35 cents a dozen for fresh eggs under present conditions of supply and demand.

PAUL E. MANDEVILLE.

From housewives came letters of appreciation that an effort was being made to reduce the "spread" between producer and consumer. From farmers came words of approval that city folk were being warned of overpaying for their products. And from several Chicago distributors came an assortment of criticisms, favorable or unfavorable, depending upon how the admonition affected their own prices.

Women Praise Work.

"Thank goodness we can be more certain of getting fresh eggs at prices more in proportion to those paid the farmers for them," wrote an officer of one Chicago woman's club. "In my family and those of my neighbors we are looking to fuller use of eggs this fall and winter, and if we have this assurance that some one is watching the charges it will give us more confidence in buying poultry products."

That fresh eggs are being sold on a cash and carry basis at 30 to 34 cents a dozen was found in a survey this week to bear out the effectiveness of last Friday's announcement. A few concerns, including some milk companies, reported they were charging more for a specially selected egg, with delivery and charge account costs added. This was found to be the case of several groceries and delicatessens, although some of the latter were selling lower grades at the specialty prices.

Expert Gives His Views.

The importance of keeping down retail prices was pointed out yesterday by Paul Mandeville of the Institute of American Poultry Industries, who issued last week's warning. It would mean more rapid consumption, with larger sales at narrower margins, insuring satisfaction for the farmer, the consumer, and the egg trade, he said.

California eggs were found to be selling at prices above the 35 cent figure.

"The market for California white shelled eggs with their pale yolks is sustained chiefly by a preference for them in New York City on the part of about two million Jews and Italians," he said in describing the specialty eggs which cost more than midwest eggs. "These people have a tradition that white or pale food is purer.

"The white shells are, of course, due to breed of chickens. There are plenty of white shelled eggs to be obtained in the corn belt, but they rarely have uniformly pale yolks, the production of which must be controlled for that purpose.

"There is no occasion for people who depend chiefly on corn belt eggs to develop preference for pale yolks. Yellow corn, alfalfa and other feed common in the corn belt, if fed to laying hens, produce rich, deeply colored yolks and such eggs are particularly rich in vitamins."

Best Eggs from Corn Belt.

Farmers in the corn belt manage their flocks differently from those on the Pacific coast. Here more yellow corn and wheat or oats, and in many cases milk solids are fed. The chickens are on range in the orchard or grain stubble or in alfalfa or clover. As a result we in Chicagoland are more apt to be served brightly or deeply colored yolks as well as the paler eggs.

Mr. Mandeville explains this matter of coloring by comparing the hens to honey bees that sometimes have access to buckwheat blossoms, sometimes to alfalfa or clover blossoms and to other flowers, each producing a slightly different colored honey, often with varying flavors.

"Corn belt poultry flock owners are improving their methods every year along with New England and California flock owners," Mr. Mandeville reports. "The finest eggs on earth are produced in the corn belt, eggs of good size and good body, and they are well cared for. The shell color varies chiefly because of various breeds of hens kept on farms.

"Grain has been abundant and cheap this year, and the hens have had the benefit. I repeat there is no reason why Chicago housewives should pay more than 35 cents a dozen retail for eggs on the present market, other than fastidiousness for something out of the ordinary, having nothing to do with the real quality in eggs."

MOLDS OF ALL KINDS BECOMING MORE POPULAR

Hot Chicken Ring Recipe Given.

BY MARY MEADE.

Molds of all kinds and varieties have become so popular of late that I believe you all will be interested in the following letter.

Mrs. W. H. S. writes: "I am desirous of obtaining a recipe for timbales. I'd like to be able to mold a ring of string beans, corn, etc., with little enough egg so that the binder is hardly noticeable, and it looks as though it is simply a ring of vegetables. Is it possible to do this? I can never make my ring come out perfectly. Anything with gelatin in it I can get out by dipping the mold in warm water, but what do I do about a hot mold?

"Recently I had a chicken ring at a party. It tasted strongly of chicken; was hot, and whatever held it together, I could not detect, nor could the other guests. Have you a recipe for this?"

The "binder" referred to by Mrs. W. H. S. is an egg. It will not be tasted if the cook will use plenty of vegetables in her ring mold and seasons them well. Whether it is liked or not, the egg is necessary to keep the vegetables in their ring form. In the case of a "hot mold" it can be readily removed from the form, if the form has been well greased prior to baking, and is placed in a pan of hot water during the baking.

The chicken ring was bound together with egg whites, probably your guests wondered about its attractive pallor, and forgot that egg yolks sometimes are left out! I hope you like the recipe for it.

HOT CHICKEN RING.

5 egg whites.
1 pint of thick cream, cold.
1 teaspoon of salt.
⅛ teaspoon of white pepper.

Dice the chicken very fine, and then pound it. Add gradually, while pounding, the cream, egg whites, and seasonings. Press through a sieve. Put into one ring mold or several individual molds and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] about 25 minutes. Have the mold standing about an inch deep in a covered pan of hot water. Serve with a rich white sauce.

Here is yesterday's promise for an artichoke salad.

ARTICHOKE SALAD.

1½ teaspoons salt.
1½ cups of mayonnaise.
3 tablespoons of capers.

Cut off the stems and remove the first two layers from the artichokes. Remove the spines by clipping the tips from the leaves with scissors. Wash well, and put into boiling water. Boil gently 15 or 20 minutes until tender. When nearly done, add the salt. Take from the water and drain, stem end up. Chill. Remove the chokes. Serve on lettuce, using the mayonnaise sprinkled with capers, for a dressing.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH ANCHOVIES.

6 eggs.
Lemon juice.
Onion juice.

Mash the anchovies, and rub to a smooth paste. Season with a few drops of onion and lemon juice. Scramble the eggs in the usual way, and when nearly done, stir it in the anchovy mixture. Serve on toast.

FIG FLUFF.

½ cup of sugar.
2 egg whites.

Boil the figs until soft; drain off the water. Beat the figs to a pulp, and then add the sugar to them. Fold this mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a buttered baking dish, and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] twenty minutes. Serve at once with whipped cream.

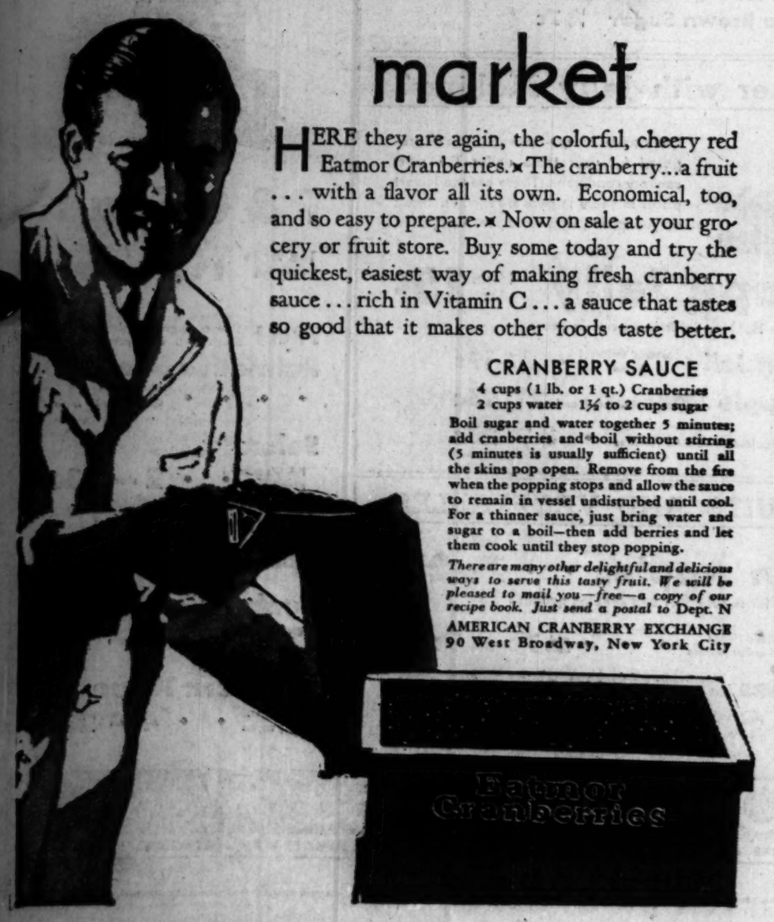
EATMOR CRANBERRIES are now on the market



HERE they are again, the colorful, cheery red Eatmor Cranberries. The cranberry...a fruit ... with a flavor all its own. Economical, too, and so easy to prepare. Now on sale at your grocery or fruit store. Buy some today and try the quickest, easiest way of making fresh cranberry sauce ... rich in Vitamin C ... a sauce that tastes so good that it makes other foods taste better.

CRANBERRY SAUCE

4 cups (1 lb. or 1 qt.) Cranberries
2 cups water 1¾ to 2 cups sugar

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes; add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the popping stops and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool. For a thinner sauce, just bring water and sugar to a boil—then add berries and let them cook until they stop popping.

There are many other delightful and delicious ways to serve this tasty fruit. We will be pleased to mail you—free—a copy of our recipe book. Just send a postal to Dept. N

NOW'S THE TIME FOR SAUERKRAUT TRIED AND TRUE

And Some Fancy Ways to Cook It.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Pigs' knuckles, spareribs, or frankfurters—pick your own counterpart for that century-old popular food known as sauerkraut which comes into its own every fall and for some knows no seasonal favoritism.

As an economical food, it has become cheaper than last year. The usual size for an average family is the 2½ size can, containing around a quart and selling retail in Chicago for 12 to 17 cents a can. This is estimated sufficient to serve at least four persons.

Of course, the homemade product can be manufactured in some instances at less cost than purchasing it cans. Home packing is usually recommended only for those who are familiar with making sauerkraut in times such as the present, when sufficient cabbage heads are relatively cheap. Slow growing and solid headed varieties are best, fully matured heads cut and bought at one to one and one-half cents a pound wholesale.

Stone Jars Are Best.

Stone jars make the best containers for the homemade kraut. After shredding, the cabbage is placed in the jar alternately in layers with salt, in the proportion of one pound of salt to every 40 pounds of cabbage. This should be packed firmly, covered with a clean cloth and a board or plate on which is placed a weight sufficiently heavy to cause the brine to come up to the cover.

A temperature of 86 degrees is desirable for thorough fermentation, which takes about 10 days. The scum which forms should be skimmed off from time to time, since it destroys acidity. Storing in a cool place is the best, keeping insects and scum from the top by frequent skimming or else by pouring melted paraffin over the top or by packing in glass jars.

But whether the product is prepared in the home or selected from a store shelf, it is less expensive than a year ago. Cabbage is cheaper and the cans that retail for 12 to 17 cents were selling a year ago for 15 to 25 cents each.

Uncle Sam Indorses It.

President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, through its women's division and the United States bureau of home economics, have delved into the history and also the present day uses of kraut in an endeavor to show the American public that the food is healthful, inexpensive and appetizing.

The committee indorses the food in the following:

"Most peragns think of sauerkraut as native to Germany. But the more probable origin was among the Slavic peoples of eastern Europe, who in turn introduced it into northern and central Europe. The Germans, however, seem to have been the first to develop efficient methods for its production and to study the processes involved in its fermentation. For sauerkraut is no more than shredded cabbage that has undergone lactic fermentation in the brine made from its own juice by the addition of salt.

Valuable in Winter.

Wholesome and appetizing, it is valuable, primarily, as an additional leafy vegetable product for winter when the diet of most persons consists too largely of concentrated form of food. Because of chemical changes which take place in the process of fermentation the flavor is decidedly different from raw cabbage. In fact, many persons find sauerkraut the more palatable of the two for this reason. Sauerkraut has little nutritive value as measured by calories, but it supplies several of the essential minerals necessary for human nutrition.

"Kraut does not furnish as much of vitamin A, B and C as raw cabbage. But it is a fair source of all three of these elements which are essential for resistance to bacterial infection and for maintenance of appetite and growth.

Some Ways of Cooking.

"Sauerkraut can be cooked in casserole with alternate layers of noodles and a top layer of ground pork sausage. It may also be fried or combined with bacon, ham, or any cured meat. When potatoes are to be combined with sauerkraut it is better to pre-cook them separately because the acid of the kraut is likely to make the potatoes a trifle hard. In some sections of the south, sauerkraut is always served with turkey, while in Europe it steps out of the modest rôle, so often associated with it here, to serve as the accompaniment for partridges, pheasant, goose liver patties, liver dumplings, fried liver and baked pike."

RECIPES.

Baked Sauerkraut with Cheese.
1 small onion (chopped).
3 tablespoonfuls bacon fat.
1 quart sauerkraut.
1½ teaspoonful salt.
½ lb. American cheese (baked).
3 cups mashed potatoes.

Brown the onion in the bacon fat, add the drained sauerkraut and one-half of the salt, and cook until the sauerkraut is slightly browned.

Combine the cheese with the hot potato and beat well, adding the rest of the salt. Make a layer of the hot kraut in a greased baking dish, then a layer of the cheese and potato mixture. Continue until all ingredients are used and have a layer of the potato on top. Bake in a moderate oven until lightly browned, or about 30 minutes.

SAVORY SAUERKRAUT.

1 quart sauerkraut.
¼ teaspoonful celery or caraway seed.
¼ cup butter.

Heat the butter in a skillet until golden brown, and add the kraut and the seasoning. Mix well, using a fork to separate the kraut. Cover and cook for five minutes. Serve hot.

What they served at the De Soto house in Galena, Ill., before the civil war. Gen. Grant clerked in a saddlery store in Galena before the civil war. The town was long famous for its good food.

GALENA—HOME OF GENERAL GRANT AND GOOD FOOD

De Soto House Dining Room Long Famous.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Galena, known as the Illinois town where Gen. Grant was working in a saddlery and leather store when the civil war came along, also known for its quaint charm, its steep hillsides on which the dignified old houses built in the fifties still stand, and its air of peace with the world, is known for something else as well—good food.

Before the civil war, when Galena was a thriving town past which the steamboats plied, the De Soto house dining room was filled with gaily chattering crowds. Just as the mansions on the hills, whose handsome porticos and noble doorways still attest to the sound architecture of that day, were known to pride themselves on the goodliness of their kitchens' products, so did the hotel do its utmost to spread a lavish board.

That Was a Manly Age.

A bill of fare for Sunday, April 29, 1855, saved by the De Soto house, which still does business in Galena, suggests that appetites in that day were manlier than those of the present age, when drug store counters and sandwich shops suffice for many busy men.

No price is listed on the bill of fare for the reason that a room in the De Soto house included four meals a day. That meant all the roomer could eat of fowl, fish, meats, and vegetables, as listed, were as follows: "Breakfast, 6½ to 9 o'clock; dinner, 1½ o'clock; tea, 6½ o'clock; supper, 8 to 9 o'clock."

Full Price for Children.

A notation on the menu warned the visitors that "Children occupying seats at the first table will be charged full price." It further said: "Regular seats, for families, will be reserved for dinner only. Families will be called to dinner only."

A wine list shows champagne sold at $2.50 a quart and $1.50 a pint; that Madeira sold for $2 a quart; sherry, $2; claret at $2.50 and $1 a quart, and "brown stout London porter," likewise ale, at 75 cents a quart.

NOW TIME TO BUY MICHIGAN GRAPES, CONSUMERS TOLD

Housewives were being warned by the best informed storekeepers this week that Michigan grapes are about as low in price as they can get, but that weather may force the price up sharply any time the thermometer shows a sudden drop this month.

Wholesale lots are being purchased from boat and truck shipments at prices which are the lowest in years. The small four quart containers are wholesaling at 12 to 13 cents each and at one time were down to as low as 10 cents a basket.

The large "jumbo" grape baskets, holding 12 quarts or about 15 pounds, are selling wholesale at 30 cents, although the basket alone costs the grower about eight cents. California juice grapes are expected to remain about the same price for several weeks—lugs of 26 pounds selling from freight cars for 90 cents to $1.25 each.

RIPE TOMATOES HEAVIER; BETTER FOR CANNING USE

Growers of canning crop tomatoes are urged to check up on their picking in order to get a higher percentage of red, ripe tomatoes. Ripe tomatoes are not only of better color and better quality, but also weigh more, according to W. B. Ward of the Purdue university horticultural extension staff.

Tomatoes ripen slowly during the cooler weather and will develop exceptionally good color if they are left on the vine to ripen. Tomatoes that are just turning from the orange to red should be left on the vines generally eight to ten days longer. Warmer weather will naturally develop the good red color faster, but again the grower has a tendency to pick too frequently, which will cause a loss in grade, tonnage, and quality.

Potatoes Not Forbidden in Diets for Reducing

Because potatoes are rich in proteins, minerals, vitamins and easily digested starches, they are not forbidden even in a reducing diet if properly balanced with milk, meat, fish or eggs. When potatoes are baked none of the protein or mineral matter is wasted, and they should be eaten with the skins on if roughage is needed in the diet.

TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY CAN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS MARKED WITH AN EXPIRATION DATE

Coffee is a fresh food . . . like milk or butter . . .
The DATE on this Coffee assures you of full flavor

NOW coffee is classed as a "fresh food"... And fine coffee flavor can be appreciated as never before.

For the first time, coffee is being brought to you by swift "fresh food" delivery—with an expiration date on each can. Any unsold when its date expires is immediately replaced with fresh.

This tremendous change has been brought about by one coffee importer—Chase & Sanborn, famous for packaging the precious blend that coffee lovers have known and valued for 65 years.

AND HERE IS THE REASON for this wonderful new move:

Recent research has shown that in every pound of coffee there is approximately half a cup of oil. Fresh, this delicate oil carries the marvelous flavor and delicate aroma you love in good coffee. Stale, it becomes rancid—toxic . . . The flavor and aroma of even the very finest coffee are marred. And this rancidity develops in days, not months, after roasting.

SO CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE is now delivered fresh—rushed to your grocer straight from the roasting ovens—every can marked with an expiration date.

This guarantees you two things:

A high-grade coffee at the peak of its flavor—and safety from the dangers of rancidity in stale coffee.

Buy a can of this superb coffee today. Enjoy its matchless aroma as it comes fresh from the roasters.

IT IS THE DELICATE OIL in coffee which makes it perishable . . . like milk or butter. Scientists say that stale coffee is frequently a cause of indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness . . . But fresh, it is an actual aid to digestion.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin and Don Philippe de Rodriques, hoofers, with their pianist, Tom Libby, arrive in Thrace for a week's vaudeville engagement. A convention is being held in the town and the hotels are overflowing. Philippe grabs the first vacancy. Tom and Irma inquire at the town's leading hostelry, where Tom runs into an old friend, Bill Fitzroy. Tom finds a cot and Bill turns over his room to Irma. Bill invites Irma to a dinner party in the hotel, where she meets Wallace Graham, a widower. Wallace has a young daughter, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. Bill and Wallace shower invitations on the pretty dancer. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma quarrels with Philippe and quits the act. She decides to marry Wallace. Irma settled down to a dull existence with Wallace. On her first wedding anniversary Irma's baby son is three weeks old.

INSTALLMENT XI.

REFLECTIONS ON MARRIAGE.

The baby, thank God, looked healthy enough. Irma gathered her kimono about her slim shoulders and replaced him in his bassinet. He was sleeping now. Irma heard a step on the stairs and looked at the clock. That would be Mildred. A second later she heard the young voice raised in song.

Irma tiptoed from the room closing the door carefully behind her. Mildred said, "O, hello" as she brushed by on the way to her room.

"Mildred."

"Yeh?"

"Listen, honey, don't sing so loudly, will you? I had a very bad night with the baby. He cried almost continually. He's asleep now and I'd like to keep him asleep."

"You had a bad night? You mean we had a bad night. These walls aren't soundproof."

"But you didn't have to get up and wait on him," Irma said.

"Well, you didn't have to go to school this morning. Once the baby quit crying you went to sleep."

"But you will keep your voice down, won't you, Mildred?"

"Sure I will. I just didn't think of it." The two stood for a moment looking at each other, then Mildred added, "I'm not used to having a baby in the house."

"He's your brother," Irma pointed out.

"I know it."

"Don't you like him?"

"Sure, he's a cute thing." She entered her room then and Irma followed and sat down on the bed. She had been standing too long. Her knees felt wobbly. Mildred dashed about changing her clothes. Martha Fulton was having a tea for Jane Malcolm. Irma watched Mildred rush from bureau to closet and back again. Her swift movements and healthy, happy face awakened a sudden flash of envy in Irma. She felt weak and exhausted and conscious that her fresh, young beauty had passed.

"Do boys come to your tea parties?"

"Sure. Why not?"

"I just wondered."

"We dance at Fultons. They have a dandy big room and a good radio."

"I'd like to dance again sometime," Irma said.

"Well, you will in a year or so, I suppose," Mildred returned carelessly. "Hm, Aunt Tess sure did a good job on this dress. It looks better than the one I bought at McIntyre's."

"It's lovely," Irma said.

"I wish I didn't have to put this old coat over it. O, well, who sees a coat? Bye, Irma."

"Bye, dear. Have a good time."

She was gone. Irma went to the window to watch Mildred walk down the street. The easy, graceful stride of the girl moved Irma to a sincere admiration. It was almost like watching somebody dance.

When Mildred had passed from view Irma went to the baby. She felt better after looking at him. The little head on the pillow made it possible to regard Mildred and her tea party in their proper proportions. A young kid with her callow pleasures. They would pass, but this—the baby. She stooped and kissed him lightly and forgot Mildred.

She wanted to dress. It would be so much nicer for Wallace to find her dressed on their anniversary, but it might awaken the baby if she began opening the closet and the bureau. There was not room in the little house for a nursery.

So Wallace found her still in her kimono when he came from the office. "Perhaps you'd feel better if you were dressed," he suggested.

Though it was their anniversary he brought no flowers or gift of any kind.

She did not mind. They had been through an expensive month. She knew now something of Wallace's income and expenses. His salary was five thousand a year. Irma figured it in weeks as that was the only way she could comprehend its possibilities. Aunt Tess had nine dollars a week that came regularly from some legal source that Irma couldn't understand at all. She did, however, understand that it clothed Aunt Tess and permitted her to buy a gift now and then for Mildred. Wallace supplied her food and room in return for her years of service to his daughter. The maid received twelve dollars a week. That was low wages, Irma discovered. Because it was low wages there was no complaint registered when Catherine left dust beneath the radiators and forgot to wash pots and pans, remembering only to stick them out of sight. Mildred's social activities necessitated her dressing well. Aunt Tessie's clever hands kept this bill surprisingly low, but still it ran into many dollars. And now there was the baby with his attendant expenses added to a load which had almost toppled when burdened with Irma's modest needs.

There were other things. Things which completely baffled Irma. Taxes and insurance and no end of monthly bills. She never understood the figures which Wallace showed her nor could she remember from month to month how much they paid on the car. She was surprised when he announced that it was completely theirs. She could have sworn that he had said that two months before.

He had not misrepresented himself to her. She had expected no more than a home and a group of friends and Wallace. It did not irk her not to be able to have fine clothes and jewelry. She had never yearned for luxuries. Wallace was very kind and they had scores of friends in Thrace. The home was comfortable. She had the baby now. What more could a woman ask of life?

She sat across from Wallace at the dinner table on this their first anniversary and considered her blessings.

"Dear, you must eat more," he urged. "Your appetite is awfully small."

"O, it will pick up, darling. Don't worry." She helped herself to a second chop though she desired nothing less. "I think the Harpers will be over," she remarked.

"That will be nice," he answered.

Her busy mind offered a question in the silence that settled again. Could all marriages be like this? In a million homes were wives eating their good, plentiful dinners and thinking that maybe the Harpers would drop in? If the Harpers didn't drop in then a million wives could go to the movies if they preferred that to sewing or reading. It gave you sort of a walled-in feeling even to consider that that was marriage. But there was the baby to compensate for any flaws in the system. Besides, Irma told herself, she would feel different about life in general when she was strong enough to go out again.

Irma could not bring herself to attend the Atchison-Gardner wedding, though she and Bill Fitzroy were asked to trail along to city hall and be witnesses. Bill, she understood, gracefully accepted the honor and showed his gratitude by bestowing a pair of silver candle sticks upon the young couple. Irma's slim, young body was disappointingly slow in regaining its accustomed strength. She had not even felt equal to the task of selecting a gift for the Gardners. As a matter of fact she was not at all certain what gift was within her means. Having derived all knowledge of wedding gifts from movies and books, silver, linen or exquisite glassware was all she could imagine and none of these things were possible to the Graham purse.

Mildred was going to town to buy the gift as soon as Irma decided what it was to be. Mildred, because Wallace had no time for stores and one could not dispatch Aunt Tessie upon an errand. Irma devoutly wished that it were not Mildred for the inevitable Jane Malcolm was going to town with her and the two girls sat waiting with thinly veiled boredom while Irma made up her mind. Jane looked slightly amused, Irma thought. Her elder sister had been married recently and Jane would know exactly what the world and his wife was doing right now in the matter of wedding presents. It did not make Irma more comfortable to know that this was so. She was unable to name the possibilities that occurred to her, so conscious was she that the Malcolm brat would politely smother a gasp if Emily Post had not endorsed the suggestion.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Calling Down the Boss.

Quite often my boss will dictate a letter and then give a list of names to whom similar letters are to be sent. One day I had written two sets of letters when an office boy brought the entire first set back to have one word changed, which the dictator had decided not to use. Just as I was about finished some young fellow came to my desk and laid down the second set of letters with a similar change to be made on them. Thinking it was just another office boy, I didn't look up, but said in a tone of exasperation, "What, again?" And the man said, "Yes, I'm afraid I have made a mistake on this one, too."

Imagine my embarrassment when I looked up and found it was the dictator himself. M. B.

Fever Pollens Win Victory in Test Fight

Experiments conducted with more than 100 men and women suffering from seasonal hay fever, asthma, or eczema at the University of Illinois Research hospital, proved disappointing. This was revealed yesterday—the official close of the hay fever season.

The physicians there learned that nightly housing of patients in purified pollenless air only relieved hay fever during the hours spent in such surroundings.

An eight bed ward was selected for the experiment and a machine was installed to draw the air from the outside through a number of paper filters.

Dr. Ben Z. Rappaport and Dr. Tell Nelson conducted the experiments, "to see how much relief could be given hay fever patients by placing them in this room, and, if relief was obtained, to see if they could spend the day in useful occupation, returning at night to a room where the air was filtered, and maintain reasonable efficiency at work."

On leaving the ward, after most slept well, except on hot nights, some of the hay fever patients immediately developed symptoms when they went outdoors. Almost all did within one-half hour after being outside. Most of them became so miserable during the day, when they played golf, visited museums, played tennis or worked that they returned to their pollenless ward before the required hour of 8 o'clock.

The asthma sufferers, who stayed in the ward continuously for several days, were only partially relieved. Several did not find relief until they had been in the ward for four or five days. Their asthma returned a few hours after leaving for home.

"Further work is being planned for next year by the University of Illinois group for the study of hay fever and asthma," said Dr. Rappaport. "The experiments will be with improved filtration machinery.

"Most of the cases studied this year have asked to be admitted next season. There is definite need for more funds to continue the study. The chemical work has been conducted in the department of physiological chemistry and the clinical work in the department of medicine."

Doris Advises Against Retreat for the Lovelorn

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The young man I love doesn't pay any attention to me. I could get plenty of others to take me out, but I don't feel that I would have a chance with the one I love if I encouraged the others. What shall I do? Only don't tell me to forget him. I can't. SALLY."

All right, Sally, then don't forget him. Just keep on thinking about him and refusing every good male opportunity to forget him—and where are you going to be a year from now? Worse off, I judge, than you are in your present dilemma. Later you won't have the comforting assurance that you could have others for the wanting.

You know how it is with boys. They like the idea of having a girl other boys would like to have, too. But you trail along, lonesome like, and not all the virtues with which I'm sure you're clothed will serve your evenings so well as one or two reliable suitors about.

One thing the world hasn't any time for, especially your young world, is the woman who wears the stamp of an unrequited love. It's such a silly position to put one's self in. That's why the impatience with it. Not, of course, that one is not a susceptible victim. Not that one can always help caring for some one who doesn't care for you. But the point is that you can't look it or act it or be it—for long. It just isn't a popular rôle to adopt. And there's always the chance that what one has caused another can cure, a relief you'll never experience unless you get out and mingle with the crowd.

One thing you can make up your mind on firmly and conclusively, and it is that a man who is not interested in you is never inspired to interest by a girl's retreat. Her only hope of getting a look from him is to be out and around where he is, and best if she is in company of some attractive male escort.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

One Sided Fairness.

"Dear Miss Blake: The one I love asked me to play fair with him, but he isn't playing fair with me. Please advise. HONEY."

Let it be known that you expect the same fairness extended to you as he has asked for and has received from you.

Your Word First.

"Dear Miss Blake: Some one told my friend I was going out with other boys. I told him I am not, but he won't believe me. A. W. G. W."

Dont' you think he should accept your word in preference to that of any one else? I do.

Make Friendly Overtures.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a girl to whom I don't speak. How can I regain her friendship. JIM."

Evening Dress of 1880 on the Horizon Again

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A determined group of French dressmakers are trying to revive the fitted basque and bustle line of 1880 as a new fashion for this winter. The silhouette, naturally, is modified to the tastes of this generation, with bustles reduced to mere flat puffs or bows, and the boned bodice liberated to a flatly molded affair that is easy to wear.

Ruffled skirts of the eighties are transformed, also, with fewer volants, and with more room to move around in.

With these frocks are little fitted jackets that are in the same spirit, such as the jacket shown in our sketch. This jacket and the Persian blue georgette frock with which it is worn show just how the modes of 1880 are brought up to date.

Marje St. Martin eliminates the bustle entirely from her silhouette of the eighties, as you see, wisely indicating the movement merely by ruffles or georgette that begin at the back of the waistline and curve downward to the sides of the hips, from which point they cascade down to the hem. A second ruffle beginning below the hips at the side back emphasizes the effect of the past epoch. Two vertically placed georgette ruffles are placed on the side-front of the skirt, extending from the hipline to the hem. A deep ruffle at the back of the skirt gives width to the hem.

The jacket is little more than a waistcoat and is made of exquisite gold brocade with a Persian pattern, having little circular ruffles for sleeves. It is closely fitted, has a cutaway closing and a standing shawl collar.

A collection of 150 designs executed by some of the country's most noted commercial artists were placed on exhibition yesterday in the Wedgewood room at Marshall Field & Co. This is the second annual exhibition of original paintings used in poster reproduction. The designs were selected by a jury of awards appointed by the Advertising Council of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The exhibit will continue to Oct. 15.

THREE CREAMS for BEAUTY

By PEGGY MARTIN
Famous Beauty Authority

Thousands of women are regular users of Plough's Peroxide Vanishing Cream because they know that nothing else is quite so effective in protecting the skin from the roughening, coarsening effects of winds and weather. This fine cream also lightens and refines the skin and is an ideal powder base. For overcoming skin congestion (dirt-clogged pores), Plough's Cleansing Cream has no equal. Plough's Cold Cream banishes "age lines" by restoring precious oils to the skin to keep it youthfully charming. Each of these three fine Plough Creams comes in three sizes, sensibly priced at 25c, 35c, 50c.

Shaw and Terry Letters Offer Thrill to Many

Rich Stage Love Story in Real Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Ellen Terry and Bernard Shaw, a Correspondence." Edited by Christopher St. John [Putnam's]. Published today.

AN ENCHANTING book! You can't think of any other adjective to describe the correspondence between Ellen Terry and George Bernard Shaw which is presented to eager—passionately eager—readers today. ENCHANTING—the letters which they wrote, and the relationship between them. This book is everything that the most extravagantly excellent novel could have, character development, romance (of the most romantic kind), beauty of writing (and why shouldn't it have with one of the greatest stylists of his day doing half of it), drama (and why shouldn't there be with the greatest dramatist of his generation writing the drama of his life and love and the greatest actress of her day playing in it—with words), suspense (with a love that never is fulfilled and yet that never dies) . . .

These letters, read as if they were fiction, make the GREAT ROMANCE, the liveliest, the tenderest, the most beautiful love story that any writer could conceive. That the hero actually is the great Bernard Shaw and the heroine was the greatest actress of her generation, that the whole book is fact and not the creation of some past author makes the volume incredibly touching and unbelievably impressive. Perhaps the whole thing—that the creation of the greatest of authors, the author of life and this part of it a sort of cosmic love affair. . . .

Well, that's just how completely I got the book has left THIS reader. Words (as they do in Ellen Terry's letters) spill out of her mind and her quarter. There is no limit to her spill over it. Instead of buying those nutshells to feed the soul, as Saadi suggests, "if of thy mortal goods thou be bereft," I'd comfort my poverty with what hasn't poverty to comfort (some days?) with this volume of Terry-Shaw letters. They'd give ME a good deal more soul nourishment than a row of hyacinths (whose fragrance always makes me a little groggy anyway).

Perhaps I had better calm down a little and explain more precisely the nature of this—to me—extraordinary volume. It consists of the letters which Bernard Shaw and Ellen Terry exchanged from 1892 to 1922. It records that rarest of all human relationships, a passionate, romantic intellectual attachment. In all of those years they saw one another, how many times, practically never, until many years had passed. During the years of their most ardent, their tenderest, their most intimate correspondence they had NEVER met.

The romance began when Shaw was thirty-six years of age, Ellen Terry forty-four. Shaw was then a promising journalist member of the Fabian society, but, in the life of the idol of the London stage, probably just a young man who wrote a neat criticism. She asked him to listen to a young friend of her's and give his opinion as to the girl's future. He wrote a pleasant, admiring letter in reply, she a charming one to him, and in a few days, in the way that such things happen, they had begun a correspondence which, for some years, must have taken hours a day out of each of their lives or—and it seems to me this is the truer way of saying it—added hours of joy to lives which, despite their fullness of public encomium, were made richer by the really deep sharing of their feelings which they set down on paper.

Both Shaw and Ellen Terry evidently were nourished by writing to each other. That such was true is evidenced by the fact that people so remote from that relationship as you and I, reading those letters, actually feel that spiritual nourishment.

Every page tempts one to quotation. Delightful humor here, sage advice about the drama there, personal bits about Shaw on another page, a peculiarly intimate and lovely letter on another all cry to be set down as samples. But that is the greatest thing about the volume—no sample is really a sample, for it is the thing as a whole that is remarkable and superb, the flowering of a rich, tender, whimsical, wholly spiritual affection, and its gentle ageing . . . no novel has ever been written which records that sort of relationship as beautifully as those thirty years' letters.

Imagine yourself changed into a woman . . . OR a man if you prefer. "Turnabout" is easy. If you don't believe it, read this novel—which mixes drinks and sexes uproariously and produces perhaps the most sophisticated laughs to be found in a book this year. "It'll put you in bed for a week," says the United Press.

An item yesterday reported a fire in the Lehman Furniture company store at 2745 South Wells street. The fire was in the store of the Levy Brothers Furniture company. The George Lehman Furniture company at 2444 Wentworth avenue was not damaged.

In item yesterday said erroneously that the county had received bids for the Crawford avenue bridge over the Sag channel. Although the war department has approved plans for the bridge the county board must await state approval of the plans before it can advertise for bids.

Chicago Artists' Work Will Be Shown at School on Oct. 11

Canvases, the work of Chicago artists, will hang in the studios of the Academy of Our Lady at 95th and Throop streets for the third annual exhibit and reception under the auspices of the Fine Arts Guild of Chicago. More than 1,200 visitors are expected for the event, which will be held Oct. 11. Sister Mary Stanisia, mural and portrait painter, is director of the guild. Mrs. John A. Power is president.

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis will be the main speaker on the program. Addresses also will be made by Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general, Dr. Edward Fitzpatrick, and Ralph Clarkson, one of the artists whose work will be represented. Miss Genevieve Corkell will be in charge of the program.

Artists whose works will be shown include Mr. Clarkson, Sister Stanisia, Wellington Reynolds, Gerald Frank, Marshall Smith, Edgar Cameron, Anna Lynch, Romola Roberti, Maude I. G. Oliver, Howard Brown, Camille Andrene, Emil Armin, Arno Hempil, Helen West Miller, Grace Hall Hemingway, Elizabeth Myrick, Tunis Ponsen, Ivan Joern, A. Raymond Katz,

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"This isn't a murder; it's an epidemic!" exclaimed the police inspector.

And so it seemed.

A man is killed. Several minutes later—Bang!—and there's a new face in heaven or otherwise. After that, well, the undertaking business in the vicinity of the Kennedy home certainly looks up!

"Murder at Midnight," being a Hss-ss-t!-Sh-hh-hh! movie, I remain darkly mysterious as to plot and absolutely mum on the subject of clews. No harm to tell you, however, that the piece DOES keep you guessing. I had the guilty party doped out right, toward the end, but it took me a good five reels to make up my so-called mind as to the identity of the killer.

"Murder at Midnight" is well directed, quite suspenseful, and acted in a properly sinister, be-fooling, button-button-who's-got-the-button fashion.

"NUR AM RHEIN."
[Only on the Rhein.]
Produced by Sudfilm.
Directed by Max Mack.
Presentd at the Punch and Judy theater.

THE CAST.

The Burgomeister	Emil Rameau
His Wife	Maria Reisenhofer
Hanne	Daisy d'Ora
Karl	Carl Balhaus
Lore	Truus van Aalten
Capt. Barrymore	Igo Sym
Houp	Teddy Bill
British regimental commander
Ian	Hugh Douglas
Lehman	Julius Falkenstein
Trude, a maid	Lene Jilling

QUALITY: Good.

ACTING: Intelligent. Igoe Sym, who plays the romantic male lead, is personable and has "It" as well as ability. Truus van Aalten, in an ingénue role, steals the thunder from the blond leading lady, Daisy d'Ora, who, nevertheless, plays with charm and pleasing restraint. Miss Van Aalten looks much like Colleen Moore, especially in closeups.

DIRECTION: Satisfactory—with quite an eye for detail.

SETS and SCENERY: Former—rather makeshift; latter—beautiful—what there is of it.

SOUND: Okay.

STORY: Young Captain Barrymore of an English garrison occupying a town on the Rhine indulges in romance with the Burgomaster's daughter. Unkind gossip is started by the interpreter and agent of the garrison, who is looked upon as a renegade by the Germans. (And what a thoroughly nasty person Julius Falkenstein makes him!) The heroine's brother calls upon the captain and demands to know the latter's intentions. Finding these honorable, and learning where the rumor started, this jolly student from Bonne, with a gang of his fellows, wreaks woe on the scandalmonger . . . And so and so and so. English or German, you'll be able to understand the picture from this point on.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Yesterday's audience seemed to enjoy "Nur Am Rhein."

THE STAGE

"SURF."

A play by Frank Harvey, given at the Blackstone theater Oct. 1, 1931, with Walker Whiteside as star.

THE CAST.

Rangel	Carl H. Vees
Gordon Kingsley	Barrie O'Daniels
Government Inspector	Edward Carson

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

EVERY once in a while—but not too often—an ambitious dramatist with a taste for romance and marine atmosphere sits himself down to write a play about the startling things that can happen to a little group of people caged in a lighthouse. Walker Whiteside, who troupes about the country every season, carrying the torch of melodrama into communities where a live actor is a curiosity, submitted one of these lighthouse plays to an audience at the Blackstone theater last night. "Surf" is its title and salty is its nature.

The news about "Surf" is that Mr. Whiteside no longer employs his sonorous voice in the sing-song accents of a courteous Chinese villain, educated at Oxford and steeped in the lore of the mysterious orient. He has put aside his mandarin robes, his salaams to Buddha, and his vials of poison. From Chinaman Mr. Whiteside has transformed himself into Irishman. He wears the flannel shirt and corduroy trousers of a lighthouse keeper's mate; he speaks the language of a Sydney wharf rat, and he is as tough as an Anzac ought to be.

It will surprise you to discover how good a South seas Irishman Mr. Whiteside is. You will not recognize him at first. The former specialist in sinister, decorative Asiatics has become one of Jack London's Pacific ocean roughnecks, talking a "walla-maloo" [I believe that is the word] dialect that contains expressions too lurid to print in this newspaper. This is a new Mr. Whiteside, giving proof that he has knocked around the theater for several decades and knows much more about his trade than he put into his Mr. Wus, Moys, and Fangs.

This report must also include an announcement that Mr. Whiteside has decided that if theater goers want raw meat, he will not hold out against them. As first mate of the light on Cape Forlorn, off the coast of New Zealand, he is a decidedly carnal little fellow, and the head keeper's wife—a hussy, if there ever was one—cooperates with him in certain carryings-on of which the least said the better. There is probably only one place in the Pacific ocean as dramatized, where the conduct and conversation are worse than it is in "Surf"—and that is the Evelad district in Honolulu, where Sadie Thompson came from before she struck Pago-Pago and "Rain."

The affair between the Cape Forlorn blond [Miss Franc Hale] and the stooge of the beacon [Mr. Whiteside] becomes complicated by the arrival of a castaway. He is a "gentleman," and Miss Hale promptly decides to change the cast although not the nature of her assignations. Moreover, he is an embezzler, fleeing with the treasury of a plundered building and loan society.

At the end of the second act Mr. Whiteside applies the fighting word to this interloper, and goes after him with a marlin spike, a piece of lead pipe, or some other nautical implement. But the lady known as Eileen steps in between the Irishman and his prey with a revolver, thus giving Mr. Whiteside an opportunity to die with fidelity to the symptoms of a man shot through the lungs.

But that doesn't solve the plot. The third act contains more melodrama, including the embezzler-castaway's use of the lighthouse as a jumping-off place. When the play ends Eileen has lost her two lovers and seriously impaired her standing with her husband; but, nevertheless, she is primping herself to give a new arrival—the officer in command of the relief boat—the "works." The Lorelei is ready for another victim.

The pace of the play is slow, and it occasionally runs into stretches of florid, old fashioned writing. But its atmosphere is persuasive, and its mild thrills are acceptable. Miss Hale is effective as the Cockney siren, and William Desmond is credible as the brawny sailorman who was foolish enough to marry the gal.

Hindenburg, 84 Today, Leaves Berlin to Rest

Term Ends May 12; He Plans to Farm.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—Paul von Hindenburg, president of the German republic, former field marshal of the German armies, wants to start in a new profession. As soon as he is out of office he wants to become a farmer.

His term expires May 12 and he assures that this is his last birthday in office. Friends still are beseeching him to agree to remain in his post to spare Germany the turmoil of a presidential election, but in recent weeks the president has repeatedly stated that he wants to withdraw to private life.

In a recent conversation Hindenburg declared:

"As soon as I have finished my work at the White House, I would like to go on a big trip. A young Japanese prince who called on me some time ago was taking a year's trip around the world. I'd like to do the same but I won't have time."

When asked why he couldn't take the trip when out of office, Hindenburg explained:

"I have some more work to do first. I want to go to my East Prussian estate and farm it myself. To my mind farming is one of the most important professions of our time and I want to do some good farming out in Neudeck. When the farm is going well, then I might think of traveling."

But first he will set an example for the man of the city who "returns to his country home and grows food for the hungry."

Germany pays tribute to Hindenburg on his birthday. Ten thousand telegrams were received today. The Nationalists, who are disappointed in Hindenburg's loyalty to republican principles, indulge in editorials against the "republic cowards and scoundrels of 1918." Der Tag bemoans that Hindenburg, "who we feel was a victor in the war, is helping to carry out German defeat in peace" and jubilates that this is his last birthday as president. "When he resigns, he will again be with us Nationalists and the Nationalist youth of the country, which obeys us, will stand behind the former chief of German armies."

Yanks, French Join to Open Pershing Hall

It's Paris Home of the American Legion.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Pershing hall, headquarters of the American Legion here, was dedicated today amid military splendor. The sunlight flashed from the helmets of the Republican guard, as the band played martial music. France was represented by President Doumer and Gen. Henri Gourand, military governor of Paris, the United States by Ambassador Walter Edge. The new building is located on Rue Pierre Charron, near the Arch de Triomphe, where lies France's unknown soldier.

The guard presented sabres as the official parties passed their ranks and entered Pershing hall, at 4 p. m.

President Doumer, who lost four sons in the world war, said:

"Our bonds of amity were forged in distant memory in your fight for independence, and then in the blood of the terrible days of the recent great war."

Later in the Myron T. Herrick memorial room, President Doumer made a second speech praising the memory of the late American ambassador, who was in Paris during the war.

M. Doumer and others praised Gen. John J. Pershing. The general was prevented by the approaching Yorktown celebration from being present today.

Others in the official party included Jean Chiappe, chief of police; Gen. Mariaux, governor of Les Invalides; Brig. Stanley Ford, American military attaché; François Latour, mayor of Paris.

The prefect of the department of the Seine, which includes Paris, tonight decreed a change in the name of Verdun boulevard in northwest Paris to Pershing boulevard.

Honor Gold Star Mothers.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Women of the Service Star legion, in national convention here, paid tribute today to the mothers of soldiers killed in the world war. Gold Star mothers were the guests of the legion at a luncheon, presided over by the national president, Mrs. F. W. Witheft of Fort Valley, Ga., herself a wearer of the Gold Star.

A half-hour memorial service, at which taps were blown in memory of the war dead, brought the day's activities to a close. Tomorrow the convention will end.

Chicagoans at Dinner to Boost Sanitarium for the Tubercular

Chicagoans who attended the annual banquet given by the board of directors of the Valmora sanatorium, Valmora, N. M., last night in the Stevens hotel, learned something about New Mexican dinners. A few of the items on the menu were: Oysters on the shell, enchiladas and frijoles espagnole, frijoles Mexicana, turkey, ice cream topped by cakelike cactus plants, mince pie and cider.

Guests included several hundred Chicago physicians, a group of society men and women interested in the progress of the sanatorium, and representatives from the various Chicago industries and stores which help support the sanatorium in return for the privilege of sending their employés there when they contract tuberculosis.

Whereas the valuable rays of the sun seldom can penetrate Chicago's pall of smoke during winter months, there were only six days last year when the sun was not visible at Valmora. In the 21 years of its existence, since its establishment by Chicago business men, not one case of pneumonia has developed at Valmora, Dr. Gellenthien said.

The dinner was presided over by Dr. William Brown, superintendent, who helped found the sanatorium. An honor guest was George Coe, 76 year old survivor of Billy the Kid's gang.

Ellen Terry and Bernard Shaw

An Intimate Correspondence

Edited by CHRISTOPHER ST. JOHN
With a Preface by BERNARD SHAW

BERNARD SHAW AND ELLEN TERRY corresponded devotedly for over a quarter of a century, and the many intimate letters which passed between them possess a brilliance which marks the collection as one of the most charming and beautiful in the whole field of English literature.

- G. B. S. to E. T. You will find me a disagreeably cruel-looking, middle-aged Irishman with a red beard; but that cannot be helped.
- E. T. to G. B. S. You are in the blues! You are only a boy, 40 is nothing when it's Irish. Be strong. Don't waste your time on any woman. Work. Shake the world, you stupid (darling).

BERNARD SHAW
(age in his preface)

"In allowing everybody who cares about Ellen Terry to read this correspondence, I must warn them not to judge it according to the code of manners which regulates polite letter writing in cathedral country towns. As a correspondence between a churchwarden and a deaconess its implications would make its publication impossible."

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Gilkey Lauds U. of C. Contacts with Big City

A close partnership between the University of Chicago and the city in which it was established was pointed out as one of the most notable features of the growth of the Midway institution by Dean Charles W. Gilkey yesterday. Dean Gilkey addressed more than 300 students and members of the faculty at the new chapel on the occasion of the university's fortieth anniversary.

"This partnership," Dean Gilkey declared, "is not only a matter of mere geographical location wisely chosen, but a matter of spiritual kinship. The relationship was established at a critical period in the history of the city, like a happy marriage just at the right time, and each has taken the other to its heart."

Dean Gilkey declared that the relationship was closer than that of any other American university founded in a large city.

Dean Gilkey outlined the benefits of the partnership in three points, one growing out of the other. They were:

1. Knowledge obtained from the university which will aid the city in working its way out of economical and social difficulties.

2. Sharing with the experience of the city. Dean Gilkey mentioned in this regard that 230 members of the faculty had subscribed $15,000 for the unemployed in Chicago.

3. From sharing the experiences comes a high morale for both the city and the university.

Influence of Child's Companions Is Very Potent, Says Writer

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Here are some extracts from recent letters from many people, but they should hang like grapes from one stem, because of a fault in common:

"My little boy uses the most horrible language. He does not hear it at home. I've talked and punished, but it does no good. He plays with boys who talk that way and he is always on the street. How can I cure him of using these expressions?"

"My daughter of twelve has grown so hard and defiant. She wants to go to the movies and out with the boys all the time. My husband and I have talked to her and punished her, but she just gets sulky. She goes with girls older than herself who are never at home and whose parents don't care what they do. How can I make her sweet and obedient and like to stay at home the way she used to?"

"My boy has begun to play hookey. He spends all his afternoons on the street and we live in a very bad neighborhood. What can I say to make him behave? I work and am away from home all day."

What else can these parents expect?

Children imitate, copy, absorb, reflect, drink in and eventually become what they see, hear and feel going on around them. The influence of their companions is one of the most potent there is. What can these parents expect except just what is happening?

Where surroundings and playmates are having a harmful effect, parents must not sit by and moan—they must do something. But blaming and railing at the child is not the answer. If it is impossible to move to a better neighborhood, they must work things out where they are. Boys and girls must not frequent movies nor spend all their playtime on the street. To prevent this their homes must be real homes—have a loving person in them and be a cheerful place to go to after school.

Other girls and boys must be welcome and invited. Small clubs can be formed to meet at various homes. There are large boys' clubs growing up everywhere that do a wonderful work. The settlement houses and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. give girls and boys opportunities for social life and athletics and bench work and crafts. Trips can be planned for Saturdays and Sundays which parents and their sons and daughters take together. Children should be helped to find new friends—or the old ones should be accepted and brought home. The home should be the center of their social life. Otherwise, if parents just talk about behavior it is like taking one step forward to two steps back.

It is futile to scold and punish and talk when the influences at work on a child are destructive. Instead there should be created for him as far as possible, surroundings and companionship and interest that are wholesome and attractive.

Lustrous Sheen of the Hair Necessary with New Chapeaux

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The two main points of beauty interest for the coming season are the hair on the un-hatted side of the head, and the waistline. On these two spots, if you'll concentrate, you may get by with a liability or two elsewhere. But that hair that the bonnet leaves out in the cold world for sun and wind and eyes to play upon has to be pretty nearly letter perfect in line and curl formation.

The other side of the head matters, too. But not so much as the exposed side. And the quality of your hair must be awfully good, too. A rich gloss is needed to soften that sharp brimline. Also, it is needed to soften the face.

I wonder how many women realize just what a gloss to the hair does to the face? Persons whose hair has gone dry for one reason or another quickly see a parched reflection in the skin and a somewhat similar look to the eye. Now, if this is all going to be exposed with one of the new chapeaux, it is not going to do the lady any good.

There are good gloss-provoking ointments to rub into the scalp, rub on the brush or pat on the hair with the hand for a surface polish. Brilliantine is one and, as its main ingredient is a good oil, there need be no fear of using it. Just a bit on the palm or brush is all you'll need.

If the hair is very dry, a few hot oil treatments will give it body, weight and a luster. The curling you'll probably have to entrust to the hands of your hairdresser. But you'd better urge a new interest in the wave length and a new line along which it moves, with a keen eye for a young, smart line back of and around the ears.

Then, take your waist measure. You must have a pinched-in look, a waist that might be spanned, given the moon and the man. Anyway, no extra pounds around that midsection. There isn't going to be any place to conceal avoirdupois this season. So get out the tape measure. The tape measure is to the waistline what the bathroom scales is to the weight chart. It's its conscience and its guide.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Ralph, my nephew, had just found some new playmates who were just a little older than he. The eldest boy said to him, "You're sweet natured, aren't you?"

"No," answered Ralph, "I'm an American." G. K.

Three year old Elizabeth was presented with a canary for her birthday. She was delighted with it, but quite ignorant of its habits.

The first evening, when Dickie had tucked his head under his wing ready for bed, Elizabeth ran to her mother crying, "O, mother, come quick! Poor Dickie looks all busted!" M. M. F.

...ay Reception at Arts Club Opens Season

BY THALIA

ALTHOUGH everybody at the Arts club's first tea yesterday afternoon didn't have the same reason for attending as the lady who blithely proclaimed, the while she munched a square of chocolate cake, that she was glad the club had opened again because now she could go to the teas and wouldn't have to have any supper afterwards, there was a gay and talkative crowd there. Everybody was welcoming everybody, hearing and telling about summer vacations, and chatting about winter plans. The tea table had big bowls of yellow roses on it, and many of the women wore smart new fall frocks and hats.

Tidbits heard over the teacups and elsewhere yesterday included the news that Mrs. Robert B. Gregory is to land in New York on Sunday from her annual summer stay in Switzerland . . . that a couple who were divorced about a year and a half ago are planning to remarry and go to Bermuda on their honeymoon . . . that the Carl Stifels are moving to New York City . . . that Stifel is in New York now, having been put in charge of the foreign department of his company, looking for an apartment, and when Mrs. Stifel returns in a few weeks she'll move right away] . . . that Mrs. Stifel's sister, Mrs. William S. Covington, departed yesterday for Washington, D. C., for the winter, the Covington Lake Forest house having been leased by Robert Hyatt, who had the Don Spaldings' house this summer . . . that Mrs. Julie Manierre Mann has added making a series of photographs of the gardens and house of Mrs. Kinzie Colvin in Lake Forest and will date them all up in a book.

Furthermore, that Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr. is to depart next week for a bit trip,—about 5 weeks in all, to Europe . . . that the Carter H. Harrisons and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Carter Harrison Jr., are to sail for the country on Oct. 21, and that their daughter, Mrs. Edson Manierre, who had had a house on the Riviera all summer, sailed last week.

Also . . . that Mrs. Secor Cunningham Jr. is coming back here to live, that she's landing in New York on Saturday, will be there for several days and then come on to Chicago . . . that Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt and her son-in-law and daughter, the Dexter Cummingses, with luggage liberally plastered with foreign stickers, were also getting off the Century yesterday morning, as also were Mrs. Columbus Tuley and her mother, Mrs. Edward Ridgeway.

The committee in charge of selling seats for the Tex Crites memorial polo game at Oak Brook next Sunday is headed by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler, with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kimball, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Sheldon as co-chairmen, and Mrs. Victor Buchanan, Mrs. Lee Budge, Mrs. G. Leslie Dunn, Mrs. John Fetzer, Mrs. James A. Hannah, Mrs. Herbert A. Hutchinson, Mrs. W. Robert Johnston, Mrs. Marshall Keig, Mrs. Richard Lamb, Mrs. Anson Mark Jr., Mrs. Ralph McClelland, Mrs. E. E. Myers, Mrs. G. T. May III., Mrs. Russell Stevens, and Mrs. M. L. Stockton also serving.

There is football every afternoon these days at the Winter club in Lake Forest. There are 3 teams, senior, intermediate, and junior, and they are practicing strenuously. For the time being the junior polo team's plans are in abeyance, and the polo ball has been replaced in boyish interest by the pigskin.

The Kobe College corporation is sponsoring a dinner to celebrate the laying of the first corner stone of the new campus of Kobe college in Okadayama, Japan, on Monday evening, Oct. 12, at the Chicago Woman's club. The corner stone laying is to take place the same day as the dinner. Dean Shaller Mathews, president of the board of directors, will preside.

Interesting newcomers to Chicago are Mrs. Susan More Roediger and her daughter, Miss Virginia Roediger, who have been living in New Haven, Conn., for the last three years while Miss Virginia studied for her master's degree in arts. They've taken Mrs. Clair E. More's apartment at 227 East Delaware place and Miss Virginia is doing costume and scene designing at the Goodman theater. Mrs. More is to be with Mrs. Horace Hayward at 219 Lake Shore drive for October, and plans to leave early in November to spend the winter in Florida and California.

As for more winter plans—Mr. and Mrs. John A. Vincent have liked being in Barrington so well this summer that they have given up their apartment in town and are planning to remain there for the winter. They moved a few days ago from the Carter Harrison Jr. house to another one nearer the town.

The Boyd Hills are likewise to stay in the country this winter. They've had their furniture moved out to Lake Forest from their Cedar street apartment and have had their house enlarged in spots to accommodate their needs.

The Joseph Beuttases are having some alterations and enlargements made in what used to be Mr. Beuttas' bachelor apartment at 720 Cass street and are to live there when they move in from Exmoor.

Miss Olga de Tarnowsky, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Tarnowsky, who was graduated last June from the School of Fine Arts in Boston, is to continue her work in the School of Fine Arts extension course in Florence, Italy, and will be enrolled in Miss Nixon's school.

600 Farm Boys and Girls from Ohio Visit Chicago

Nearly 600 boys and girls, Four-H club champions from Ohio farms, many of whom had never before ridden on a train, were entertained in Chicago yesterday. A special train on the New York Central lines brought them to Chicago and took them home again last night. Under the direction of City Greeter Gaw, the young visitors, their parents, and chaperons were taken on a tour of the stockyards, the Field museum, the Shedd aquarium, and a portion of the boulevard system.

PLANNING FOR YEARLY SALE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The Junior league committee in charge of the second hand clothing sale to be held on Oct. 16 attended a tea yesterday afternoon given by the chairmen, Miss Dorothy and Miss Barbara Senn, at their residence at 1242 Astor street. Mrs. James R. Addington was one of the league members who brought contributions of hats and dresses.

This Is Time of Year for Planting Shrubs for Next

The most opportune days of all the year for the setting out of shrubs and small trees has arrived and is available for the beautification of home exteriors until severe weather arrives. This advice is from veterans in the service of the west parks commission, including August Koch, chief florist.

Nurseries have begun digging and shipping stock for this fall planting. A few timely hints as to the treatment which will help these new plantings to get established may help the amateur. As in the case of most transplantings, if there are any leaves on the shrubs or trees, the major part of them should be removed to aid in the preliminary stage of rooting.

Shrubs should be cut back one-third to one-half, also to aid in getting the plant established. Trees should never be topped because this destroys symmetry, but about two-thirds of the previous year's growth can be cut back. Mutilated roots should also be cut back to sound wood.

Holes for planting should be large enough to accommodate the root system without crowding, planting just a little deeper than when in the nursery row, working the soil in between the roots, tamping firmly and leaving a depression at the surface to hold water. And then don't forget to water.

Mulching with strawy manure or litter is one of the best types of insurance against winter damage. Overplanting is warned against, as it makes a yard look crowded and smaller than it is. Hedges planted along the front lot line where there is a very small front yard are out of place, as a grass plot, with shrubs in the corners, would add to the appearance of size.

African Hunting Lecture at the Field Museum

Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot, head of the medical school of the University of Pittsburgh, sportsman and traveler, will deliver a lecture on "An African Hunting Trip" at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Field Museum of Natural History. This will be the first of the museum's free lectures on science and travel. The talk will be illustrated by motion pictures and colored stereopticon slides.

Tours of exhibits conducted by guide lecturers will begin at 11 a. m. Monday, with "Reptiles and Amphibians." "Crystals and Gems" will be given at 3 p. m.

A free program of four motion pictures, sponsored by the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation, will be presented to children at 10 a. m. and 11 a. m. tomorrow. The films are "Elephant Seals," "Shooting Rapids," "The Woolly West," and "Cowboy Thrills."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—President Hoover has as a guest at the White House Mark L. Requa of California, who lived in Washington during the world war.

Mrs. Albert D. Lasker, who has been in Washington for several days with her daughter, Miss Frances Lasker, left tonight for her home in Lake Forest and Miss Lasker entered Miss Madeira's school.

Mrs. Edward Beale McLean had a few guests at luncheon today in her Massachusetts avenue home which her mother, Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, has occupied since her father's death. Mrs. Walsh is now in her new country home on Bradley lane.

The marriage is announced of Miss Greenwood, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Arthur Greenwood of Washington, Ind., to Harold Nystrom, son of Judge Charles Harold Nystrom of South Dakota.

WEAKEST NAVY SINCE PRE-WAR DAYS IN STORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The combat strength and fighting efficiency of the United States fleet is slated to drop to its lowest levels since pre-war days if plans worked out by the navy in conformity with White House economy directions are put into effect.

CHARLES F. ADAMS

The fiscal year 1933 under the proposed plans will find the actual operating fleet reduced in warships and enlisted personnel. In addition, some as yet undetermined fraction of the fleet in commission would be kept laid up at all times undergoing repairs and manned by only 25 per cent of its crew. Battleships in operation with the fleet at any one time probably would be cut from the 15 allowed by the treaty to from 9 to 11; the carriers, from 3 to 2; cruisers, from 18 to 15; destroyers, from the present 90 to 70 or 75, and submarines, from 56 for the current year to 40 or 45.

Adams Calls Adviser.

A special emergency meeting of ranking admirals and navy bureau chiefs has been called for tomorrow afternoon by Secretary Adams to study out ways and means of meeting President Hoover's orders to slash naval budget estimates for 1933 from 401 millions to 340 millions. The major cog of the navy economy plan is a ship rotation plan whereby ships in commission will alternate in going into navy yards, where they will surrender 75 per cent of their crews until they again join the fleet, and other vessels take their places.

In event of emergency the navy would be able to put into the battle line only those ships which were fully manned. Vessels with 25 per cent crews would have to stay in dock until new personnel could be obtained. As stated yesterday 5,000 men would be dropped from the navy by this arrangement.

A reduction from the current marine enlisted strength of 16,000 also probably will be made, while building operations will be slowed up to an extent which is expected to sever several hundred men from the pay rolls at building yards.

Status of Battleships.

The United States began the current fiscal year with 17 battleships assigned to its operating program. One of these was a training ship, another was in process of being scrapped. Three of these ships are now being modernized, leaving 13 actually able to operate with the fleet. The three will be slowed up so that they will not be available for fighting purposes or operation in 1933. The training ship Wyoming probably will be placed on a decommissioned status, while the Arkansas, the navy's only active 12 inch gun battleship, will be used for training purposes. In event the rotating plan is adopted it is probable some percentage of the remaining battleships will be kept in port, with 25 per cent personnel.

The Lexington and Saratoga, giant carriers, and the training aircraft carrier, Langley, probably would alternate on a program which would keep one of them constantly in port with but 25 per cent personnel.

John P. Harding Marks 35 Years as Restaurateur

John P. Harding, restaurateur, yesterday celebrated the approximate thirty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the restaurant business in Chicago. His first restaurant venture here, after coming from Peru, Ill., was a small restaurant at Blue Island avenue and Twelfth street. Later he was associated with the Planter's hotel for many years as manager and president. Mr. Harding celebrated at the same time the opening of the New Madison room in his restaurant at 68 West Madison street, carving the corn beef himself for his luncheon guests, who included Mayor Cermak and City Sealer Joe Grein.

JOHN SIMMONS.

Lebanon, Ind., Oct. 1.—(AP)—John W. Simmons, Hancock county farmer, today appeared in the surprise rôle of witness against his wife, Mrs. Carrie Barrett Simmons, alleged poisoner of her daughters, Alice Jean, 10, and Virginia, 14.

Simmons was a reluctant witness. He was called by the state and for nearly two hours made careful replies to the questions of Roy W. Adney, assistant prosecutor.

During today's session the jury was completed and the attorneys had made lengthy addresses outlining their respective cases.

Ben M. Scifres, speaking for the state, declared it would be shown that Mrs. Simmons had administered poison to her two daughters two weeks before they finally met death here after eating sandwiches in which capsules containing poison had been inserted.

Simmons, during his testimony, was led by Roy W. Adney, prosecuting attorney with Scifres, into a review of events of Sunday, June 21, when the Simmons family packed a picnic lunch, made preparations for the trip from their farm home near Greenfield to a family reunion here, and of the discovery of poison in the sandwiches when the lunch was served.

SOCIAL STAFF OF U. S. A-FLUTTER TO WELCOME LAVAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The first major test of the efficiency of the state department's recently created division of protocol will come the latter part of this month, when Pierre Laval, premier of France, arrives in the United States for a short seven day call on President Hoover and state department officials. The new division, set up a month ago, after state department officials decided that the formal social activities of the government had reached the point where a special ceremonials group was necessary to care for them, began to prepare for the Laval visit a week ago.

A tentative program setting forth the functions Premier Laval and his party would attend has been sent to Paris for approval. It calls for the attendance of the premier at a formal White House dinner and several other formal gatherings. All details for the official call to be paid by the distinguished French guest on President Hoover already have been worked out. Long before the date for the White House visit all the various government officials and army, navy, and marine officers who will participate in the function will have been made letter perfect in their parts.

It is considered probable that Premier Laval will make his home at the French embassy where he will be free to have wine at the dinner table if he desires to do so. Prime Minister MacDonald was entertained at the Rapidan fishing camp by President Hoover and it is considered likely that M. Laval will be asked to spend a week-end on the Rapidan.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox now know why Guy Bush, the swarthy Mississippian, was the author of two one hit triumphs in the recent National league campaign. They faced him yesterday and by virtue of Vic Frasier's equally brilliant work were able to carry their fight into the ninth inning. But two Cub hits then crashed into the open record and the present municipal champions evened up the city series by capturing the second game at Wrigley field, 1 to 0, before 11,407.

Frasier, after an exhibition almost as brilliant as that of Old Folks Fair the day before, had to accept defeat in the ninth because of Ki Cuyler and Vin Barton. Prior to that only three Cub hits had been produced, the third coming as early as the fourth inning when Les Bell singled into center with two out.

In the interval Frasier was perfect. The only breaks in the monotony of Cubs walking up and walking back were caused by a couple of hits and Lu Blue's second fielding mistake. Frasier pulled out of these jams without exerting himself.

Watwood's Slip Helps.

When Cuyler came up in the ninth inning there was one out. Kiki hit a line drive into right center and when Watwood slipped as he fielded the ball Cuyler demonstrated the value of speed. The momentary delay permitted him to stretch his contribution into a double.

When Bell, with two of the three batty hits to his credit, hoisted a high infield foul to Grube, it looked as if the spectators would enjoy an added portion for their money. But Barton stopped that. After taking one ball and one strike, he slashed a single almost to the same spot in which Cuyler's double had landed. Cuyler was across the plate so quickly that Watwood didn't even attempt a throw in.

Where it was a matter of getting into trouble and then out of it, Bush was carried off the honors. Besides yielding six hits, one more than Frasier, Bush tempted the Sox with four walks. There was one time when the bases were filled by the American leaguers.

Bush Fans Seven.

But when in difficulties, which was true of five innings, he didn't let his foes pound the ball past the inner defense. There was only once when his fielding helped him. Bell responded in that pinch. As proof that he really had something the Sox couldn't see, Bush rolled up seven strikeouts. Kerr was victimized twice.

Both clubs began reaching for runs as early as the first inning. Blue led off with a walk and Cissell attempted to bunt, but popped to Bush. Blue's goal of second was offset by Jolley's fine of a third swing. Then Blue, after seeing he was trapped off second, tried to save himself by stealing third, but he didn't get there. The Cubs' half was opened by English's single, but he was forced by Herman, and Cuyler bounced into a double play.

The Sox waxed a bit bolder in the second inning, and a one handed stab was the only thing that kept them from going places. Fonseca opened with a two base drive to the left field bleacher. Barton took Sullivan's fly. Then Watwood lined one

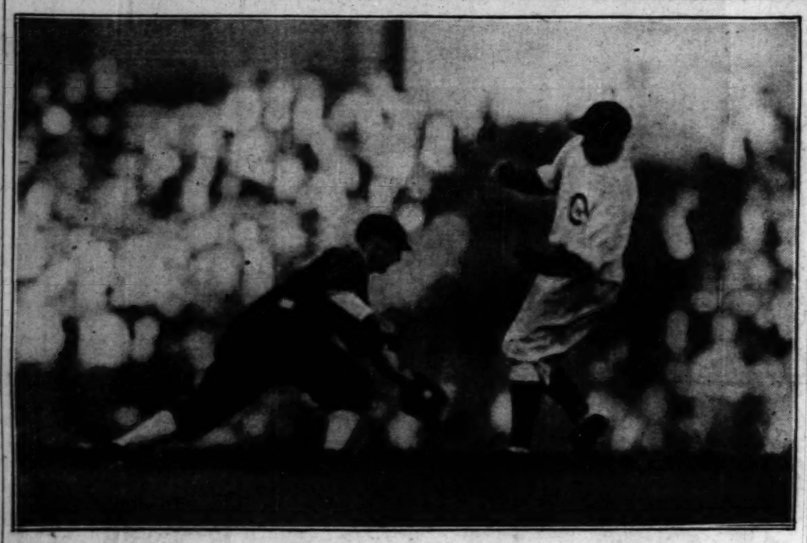
VICTORY RIDES WITH THIS PLAY



Kiki Cuyler charges into second base ahead of Johnny Watwood's throw to Johnny Kerr in the ninth inning of yesterday's city series game. Johnny fell down fielding Cuyler's hit, enabling Kiki to get to second, from where he scored the only run of the game a moment later.

Lu Blue Leads Sox with .375 in City Series

Lu Blue, the Sox's agile first sacker, committed two errors yesterday, but he can point with pride to the fact that he is leading his mates as a hitter. He walked twice yesterday and was retired twice, giving him a two game total of eight times up and three hits for a .375 average. He lost a hit yesterday when English made a leap to one side for a blistering liner.

Vic Frasier spent the afternoon serving fast balls seasoned with slow curves, but the big item in his defense was his ability to keep his pitches close enough to the plate to force the Cubs to swing and not play a waiting game.

Irving Jeffries, the Sox infielder, will get a share of the series money merely by sitting on the bench in his civies. He can't perform because of torn ligaments in his left arm, caused by his recent effort to knock down a concrete wall at Shibe park, Philadelphia.

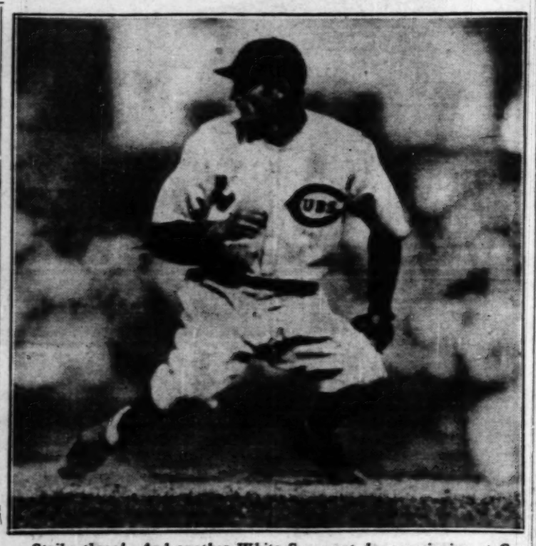
Frasier, being a strong youngster unopposed to labor, probably will be put back on the job in the Sunday game at Comiskey park. Faber could hardly make his second start after only three days of rest.

The Cubs didn't try to alibi their failure to hit Red Faber in the opening game. Most of them volunteered the information yesterday that the veteran had shown them about as deadly a spitball as they ever hope to see.

Toward the end of the game Hornsby sent both Root and Malone to the bull pen to prepare themselves for a possible relief rôle. They weren't needed.

The players, who get 60 per cent of $5 per cent of the gross of the first four games, are hoping that the south side fans respond today and tomorrow when the games are staged at Comiskey park. Judging by the cheering thus far the Cub adherents have been about 70 per cent of those in attendance.

Smead Jolley has trouble getting around on one good leg, but he didn't look like a cripple in the fifth. He raced back to the fence in right center to take a long fly off Dan Taylor's bat.



Strike three! And another White Sox went down swinging at Guy Bush's swift in yesterday's city series game. Bush struck out seven and allowed only six hits to win, 1 to 0. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

190 POUND LINE TO BATTLE N. U. IN HUSKER GAME

Nebraska Eleven Arrives in Chicago Today.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—A squad of 31 Nebraska football players left Lincoln tonight to meet the Northwestern Wildcats at Evanston on Saturday. The team will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning.

After the final practice on the home field today, Coach Dana X. Bible nominated a starting lineup which will find Schmidt and Durkee at ends; Rhea and Gilbert, tackles; Koster and Justice, guards; Ely, center; Bauer, quarter; Sauer and Boswel, half backs, and Kreizinger, full back—an aggregation of six letter men and five sophomores.

"We are neither claiming nor conceding anything as to our game with the Wildcats," Coach Bible said. "Nebraska is in good shape and the spirit of the squad is fine in every way."

PURPLE ENDS DRILL

Northwestern's football team wound up three weeks of intensive drill yesterday in preparation for the opening of the 1931 season against Nebraska at Dyche stadium tomorrow. The Wildcats ran through a lively dummy scrimmage, terminating the workout with one last review of Cornhusker plays as exemplified by the freshmen.

The Wildcats have come through the pre-season practice in fine shape, only one of the regulars, Al Moore, being incapacitated with injuries. Moore, who was slated to start at left half tomorrow, will be replaced by Ken Meenan, 195 pound sophomore half back from Oak Park.

Coach Dick Hanley indicated that he was satisfied with the condition of his squad, although he expressed doubt over the strength of several positions in the line, principally at left guard and center. These spots must be filled by reserves from last year, and if any vulnerable spot is to be found in the Wildcat eleven this year the center of the line is the most liable to produce it.

Two last minute changes in the Wildcats' starting lineup were announced by Coach Hanley at the close of yesterday's workout. Ralph Eylar, veteran end, will start in place of Ed Manske, sophomore, who has been running with the first string eleven for the last week. George Potter, sophomore quarter back, was given the call over Will Lewis for the job tomorrow.

ASK RULING ON COLLEGE PLAYERS' WORK IN MOVIES

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—University of Washington has asked the governing body of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate conference for a ruling on the eligibility of football players who participate in motion picture work—particularly pictures in which the grid men play the parts of college football players—during the summer. If the request should be followed up by a ruling adverse to the amateur standing of the collegians it might disqualify half the University of Southern California roster.

Many of the Trojan players took part in a picture made during the summer and others appeared as football players in other sports films at other studios. Some of the Stanford players are also said to have done movie work. The salary generally paid to collegians who play football in films is $25 a day.

Grove Won't Talk for You, but He'll Throw Some Baseballs

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—A big sullen hill billy from the Maryland corn liquor country, a left hander with a resentful expression in two little ink blot eyes set close to a razor back nose, today rebuked the pretensions of the St. Louis Cardinals in the opening game of the world series produced for the entertainment of 28,529 attending customers and vast numbers of absentee radio kibitzers. He won his ball game, 6 to 2.

The name of the party is Moses Grove. People didn't treat him kindly when he was a young fellow coming along with the Orioles and the Athletics a few years ago, and, like a horse that has been misused as a yearling, old Mose is still socially defensive against one and all.

Not Exactly a Hail Fellow.

He won't sign score cards for kids. He spends much of his time folded up in deep lobby chairs inhaling noxious fumes from black, hoe handle cigars, and a little while ago when a big middle name writer from one of the eastern magazines looked him up, wishing to spatter him over with that gaudy importance which the public enjoys in distinguished athletes, he scowled down his long beak, kicked up a puff of dirt with his toe cleat and grumbled, "I ain't putting out no dope for no writeups without I get paid."

So he isn't a Ruth or a Dempsey in the matter of affability and the story of his life may never be written, a great loss to literature, no doubt. But he can flip a baseball as nobody else among all the thousands who play the game for fun or revenue, and today he beat the champions of the National league with the same rather vindictive emphasis that distinguished his work all season in his own league.

Mose Gets Even.

When Mose was new in the majors a few years back the athletes of the other clubs tormented him with their harsh banter and their silent vulgarities uttered in the ball player's eloquent finger language from the shadows of the dugouts. He was walking an average of a hundred hitters a year in those days, and for a long while only Connie Mack, who had spent $100,000 for him, believed that he would ever learn to pitch major league ball. And even in Mr. Mack's case the price was father to the thought.

So now old Mose is giving the world its come-uppance, and once today when the Cardinals were giving him a little annoyance in the first inning he threw a ball so hard that when the hitter fouled it back against the grandstand a big steel girder rang like a gong from the impact.

Bright Young Man Fades.

The Cardinals were using their bright young man, Paul Derringer, against him, and for a few innings it looked as though their bright young man, starting a world series game in his first year in the majors, was the equal of Mose Grove. He put away four of the first six hitters on strikeouts while the Cardinals were trifling with Mose to the sum of four hits and two runs in the first.

But Mose got better and Derringer's

New York Odds Make Athletics 4 to 1 Favorite

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Lefty Grove, vulnerable, but still victorious, shifted the Broadway betting odds by his triumph over the Cardinals and Paul Derringer today. Jack Doyle, Broadway commissioner who originally priced the entire series at 1 to 2 against the Athletics and 8 to 5 against the Red Birds, tonight gave Connie Mack's champions an additional edge by setting the new prices of 1 to 4 against the Athletics and 3½ to 1 against the Cardinals.

For the second contest tomorrow, however, Doyle has shaved the odds to even money against the Cardinals and 4 to 5 against the Athletics.

Betting today was unusually brisk, Doyle said, with much larger wagers being laid than last year, indicating either that betters have escaped the depression or that confidence in the Cardinals is greater than before. Today's pregame price of 6 to 5 against the Cardinals, based partly upon the uncertainty of Lefty Grove's starting, promptly went up to 9 to 5 again when news came that Grove was warming up to pitch the first game.

Failure to Get That Third Hit Beat Us, Says Street

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—(AP)—"We lost because we couldn't get that third hit."

That was Manager Gabby Street's explanation for the defeat of the Cardinals in the first game of the world series today. Street, usually genial and affable, was a gruff old sarge as he marched into the clubhouse with his conquered players following him single file. They trooped into the showers sullen and disappointed.

"We had that game in the old bag three times today, and if we had been lucky enough to get that third hit not even Simmons' home run would have been enough to beat us," Street said.

"That kid Derringer pitched great ball and deserved to win. Nervous? Not a bit of it. He was as cool as a cucumber. I probably will shoot him right back at them. Tomorrow is another day, and Bill Hallahan will be in there for us. If he is right he can't lose."

Derringer Is Puzzled.

Paul Derringer, the 25 year old rookie, playing his first year in the major leagues, declared the Athletics were lucky to win.

"Why," he said, "I can't see how they won. I thought I had them handcuffed almost all afternoon. You can't tell me that a guy who looks bad on four or five pitched balls of the same type—pitched to the same spot—isn't lucky when he socks the same kind of ball into the bleachers. That's the way it was all afternoon. If Gabby starts me again I'll lick 'em."

Praise for the defeated Cardinals and praise for his own players was liberally given by Manager Connie Mack.

"It's a great thing to win the first game," Mack said. "It gives my club a real edge, but we are in for a tough series, judging from the opposition the Cardinals gave us today. I am making no prediction as to the outcome, although I am hopeful we will be fortunate enough to win. We must face tomorrow's game just as if today's game had not been won."

Pitcher Impresses Mack.

Mack declared that Derringer impressed him as having the ability to become one of the great pitchers of all time. He said the youngster had the Athletics on the run for two innings and that if he had retained control he might have maintained his advantage to the finish.

"But he tried to do it all by himself," Mack added. "He really tried too hard in those first two innings. He forgot there were eight other Cardinals on the field. Now that he has learned he must not try to strike out every batter, I believe he will give us far more trouble before the series is over."

Mack said that Grove was not the real Grove until the third inning, but from there on he was a masterful pitcher.

Gains Control in Third.

"For two innings his control was such that he seemed unable to do anything but put the ball right through the heart of the plate. After the second inning, however, his control came to him and he used his head. Grove is a much smarter pitcher than he was two years ago."

Mack also praised Pepper Martin and Walter Roettger, Cardinal outfielders, declaring that, while they had little to do in the field, their work at bat against Grove demonstrated to him that they are players of real class.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—Robert Moses Grove, whose heart is as big as a lion's in the matter of courage and as small as a pea in the matter of generosity, led the world championship Philadelphia Athletics to victory in the opening game of the world series with the St. Louis Cardinals here this afternoon. The score was 6 to 2, and the affair was witnessed by 38,529, less than 1,060 under the announced capacity of Sportsman's park, the Cardinals' field.

To all intents and purposes the contest was over before the first third of the game had been completed. The Cardinals got four hits and both their runs off Grove in the first inning, before the great Lefty got warmed up. And the Athletics showed Paul Derringer that a world series opener is no gentle spot for a major league freshman when they made four runs in the third inning.

Simmons Hits Homer.

Al Simmons' homer, following Mickey Cochrane's single, in the seventh sealed Mr. Derringer's doom in the minds of the home customers. But to nonpartisan observers it seemed apparent that the decision had been reached when Mule Haas scored the Athletics' third run in that big third inning.

The Cardinals outhit the Athletics, 12 hits to 11, but this never seems to make any difference to the A's, who know by now that verdicts are decided on the runs and not the hits. Grove, you'll recall, was touched for more hits than the A's made in the opener last year, but won, 5 to 2.

Derringer a Whiz at Start.

During the first two innings it appeared that Derringer would be some one to talk about for a few decades. In the first inning he threw a ball to Bishop, and then three straight strikes to fan him. Haas fanned on three straight strikes and Cochrane tapped to Gelbert.

The Cards in their half made two runs and had men on third and second when the fire went out. The enthusiasm of the home folks was indeed rampant.

Then in the second inning the great Simmons tapped to Gelbert and Foxx and Miller fanned. The Red Bird partisans scarcely could contain themselves. But Grove was getting loosened up and in the Cards' half confined the merriment to a single by High after two were out.

Dykes Starts Run Riot.

Then came the Philadelphia third. Dykes led off with the first hit off Derringer, a scratch, which took a lofty bounce past High. Williams followed with a single to right, which put Dykes on third. Grove was called out on strikes, the first of his three strikeouts which helped form Derringer's eventual total of nine.

The great pressure seemed relieved when Bishop bounced to Bottomley and Dykes was run down and sunk between third and home. The panic was on again, however, when Haas doubled to left, scoring Williams from second and planting Bishop on third.

Walk Forces In Bishop.

Derringer ran the count on Cochrane to three balls and two strikes, then passed him to fill the bases. He pitched three balls and two strikes to Simmons, then missed the plate by a silky whisper to walk Al and force in Bishop with the tying run.

The bases still were full, of course, and Jimmy Foxx further disturbed the situation with a single to center, which scored Haas with the winning run and Cochrane with a run that never was needed. That's where the party became just another ball game. You could see the Cards wilting and the A's counting upon their fingers the winners' end of the dough.

Usually when Grove is pitching with a lead in hand spectators don't look around much for heroes. Though this condition existed for two-thirds of today's game, a few personalities were able to strut hastily through Grove's spotlight.

ATHLETICS WHIP CARDINALS, 6-2, TO OPEN SERIES

Simmons Hits Homer to Rout Derringer.

There was Simmons' homer, of course, and Al also showed that he also goes in for the fielding phase of the baseball profession when he made the best play of the day to pull down Wilson's drive in the seventh just as it was about to crash off the left field wall.

Martin Collects Three Hits.

Then there was Pepper Martin, a first year man, who doubled in the first inning, singled in the fourth and again in the sixth, to head the Cardinal batting forces.

Derringer's nine strikeouts, seven of which came in the first four innings, were not to be sniffed at, despite the young man's sad fate.

Frankie Frisch, who held the record for total hits and total singles in world series play before his seventh series started today, added to his tabulation with two singles, which increased his total world series hits to 47 and his total world series singles to 37.

National league enthusiasts looked a bit sick after the game. Today's American league triumph was the 17th in the 20 games played since the Cards won the last world championship for the National league in 1926. It was Grove's third world series victory as compared with one defeat.

But National league hope is not dead after one contest and Bill Hallahan, who scored a 5 to 0 victory in his St. Louis game last year, is said to be confident that he can lick Earnshaw in tomorrow's encounter.

Here's How Cards Scored.

After tomorrow's game the teams will move to Philadelphia, where the third, fourth, and fifth games will be played, beginning Monday.

The Cardinals scored their runs as follows: High, in the lineup because of injuries to Sparky Adams, opened the Cardinal offensive by striking out. Wally Roettger lined a hit to center and went to third on Frisch's single to right. Bottomley scratched a hit over second, Roettger scoring and Frisch stopping at second.

Hafey, National league batting champion, didn't look like it with the feeble strikeout which he executed, but Martin smashed a double off the right field screen. Frisch scored easily, of course, but Bottomley was obliged to stop at third because Bing Miller played the ball perfectly on the rebound off the netting. The Cards' scoring was over for the day when Williams threw out Wilson.

Dykes Victimized in Sixth.

The Cardinal sixth, when the score was 4 to 2, produced some fun, principally because it brought some embarrassment to Dykes, who is known as a very proud ballplayer.

Hafey singled with one down and stopped at second. After Wilson had flied to Simmons, Hafey stole third by sliding under Dykes, and Dykes began to squawk on Umpire McGowan's decision. Seeing Dykes in the throes of his alibi maneuver, Martin ran down to second while Dykes held the ball. Dykes' lapse resulted in nothing serious, for the inning ended when Williams threw out Gelbert.

Cubs Defeat Sox, 1 to 0, to Even Series

wickedly toward third, and it was labeled a hit until Bell ran out his left hand and flagged it. There was an ideal opening for a double play, but Herman didn't cover second in time. No harm was done by the oversight, because Kerr bounced gently to Bush.

Cubs' Threat Blasted.

The Cubs' second inning attack started as if they would have no trouble in scoring. Bell opened with a single to right. Barton bounced to Blue, who made a hurried underhand peg to second. It was just low enough to make Cissell miss it and thus lose his man. Dan Taylor then inadvertently messed up the situation. He endeavored to sacrifice, but Grube grabbed the bunt on the fly in foul territory and whipped it to first before Barton could get back. The threat passed out entirely on Grimm's easy grounder to Blue.

Bush put on a peculiar exhibition of pitching in the fifth. He fanned three men, but this didn't prevent the Sox from filling the bases. The fanning started with Watwood and Kerr. Grube indicated he might also strike out, but after two strikes he picked off a slow ball and looped it over short for a single. Frasier carried on by singling to center. A walk to Blue then loaded the bases. Bush moved back on solid ground in a hurry by getting Cissell on strikes.

Blue's second miscue gave the Cubs another chance to score in the sixth, but Frasier didn't permit them to become overly enthusiastic. After Bush had been tossed out on a hopper to short, English walked. Herman aimed a hard grounder at Blue and it slipped through his hands. With Cuyler and Bell coming up, there was reason to think something might happen, but the former flied to Watwood and Kerr dashed back into short right center for Bell's popup.

Sox Lose Final Chance.

A walk to Barton at the start of the seventh gave Frasier something to think about, but another sacrifice went wrong and Grimm bounced into a double play. The next protest came from the Sox. Cissell singled to left after two were out in the eighth, but Jolley couldn't get the ball out of the infield. Their ninth was even better. Fonseca, the first man up, walked, but Bush killed off Sullivan and Watwood on pops to Bell and fanned Kerr. Then up came Mr. Cuyler and Mr. Barton.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, the city series between the Cubs and White Sox now is one and one. That means there will be a "crucial" game today at Comiskey Park, if there can be a crucial game in this particular city series.

Now this second game of the series was what we used to call a pitcher's "doo-el" back in the days when I was a regular baseball reporter instead of just a reporter looking for the breaks of the game. That means that the two pitchers, Guy Bush and Vic Frasier, mixed up their offerings and baffled the swatsmen — who weren't swatting—with their dazzling assortment of curves and fast ones, only sometimes they weren't curves and sometimes they were slow floaters instead of fast ones. That's why I say mixed their offerings, you know.

Well, thus it went for eight innings, nip and tuck, principally tuck, with neither side scoring. So, as the shadows began to lengthen in the big amphitheater as a result of the sun seeking its nightly rest in the west, it began to look as if darkness, in its embracing friendliness, might envelop the scene before the issue was determined. That was because Bush and Frasier were pitching so well, Arch.

So that was the situation for eight innings and all that time I was looking for breaks just as you said I should. Well, there wasn't a single break that I could recognize unless you call it a break when coffee and a sandwich were passed. You see, in the first game when they passed them, I didn't take any because I thought you wouldn't stand for "extra meals" on my expense account. But I didn't see any one else pay, so I asked about it and the boys said that's what you get for being a member of the Baseball Writers' Association of America of which I am one, and the dues are $10 a year, and the other privilege is voting for the official scorer at the city series.

As I was saying, that was the situation when the Cubs went to bat for the last half of the ninth, determined to do or die, as it were. Up to that time the Sox had made six hits off Bush and the Cubs had made only three off Frasier. Herman was the first to face the opposing Sox hurler. He trundled a grounder to Sullivan who pegged across the diamond to Blue for an out at first. Then Kiki Cuyler who hadn't kept his bat very busy all afternoon, drove a sweet liner to center and pulled up at second base. He didn't exactly pull up because he ran as fast as he could but anyway he was safe on second. Bell pop foul flied to Grube.

So the situation, Arch, was now two out and Cuyler still on second. Then Vin Barton swished a daisy cutter over second base into center field with such speed that its progress along the greensward sounded like the hired man eating celery, as we used to say when I was a regular baseball reporter. It was so far out Watwood didn't even attempt to make the return throw to catch Cuyler at the plate and the game was over with a bachelor tally for the Cubs.

Well, Arch, I've been at this city series two days looking for breaks and there weren't any in the second game and perhaps there won't be any in the third game at Comiskey park. As a result, I'm sort of discouraged. Don't you think maybe I better look up the Nebraska football team and ask their coach whether the Cornhuskers—that's the nickname for Nebraska—are going to beat Northwestern Saturday? But anything you say is all right. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

P. S.—I got on the wrong "L" and had to pay an extra fare getting to the game. I don't suppose I ought to put that on the expense account, had I?

Grove Won't Talk for You, but He'll Throw Some Baseballs

effective limit was just two innings, for the Athletics rushed him off his poise in the third with four hits and two bases on balls, which gave them four runs, enough to win.

After that the customers slumped back, raising only occasional localized cheers, and the first world series game progressed to an obvious conclusion in comparative quiet. It is a false impression that people have of the world series as two hours of mass howling. This is probably the only subject on which the statisticians of the two leagues do not keep decimal statistics, but a check would show that the crowds spend long spells in almost melancholy silence, disturbed by only a faint rustling and the clickety jabber of the telegraph machinery in the press coop.

Al Does Some Fielding.

The home run of the day, without which no world series would be complete, was dumped into the left field bleachers by Al Simmons in the seventh inning, scoring Mickey Cochrane from first and completing the day's run production. The Polak, as the athletes call Mr. Simmons in their loving repartee, also went back to the same wall a little bit later and leaped high to make a backhand catch of Wilson's fly, which seemed to have home run aspirations, too.

This great grab, incredible until Simmons whirled around with his glove aloft and the white speck plainly visible in the palm, was one of two excellent favors which the Athletics showed their Mr. Grove in the field. The other was a double play in the fourth which retired Martin and Wilson in an instant that seemed fraught with trouble. Wilson hit to Williams and the ball flashed from him to Bishop and over to Foxx at first, not like a yarn and rubber ball but like a thing of instinct.

Even Forget Mickey's Ears.

The lively persiflage between the rival benches which brightened the entertainment in last year's portrayal of the same scenario was not running today, and even Mickey Cochrane's prominent ears seemed to suggest no humorous ideas to the boys in the white and scarlet uniforms. Possibly they had been asked to disinfect their remarks, because both benches had been moved out from the obscurity of the dugouts and Judge Landis was sitting in a field box with his long-staple poll waving like a plume on a spear carrier's helmet.

The early exercises were of a familiar sort. A band played tolerable music in a position down behind third base. There was a tang of hot dogs, cigaret smoke, and a faint autumn smell of dead leaves blown from some distant bonfire. The press coop, which is beginning to assume the dignity of a senior, if sedentary arm of the world series service, was lively with little personal reunions, and infested with ball players attended by their ghosts.

Writing Boys Are There.

Some of the baseball writers who have been going to these shows, boy and man for twenty years or more, have come to be as much a part of the world series on the important social side as the players themselves are on the field. Players come and go, but Hughie [Percentage] Fullerton, who invented inside baseball and imparted an air of art and mystery to the game, keeps bobbing up year after year, a little more skinny each time, but also a little more firmly persuaded that the result can be predicted by the proper manipulation of some mathematical table extending into five decimal places.

Old Kid Gleason, packing almost as much age as Connie Mack himself, who is 70 now, spent twenty minutes whipping fungoes to the Athletics' infield with his little pipe stem fungo stick, a marvel of vigor and temper, too. When irritated at young infielders who call him Abner Doubleday, after the Union captain who introduced the game to the troops in the civil war, old Mr. Gleason can bend the ball as Tilden does with his tennis racket and it comes off the ground at sharp angles to gouge the shins and bend the knuckles back.

Breadon Looks Things Over.

Sam Breadon, a Tenth avenue boy from New York who made good selling automobiles, then bought the Cardinals cheap and presently built up a chain of ball clubs, walked the length of the temporary box seats on the sod in a final satisfied survey of his party just before the band brought the crowd up with the anthem.

Mr. Breadon does not place much store by world series vaudeville and he refused to hire Nick Altrock and Al Schacht to discourse their familiar world series idiotics, but he should have spared the customers the pathetic tantrums of a volunteer clown of local origin whose mirthless antics have been a pretty gruesome infliction these last few world series. Mr. Breadon's clown works for nothing, and it would be worth twice that to have him out of there.

ROCHESTER BEATS ST. PAUL, 5-2, IN SECOND GAME

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—The Rochester Red Wings of the International league evened up the little world series this afternoon, defeating St. Paul, 5 to 2, in the second contest before a crowd of 6,000.

The Red Wings pounded John Murphy in the sixth inning when they scored four runs. Prudhomme relieved Murphy and was followed by Harries.

St. Paul took the lead in the second inning when Durst's double sent Roettger, who had singled, to third. Roettger, scored while Delker was putting out Morrissey.

GANTON, Eng., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Wanda Morgan, who lost in the finals of the British championship to Enid Wilson, today won the English native title, defeating Molly Gourlay, 3 and 1, in the 36 hole final.

Players' Share of Opening Day Receipts Is $84,232

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—The attendance for the opening game of the world series was 38,529. Receipts were $165,161, and of this sum the players received $84,232.11; the clubs, $56,154.74, and the commissioner $24,-174.15.

It was just a little cloudy, but the sun batted about .750 during the day. The temperature was about 74.

Chick Hafey and Al Simmons, 1931 batting champions of their respective leagues, caused great excitement among the photographers, who still are looking for new ideas.

Connie Mack is in his eighth world series. He is seeking his sixth world championship. Three in a row, if the A's win the current series, will be a new record.

Dykes pulled the first boner of the series when he argued with the umpires on Hafey's steal. Pep Martin stealing second the while.

Mack still has another world series to go to tie John J. McGraw's record of nine world series with the New York Giants. But John almost has forgotten how it feels.

The Sportsman's park dugouts were abandoned the same as last year. The Card and A's benches were arranged in front of the dugouts, flush with the temporary filled boxes.

When Frisch singled in the first inning he simply added to two world series records he already held—for the most hits and the most singles in all time world series play. The first inning smack was Frankie's forty-sixth world series hit and his thirty-sixth world series single.

STEEL DISTRICT GIVES INDIANA ITS GRID PUNCH

7 of 20 Regulars from Gary Region.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 1.—Whatever Indiana university does in its football game Saturday against Notre Dame, or accomplishes in its six game Western conference schedule, depends largely on its Lake county and Northern Indiana players.

No other Big Ten university has been as varsity from so restricted a territory. Detroit supplies many of Michigan's stars; Cleveland sends many of its prep athletes to Ohio state, but the steel district of Indiana's Lake county has supplied the nucleus for the 1931 Hoosier varsity. From this region have come seven of the 20 players Coach E. C. Hayes has summoned for service against Notre Dame.

Four other Indiana regulars come from the northern portion of the state. Add to this list Stanley Saluski, former star at Parker High school, Chicago, and Jack Hansen of River Forest, Ill. Thus 13 of the 20 men who will play Saturday come from this Lake Michigan territory. Moreover, they have teamed up Notre Dame at South Bend, Purdue at Lafayette, and a score of secondary colleges for this southern Indiana university.

Zeller Leads Delegation.

Joe Zeller, Fighting Joe they call him here, leads Lake county's delegation. He comes from Washington high school, East Chicago. Zeller is a senior. Last year he was voted by his team mates as the most valuable player on the squad. Zeller is a guard on the offense, but is permitted to roam at will on defense. You'll find him wherever the ball is.

When Indiana was short of ends just before the Purdue game last year, Zeller was picked to plug the hole. He performed with his usual brilliance and Purdue was beaten. Zeller also is a basketball star and basketball at Indiana is played with a precision only rivaled by Purdue, another Hoosier state university.

Ambrose Rascher, another senior, is the outstanding tackle. He comes from Cedar Lake, Lake county.

Rose Opasik, another East Chicago high star, is in the backfield. Opasik is a junior. He can handle a football as if it were a basketball and his ability makes him invaluable in a passing attack. Opasik, also, is one of the team's best defensive men.

Meet the Dauer Brothers.

Then consider the Dauer brothers from Emerson High school, Gary. Vic, a senior, and Ray, a sophomore, are the one, two quarter backs. Neither played football in high school, but their basketball training enabled them to get a fast start in football.

The third choice for a team general is Fleming from Hammond. Bill Nye, a sophomore, from Horace Mann high, Gary, is considered a sure starter at guard. Horace Mann, several times state champion, has sent a high percentage of its players into major competition and Nylec is one of the best.

If we wanted to extend this list of players from Lake county we might mention Joe Morris, a senior tackle from East Chicago, and Keckich, a guard from Whiting. The regulars will miss Adolph Sabik Saturday. He was one of the half back finds, but a knee injury will keep this sophomore from Roosevelt High, East Chicago, out of the Notre Dame contest.

Predict a Sellout.

In addition to Saluski and Hansen, from Chicago and River Forest, there are Fitz Lyons and Bernard Dickey of Fort Wayne, Edwin Ungelmeyer, sophomore tackle from Goshen, and Bob Jones, the giant full back from Wabash. Jones is the team's punter. Lyons, a Negro whose large hands permit spectacular catches of forward passes, already has an unique record. Lyons opened Indiana's season last week against Ohio university with the kickoff, raced down the field and made the first tackle, and in the third period scored the first touchdown.

Seventeen thousand of the 32,000 seats in Memorial stadium already have been sold for the Notre Dame game. It is predicted that the remaining seats will be disposed of by Saturday. In this event, Indiana will have its second capacity crowd since the stadium was built.

A national broadcast, the first in Bloomington's history, indicates interest for Notre Dame is playing under a new coach, and if the Irish win they will tie the 20 game victory streak compiled in 1919, 1920, and the first two games of 1921.

Perhaps Indiana does not expect to win. It is confident, however, that the score will be close. But, more particularly, the Lake county boys are preparing a reception for Steve Banas, Notre Dame's full back.

Banas also comes from Washington high school, East Chicago. Last year when Notre Dame had more full backs than anything else Banas was kept on the bench. Now, however, with Nick Lukats, another Lake county player from Froebel High of Gary, injured Banas is the big shot of Notre Dame's line attack.

OHIO HAS PRACTICE GAME

Columbus, O., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Ohio State's first and second elevens played a practice game today. The game marked the last hard workout before they face the University of Cincinnati in the Ohio stadium Saturday. No changes in the lineup in use all week were made. Baumgarten, Mansfield, Vidas and Ferrall appeared in uniform, but took no part in the scrimmage. All except Vidas may see service against Cincinnati.

The team to start against the Bearcats probably will have four sophomores, five juniors and two seniors.

Lake Forest-Morgan Park Renew Series This Week

A football series begun in the early '90s and terminated about 15 years ago, will be renewed when Lake Forest academy meets Morgan Park Military academy at Morgan Park field. The game, starting at 2 o'clock, will be witnessed by many old time football players of both institutions.

Now Iowa Has Buried Family Skeleton, Comes Injury Jinx

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 1.—Just when the family skeleton caused by the University of Iowa's temporary expulsion from the Western conference has been firmly anchored somewhere on the muddy floor of the Iowa river, the Hawkeye institution finds its football troubles starting all over again.

Iowa was spanked and made to stand in the corner two years ago when a couple of its mates in the Big Ten decided it was cheating and told on the Hawkeyes. At the time Iowa thought it could tell a thing or two itself, but kept still and bore its penance until told to come in again. That was a case of proselyting, slush funds and such, but nothing compared to an assortment of broken legs, sprained knees and disarranged features, and today Coach Burton Ingwersen was willing to debate same with any and all comers.

No Weeping Over Troubles.

There is considerable weight back of Coach Ingwersen's argument, at that. When you're facing your first full schedule in two years in a league that kicked you outside for a spell, and you're opening your season with an opponent of Pittsburgh's caliber, as Iowa will do Saturday, and you find yourself with a dozen men, seven of them certain regulars, unfit for immediate duty, what do you do?

Of course, you could go off in a corner and have a quiet cry about the matter, but not Ingwersen, nor his team, nor Athletic Director Edward Lauer. Each new casualty—and all of them were recorded in ordinary practice—has only spurred the team to higher altitudes of enthusiasm, and both Dr. Lauer and Coach Ingwersen will tell you that the morale at Iowa this year has been better than at any time in the past.

An example of this was witnessed this afternoon. Ed Dolly, a husky young man from Rock Island, Ill., who was expected to be a regular guard until he turned up with a sprained knee, came fidgeting into the office of Dr. Leonard Ristine, the youthful medical adviser to the department of physical education, and suggested that he be poured into a suit and allowed to run up and down the field. Despite Mr. Dolly's willingness, it is doubtful if he will appear against Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Here's the Busiest Man.

Young Dr. Ristine is just about the busiest party on the campus and he has plenty of work before he straightens out the cripples, who are fast becoming a team in themselves. Here's the program for him, one that might interest a half dozen doctors:

Dolly—Sprained knee.

Francis Merten, end, Davenport, Ia.—Injured shoulder.

John O'Leary, guard, Cherokee—Sprained ankle.

Leo Samuelson, tackle, Decorah—Injured shoulder.

Gerald Foster, tackle, Iowa City—Influenza.

And then there's the one that Coach Ingwersen, Dr. Lauer, and Dr. Ristine always save for a crushing climax to their tale of woe. The player in question is a future doctor from Clinton, Marcus Magnussen by name, who was going to play center until last week, when he went out and got a broken leg for himself in practice, and now is lurching around on crutches.

Coach Ingwersen is quite philosophic about all of these little tragedies, as is his staff, composed of Gordon Locke, Rollie Williams and Burt Jenkins. Incidentally the staff may be augmented by the addition of Mike Farroh, the East Chicago, Ind., boy who was sent away from Iowa athletics during the great embarrassment of 1929. Mike turned up today, seeking a coaching job of one kind or another while he continues his studies and he probably will be employed in the near future.

Town Itself Is Loyal.

It's quite likely that Iowa City itself may have something to do with the spirit the team is showing in the face of these pre-season casualties. Throughout all of the excitement attending Iowa's banishment from the Big Ten the citizens of the town stuck to the school with a steadfast loyalty. Now that it's going into another full conference schedule with a crippled team, folks here are still with them.

They were distracted somewhat this afternoon by public radio broadcasts of a baseball game between two teams called the Macks and Cards in St. Louis, but Saturday afternoon there probably won't be a soul on Washington street from Whetstone's pharmacy to the central fire house. They'll most likely be over at the big new stadium, of which they're right proud, watching their boys battle Pittsburgh.

This is no longer the town that got sort of red in the face when you asked when Iowa was coming back into the Big Ten. Once again it's the same place where the Devines, Locke, Parkin, Slater and Belding walked to classes. Pittsburgh may whip the Hawkeyes by five touchdowns, but Iowa City will still be with them.

NOTRE DAME PICKS 44

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—If Coach Heartly Anderson of Notre Dame is taking Indiana lightly he did not indicate it today. After sending the first three teams through a long dummy scrimmage against Indiana formations, he named a squad of 44 men for the Bloomington trip.

Emmett Murphy will be the starting choice at quarter back, but five other men probably will see action in this position.

The team leaves at 8:30 tomorrow morning and will stay in Martinsville until game time Saturday. Following are the men who will make the trip:

Killing of Hen Pheasants Stirs Farmers to Action

BY BOB BECKER.

Hundreds of no trespass signs have been put up on farm lands and thousands of acres of what formerly was more or less open country for upland game hunters has gone out of "circulation" during the last two weeks as a result of Illinois' conservation farce, which permitted the killing of hen pheasants. Law abiding sportsmen in the state find themselves [as a result of this situation] checkmated in their efforts to increase game and bring farmers and hunters together on a joint program of bird propogation and limited hunting.

W. F. Lodge, governor of the tenth district of the Illinois division of the Isaak Walton league, said yesterday that thousands of acres in Champaign, Coles, Cumberland, Douglas, De Witt, Edgar, Macon, Moultrie, Platt, and Vermilion counties are now being posted by farmers, including considerable land which hitherto has been open to hunters.

In some cases the league has been asked to furnish no trespass signs, put them up and even help the owners of large tracts police them against the pothunters who are killing hen pheasants. Tomorrow and Sunday conservation authorities and Waltonians from the ten counties will assemble at Monticello, Ill., for a big field conference and two day outdoor program at which further plans for the protection of the pheasants will be discussed.

In Lake county steps are being taken to secure the consent of owners of subdivision property to post their acreage against hunters. Vacant subdivisions in Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties which have been allowed to grow up in weeds are excellent breeding spots for pheasants, partridges, quail, and rabbits. Lately they have been raided continuously by the hunters after hen pheasants.

Sportsmen who take stock of the present conservation crisis as it affects upland game birds are pretty well agreed that the following summary of the situation represents the after effects of this current breach in Illinois' conservation laws:

1. The pheasant breeding program has been set back several years because of the large number of birds killed.

2. Less hunting for cock pheasants on Nov. 10 because many hunters have killed both cocks and hens. Cocks left will be wild and hard to get.

3. Loss in Hungarian partridges, as hunters have killed many of these birds, which have been protected for years.

4. Fewer places to hunt, as many farmers are through with anybody that wears a hunting coat and carries a gun.

5. A marked lack of respect for all provisions of the game code because of the license permitted this fall by the breach in the code.

Marshall and Rockford Play Under Lights Tonight

Marshall High school, with a victory and tie in its first two practice games, will go to Rockford, Ill., today to meet Rockford High school tonight in its third game of the season. It will be Marshall's last practice game. It will face McKinley in the first west section game of the Chicago Public High School league schedule Oct. 10.

In Marshall's back field will be Capt. Morris Barron, full back; Hyman Tucker, quarter back; Frank Fiorito, right half back, and Eddie Schwartz, left half back. Schwartz scored two touchdowns in Marshall's 13 to 0 victory over Ironwood, Mich., last Saturday.

Two other Chicago teams, Englewood and Bowen, are scheduled to play tonight. Bowen, which lost to Rockford and Benton Harbor, will meet Horace Mann at Gary, Ind. Englewood plays Elgin on the latter's field.

Fenger's football squad will entrain for Ashland, Ky., this afternoon, where it meets Ashland High school, state champion for three years, tomorrow.

Lindblom and Harrison, last year's finalists in the City league, went through a light scrimmage yesterday and will wind up practice today for their game at Normal park tomorrow afternoon.

"Tilden Tech's squad is in good condition and should have no trouble beating Kankakee Saturday afternoon," writes Correspondent Dick Crisp. "Mike Bechina is ready to perform in the same way he did against Lane Tech."

Capt. Mahoney will lead St. Philip against Weber tomorrow afternoon at St. Philip field in its first league game of the season. Proceeds of the game will be given to charity.

Two more Catholic league teams will do their bit for charity when De Paul academy and St. Mel meet in a night game at Loyola field on Oct. 16.

Oak Park of the Suburban league, which lost to Austin last Saturday, will play another City league team Saturday, meeting Crane Tech of the west section.

Marshall at Rockford.
Bowen at Gary.
Englewood at Elgin.

CRANE LINEUP IS REVISED FOR GAME TOMORROW

Because of injuries and ineligibilities, Coach Doc Fausel of Crane college has been compelled to shift his playing material around in order to get the most possible strength to face Wheaton college tomorrow afternoon at the De Paul Athletic field.

Sciborski, plunging full back, has been moved to left tackle in place of Yeksigian, and Coach Fausel now is on the lookout for a right tackle. The starting lineup probably will be: Topp and Goodman, ends; Sciborski at tackle, Berg and Egdorf at guards, Striker at center, and a back field consisting of Keyes, Isrel, Carlson, and Capt. Balas.

CRAWFORD JOINS OAK BROOK FOR ARMY POLO GAME

Richard Simmons will be the non-military member of the United States Army polo team, and Carl Crawford the non-Chicago member in Oak Brooke Polo club lineup when the teams meet Sunday afternoon at Oak Brook, 22d street and York road, in the championship match of the Tex Crites Memorial-Central Open Championship tournament.

Simmons, who first became a star at Yale university, has been one of the mainstays of the Onwentsia club team. Crawford was for years an outstanding performer at Oak Brook, where he is still registered. This season he captained the Broadlea team of Milwaukee.

EVERYBODY KICKS ON YALE'S SQUAD, EVEN THE GUARDS

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Yale football practice today disclosed at least a dozen men on whom kicking and punting dependability can be placed.

Punting, drop and place kicking was strenuously pursued by Capt. Albie Booth, Joe Crowley, Bob Lassiter, Bud Parker, Tommy Taylor, Johnny Muhlfeld, Hal Sandberg, Mac Williamson, Kay Todd and Charlie Heim, who vied with each other in an hour of punting behind a charging line.

Booth spent considerable time in drop kicking from 20 and 30 yards. Place kicking was done by Ed Rotan, the big guard, Booth, Sandberg and Parker taking turns in holding the ball. On completion of the kicking practice the first and second teams were sent through a forward passing drill.

Kid Chocolate Floors Foe in 1st; Stop Bout

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, holder of the junior lightweight title, scored one of the quickest victories of his career tonight when he was awarded a technical knockout over Joe Scalfaro of New York in 39 seconds of a bout scheduled to go ten rounds.

The smiling Chocolate, who won his trick title several months ago from Benny Bass at Philadelphia, scarcely had to unlimber his best punches to stop the Harlem Italian. Before the crowd of 8,000 had settled back in its seats to witness the main attraction it was all over.

The Cuban came out swinging a torrid left. It connected three or four times. Scalfaro went down hard. At the count of eight he came up, groggy but game. He wanted to continue, but the referee, Kid Otto, couldn't see it that way.

They wrestled about the ring, Scalfaro trying to wrench loose and get at the grinning Chocolate, the official holding him back. Finally Otto pushed the embattled Scalfaro back in his own corner and held him there until assistance arrived from the ringside.

Chocolate stepped forward to congratulate his victim and Scalfaro swung a couple of hefty but wide punches at him. Finally the peeved Scalfaro was taken back to his dressing room.

The crowd booed the referee, evidently thinking Scalfaro should have been given a chance to continue.

Scalfaro, who gained a draw with Chocolate in their first meeting over two years ago, had been expected to give the Cuban flash a run for his money.

SILVER LAKE IN 3D STRAIGHT WIN AT HAWTHORNE

Whips Maid of Honor by Three Lengths.

BY FRENCH LANE.

You're going to hear more about the 3 year old colt Silver Lake, a son of Wise Counsellor-English Esther which races for Fred Burton's Everglade stable of Chicago.

He journeyed to Saratoga last August and didn't accomplish anything. He probably went down there for the baths and his health rather than for some real running.

Then he came back here in September and in three starts he has made a show of the fleet sprinters that have opposed him. The colts that were winning famous stake events early in the season would have trouble catching the son of Wise Counsellor in sprint events now. He has never been tested over a route.

Wins By Three Lengths.

His third victory came in the best race on Hawthorne's program yesterday. He had plenty of weight up, 118 pounds. Yet he bounced right out in front and under Jockey Fronk's well judged ride stayed there all the way. He wound up beating Otto W. Lehmann's Maid of Honor by three lengths, with Burnam, showing unexpected speed, getting third. High Tom, heavily backed, was last at finish after suffering considerable shuffling around in the early stages.

Silver Lake was an "O" horse and the favorite, a combination which in victory naturally caused considerable surprise. Only a few "O" horses that were favorites have won at Hawthorne this fall.

The "O" horse is the track handicappers' selection. Usually, when an "O" horse has won, he has not been the favorite, and when a favorite has won he has not been the "O" horse. But that's the way they play the horses out on Chicago's great west side.

Mate Arrives for Cup.

The Arlington Classic winner, Mate, is here for his engagement in the Hawthorne Gold Cup. He pulled into the Hawthorne course shortly before noon yesterday accompanied by a lead pony, two vicious looking police dogs, his owner, Albert C. Bostwick, and a retinue of stable help.

Mate looked sound as a dollar and he to run to the Rocky mountains. He came here from the Woodbine track at Toronto, where he won a mile and a quarter race last Tuesday. He will begin drilling today for the Gold Cup next Thursday afternoon. But it won't require much work to keep Mate in fine condition.

The Arlington Classic winner never looked better. He is equally as good now as he was when he won the Classic last July. And according to those who care for him, they hope Twenty Grand will be here for the Gold Cup.

"We will treat Twenty Grand just as we did in the Classic," remarked one of the handlers of Mate.

Await Twenty Grand.

John Schank, the president of the Hawthorne association, expects to get definite word from James Rowe on Saturday as to whether Twenty Grand will be shipped here. Schank is confident the great 3 year old from the Greentree stable will fill the engagement.

Mate and Sun Beau are quartered in the same stable, barn No. 6, at Hawthorne. The wags at the track are beginning to refer to that section of the Hawthorne grounds as the Gold Coast. Twenty Grand, Kai Feng, Spinach, and St. Brideaux will also be quartered there if they are shipped here from the east. The barn is under heavy guard night and day.

Life looks rosy for him

Health worth more than fortune

THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune.

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby show, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself.

"Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly. He has his own bottle in the nursery."

Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

Just try Nujol for your baby. Give it to him regularly for the next three months. See if it doesn't make things much easier for both of you. See if he doesn't thrive on this new schedule—(children themselves much prefer living by regular routine).

Heir to millions

Here's another thing: nurses are advising mothers to give their babies an oil rub with Nujol after the daily bath, instead of using powder. Just saturate some cotton with Nujol and rub it gently all over your baby's body. It keeps him from getting chapped and chafed. And leaves his skin as soft and smooth as velvet. Use it when you change his clothes. Whenever his skin has been exposed to irritation.

A bottle of Nujol costs you no more than pink ribbons on the baby's bonnet. And it's worth a lot more to him! Try it. Certainly it could do no harm—for Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. Your druggist carries it. Be sure you get the genuine. Sold only in sealed packages, never in bulk.

New York, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Hibala, a recent winner in the silks of E. F. Sanford, scored again at Aqueduct today for Joe Edwards, his new owner, who used to train the colt for Mr. Sanford. Hibala got home first in the Stony Brook claiming stakes, a mile test for 3 year olds and upward, worth $2,040 to the winner.

The son of High Noon and Fantam Bala was an 11 to 5 second choice, and was some slight consolation to form players who had backed Thomas Hitchcock's Creek in the Lion Heart steeplechase and the Dorwood stable's Ladana in the Smithtown handicap. Each of these runners was odds on and each was decisively defeated.

Hibala ran his mile in 1:38 4-5 and won easily by a length and a half from E. R. Bradley's Bathorse, which was the 2 to 1 favorite under late play which saw Hibala recede from being the 8 to 5 choice. Bathorse led Walter J. Salmon's Mad Career by four lengths, while Glidela and Brown Admiral brought up

MANY STOCKS SELLING BELOW ASSET VALUES

Data on Concerns in Key Industries.

BY O. A. MATHER.

A decade or two ago both investors and speculators considered the asset value of securities as well as their earning power in buying and trading in stocks. But with the record bull market of 1923-'29 the theory of a "new era" was bruited and buyers of stocks largely ignored assets values and considered earning power.

In the last two years, however, earning power of most American corporations has shrunk decisively and market prices of securities likewise have collapsed. It may be that buyers of securities in the future again will give due consideration to asset values, as well as earning power. In this vein is presented herewith some facts concerning a number of American companies engaged in essential industries. It is noteworthy that the common stocks of some of these companies now are selling much below net asset or book value.

Here Is List.

ALLIED CHEMICAL AND DYE—Total assets, $402,234,528; preferred stock, $39,284,900; common stock, 1,296,900 shares; common stock book value, $92.88 a share; current market price, 79¾.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 1.—Shareholders experienced another month of discouragement because of the actions taken by numerous corporations in regard to dividend payments due in September. Usually one of the largest months in the year for disbursements to shareholders, it was replete with omissions of dividends and severe reductions in many others. The declarations in September by 1,662 corporations aggregated $356,304,961, compared with $475,094,394 for 2,176 corporations in September, 1930.

Comparison of the various important groups in September with last year disclosed dividends have been maintained better by bank, insurance, tobacco, motor equipment, and mail order companies; while lower payments occurred in the steel, railroad, motors, foods and copper groups.

The extent of the curtailment in payments this month is shown by a comparison of the special announcements. Extra dividends numbered 48, against 90 a year ago; dividends reduced totaled 112, compared with 66 in September, 1930, and 123 dividends omitted contrasted with 91 passed last year.

In a separate comparison of the dividends declared in September by banks and insurance companies, 352 of such companies announced payments aggregating $70,039,626, in comparison with $69,281,995 for 405 companies in the same month last year.

Based on a quarterly average of the number of corporations paying dividends for the last nine months, disbursements were ordered totaling $3,358,874,768 for approximately 3,896 corporations in the last three quarters, against $3,621,104,457 paid in the corresponding nine months last year for approximately 2,913 like companies. Over the same period extra dividends totaled 491, against 528 in 1930; dividends reduced, 783, against 234 last year; 937 omitted payments contrasted with 489 a year ago, and 203 stock dividends compared with 293 in the nine months of 1930.

The Columbia Gas and Electric company today declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the common stock, placing it on a $1.50 annual basis. That is a reduction of 50 cents a year. The company formerly paid 50 cents a quarter or $2 annually.

Swedish Match Delays.

Although authorized to pay up to 5 per cent as an interim dividend by the general meeting of shareholders held earlier this year, directors of the Swedish Match company have decided to postpone the payment until general economic conditions in the world have become more stabilized. The largest stockholder in Swedish Match is Kreuger & Toll. Swedish Match controls International Match and British Match.

Directors of Pacific Public Service company today declared an initial dividend of 32½ cents a share on the first preferred stock for the quarter ended Oct. 31. This continues the rate paid on the predecessor stock, the class A of which was changed into one share of first preferred and one-half share of nonvoting common. Standard Oil of California owns 90 per cent of the voting common stock.

The Salt Creek Producers association declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, placing the stock on a $1 annual basis, against $1.40 previously.

225 N. Y. SHARES FALL OFF $8,061,074,931 DURING SEPTEMBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct 1.—Depreciation in the open market value of shares listed on the New York Stock exchange was the most severe, with one exception, during September since the deflation period began, a compilation of 225 representative stocks reveals.

The aggregate net loss of those shares was $8,061,074,831. The only month in which a greater shrinkage in valuation of the same stocks occurred was October, 1929, when the aggregate depreciation was $10,697,-805,577.

The total valuation of the stocks making the list was $19,241,508,096 at the end of September, compared with $27,302,582,927 at the end of August. The decline was equal to 29 per cent. That percentage decline was the heaviest for any month since the bear market started. The total valuation of the same stocks at the end of December, 1930, was $42,264,296,071. Depreciation up to the end of September has been $23,022,787,044, or more than 50 per cent.

The maximum individual depreciation was one of $757,290,330 in American Telephone and Telegraph. General Motors depreciated $538,313,193. Stocks which depreciated $100,000,000 or more include Woolworth, Union Carbide, General Electric, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Socony Vacuum, Consolidated Gas, and United Gas Improvement. During September, 1929, about a dozen issues used in this compilation had open market valuation of more than a billion dollars. That group has dwindled to two—General Motors and American Telephone and Telegraph. A decline of less than a point in the former would be sufficient to eliminate it from the billion dollar class.

New York Brokers' Loans Decline to $1,172,000,000

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending Sept. 30 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $1,172,000,000, representing a decrease of $35,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

Hudson and Manhattan Railroad.

Please send me what information you can concerning a purchase of Hudson and Manhattan Railroad company preferred stock.—W. H. R.

Hudson and Manhattan Railroad company operates 18.11 miles of track including a double tube tunnel under the Hudson river between New York City, Hoboken, and Jersey City. It operates under supervision of the interstate commerce commission and is not affected by the New York City transit situation. In 1928 earnings showed the effect of the competition of the Holland tunnel, but operating economies and the natural growth of the communities it serves counteracted this in 1929. In 1930 passenger fares fell off 5 per cent. This was attributed to the business depression with the consequent increase in unemployment which decreased commuter traffic.

For 1930 passenger fares declined from 1929 about $460,000 to $7,839,598. An increase in other operating revenues enabled the company to show total railroad revenues of $8,639,343, against $8,964,657 for 1929. Net income after all charges was $2,138,679, which was 8.16 times preferred dividend requirements, against $2,247,210, which was 8.57 times preferred dividend requirements for 1929. Net income for 1928 was $1,941,057 and for 1927, $2,137,882. Operating ratio for 1930 was 42.43 per cent, against 42.40 per cent in 1929 and 45.77 per cent for 1928. For the first seven months of 1931 surplus after all charges was $1,031,929, against $1,254,583 for the first seven months of 1930.

At the close of 1930 funded debt totaled $43,465,234. There were outstanding 52,429 shares of 5 per cent noncumulative convertible preferred [par $100] and 399,954 shares of common [par $100]. The preferred is convertible at any time at par into common at $110 per share.

On Jan. 1, 1930, a new contract on better terms was effected with New York Edison company, which supplies the company's power. Hudson and Manhattan has in the past shown an ability to control expenses when passenger traffic has declined. Some future competition may be expected from the George Washington bridge in the Palisades area and a prospective traffic tunnel at 38th street.

Central Indiana Power.

Please send me your report on Central Indiana Power company first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, due 1947. —M. E. M.

Central Indiana Power company supplies utility services through subsidiaries to 215 communities in 33 counties in Indiana. Considerable electric energy is also sold to other utility companies. Fixed charges, before retirement reserve, were earned 1.48 times in 1930 and 1.53 times in 1929. The first 6s, due 1947, are a business man's risk.

NATIONAL CITY, BANK OF AMERICA MAY BE MERGED

Plan Is Contingent on Stock Control.

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—A plan of consolidation of the Bank of America with the National City Bank—creating an institution closely approaching the Chase National bank, largest in the world, in total resources—was announced by heads of the two institutions today.

It was explained that the plan was in conformity with the program announced last week by the Transamerica corporation, which holds a 63 per cent interest in Bank of America, under which Transamerica proposed to divest itself of controlling interests in banks.

The Bank of America, which on June 30 reported resources of $338,-300,313, has been the second most important unit in the Transamerica corporation group of companies. Transamerica has operated since formation as a holding company for the properties assembled by A. P. Giannini of California, and its chief property is the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Bank of California, a $1,000,000,000 institution.

Plan Stock Exchange.

The Bank of America is only about one-sixth the size of the National City bank, which on June 30 reported resources of $1,973,140,595, but it has thirty-five branches in New York City, which will substantially augment National City's system, now comprising fifty-four branches.

The plan contemplates the exchange of National City stock for Bank of America stock, on the basis of one share of the former for 1 2-3 of the latter, so that Transamerica corporation will become an important minority stockholder in National City. Transamerica holds 63 per cent of Bank of America stock, and the adoption of the plan is contingent upon its approval by sufficient minority stockholders to make a total of 85 per cent in favor of it. If by Oct. 17 that percentage has approved, the plan will be submitted to National City stockholders.

When completed, this will be the first large bank merger in New York City since the Chase National bank absorbed the Equitable Trust company, early in 1930, through which it eclipsed the National City to become the world's largest bank. On June 30, Chase reported resources of roughly $2,400,000,000 and the National City, with Bank of America, would come within about $100,000,000 of that.

Both Founded in 1812.

Both the Bank of America and National City are among Wall street's oldest banking institutions. Both were founded in 1812.

A. P. Giannini first became a factor in New York banking through acquisition of control of the Bank of America in 1928, which he purchased through the Bancitaly corporation, predecessor to Transamerica.

In discussing the proposal, Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, said that the Bank of America was in very sound and liquid condition, and had an equipment of city branches which could well be combined with that of the National City.

Nation's Gold Holdings Are Decreased by $158,000,000

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A further decrease of $158,000,000 in the nation's supply of gold was shown today in the federal reserve board's weekly report for the week ending Sept. 30.

The loss brought the total outward flow of gold in two weeks to $276,-000,000, leaving the country's stock at $4,739,000,000. Two weeks ago the country held $5,015,000,000, almost half of the world's supply. Earmarking of gold in New York for foreign account caused the change in the direction of the gold flow which had been to the United States for the last year. On Sept. 30 this country held $228,000,000 more in gold than it held a year ago.

Hoover Against Bi-Metallism.

The Hoover administration sees no reason for tampering with this country's gold standard or the return to bi-metallism. In official circles, where this position was made clear today, such agitation as is going forward for a return to bi-metallism was described as coming chiefly from senators representing silver producing states.

Gold was characterized as the most satisfactory base for the country's monetary system and the temporary abandonment of the gold base by Great Britain and several other European countries was regarded as not reflecting a permanent policy.

The United States, with its coffers containing more gold than any other country in the world, was described as having no reason to abandon the gold standard. The temporary abandonment of the gold standard by Great Britain and some other European countries has given heart to some of those most interested in silver and they have renewed demands for an international conference to discuss the rehabilitation of that industry.

Ship More Gold Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 1. — The greatest outflow of gold from this country on actual export transactions so far this year will take place tomorrow and Saturday when three liners, the Ile de France, the Majestic and the Stuttgart, take to France an amount of the yellow metal estimated at between $32,000,000 and $35,000,000. The exact amount will not be known until the vessels sail. Most of this gold is metal purchased here on exchange transactions. It is not gold which recently has been earmarked.

In addition an unknown amount will go to various other European nations, such as Belgium, Switzerland, and Holland, some of it through French ports on the same liners.

The export of this large treasure will be in part offset by a series of shipments to this country from Japan aggregating $35,000,000 over a two months' period, announced in Tokio today.

Recent exports, together with large earmarkings, have withdrawn over $400,000,000 from American gold stocks.

SHORT SELLING CONDEMNED BY MIDWEST ASS'N

Short selling of securities for profit was condemned today by the Midwest Manufacturers' association in a resolution directed to President Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and governors of the Chicago and New York Stock exchanges.

Resolution characterized activities of professional bears as being "demoralizing to business, and gambling with the financial stability of industry and of the nation." Twenty delegates voted, representing industrialists of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas, Nebraska, and Missouri.

Another resolution recommended division of work on public projects as a means toward alleviating unemployment.

Solar Refining Approves Standard of Ohio Merger

Lima, O., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Merger of Solar Refining company with the Standard Oil Company of Ohio was approved by Solar stockholders at a meeting here today. The consolidation was ratified on the basis of 3.6 shares of Solar stock for one of Standard. Standard stockholders will meet tomorrow in Cleveland to consider the merger. Solar is capitalized at $4,000,-000 and has total resources of $6,257,-000.

Bennett Heads Grain and Stock Emergency Relief

James E. Bennett, senior partner of James E. Bennett & Co., heads the stocks and grains group of the joint emergency relief fund of Cook county, it was announced yesterday. The other members of the general committee are Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago stock exchange; James C. Murray, president of the Chicago Board of Trade; Clarence G. Troup, president of the Chicago Curb exchange, and Robert J. Fischer, chairman of the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms. Sidney L. Parry is the secretary of the group. The committee has charge of the solicitation for funds of more than 1,000 firm and individual members of the board of trade, stock exchange, and curb exchange.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 1.—Long faces were still the vogue in the Wall street district today. Men down there, it seems, have forgotten how to smile. Sentiment among the job lot of them wouldn't have assayed an ounce of optimism to the long ton today.

The stock market, time tried barometer of conditions there, goes lower and ever lower. It did it again today. United States Steel sold to the lowest level since 1915 and many other favorites bumped record new bottoms for the long bear market.

There was no more reason for the day's decline than there was for that of yesterday and the day before. A few scattered bank failures were announced and about the usual grist of dividend reductions were reported, but that just about sums up the "bad news" of the day. On the other hand the eastern railroad effectives announced the completion of their plans for consolidating the big lines of the east.

Trading Is Heavy.

Trading was once more in heavy volume, with sales going well over the 3,500,000 mark. A mild-mannered rally got under way in the last hour and enabled most of the active list to close slightly above its lows of the day—some of them a gainer on the session.

Much of the selling was said to be coming from English and Canadian sources.

Utility shares bore the brunt of the pressure again and many new lows were registered in the group. Peoples Gas, an Insull group blue chip, tumbled 3 points to a new low of 135 on reports that the Illinois public service commission had decreed a cut in the company's rates, but later recovered to last night's close. Columbia Gas broke to a new low for the bear market on the slashing of the company's quarterly dividend rate from 50 cents to 37½ cents a share. Fears of adverse legislation on rates and the continued failure of the industry to show the customary seasonal upturn tended to depress sentiment in their behalf.

Rails Lose Aplomb.

The rails, which showed signs of perking up yesterday when news came of the renewal of the eastern merger negotiations, lost their aplomb today when it was announced that the agreement had been reached and some of the erstwhile highsteppers of the division fell off from a fraction to 2 points. New York Central and New Haven were two exceptions, each going ahead for more than a point.

Peter & Paul, Consolidated

You have heard of people who "borrow from Peter to pay Paul" . . . you may not know that people borrow from Paul (or even Tom, Dick and Harry) to repay Peter.

THIS bank is in position to see a considerable amount of "round robin" borrowing and the inevitable result of coming to the end of the rope . . . We have chosen it as our business to make small loans, offering the best plan ever devised to meet the situation of people not quite within the lending scope of commercial banks . . . But we always try to dodge the fellow who may look upon us as just another place to borrow money . . . We will and do lend to the man who may be somewhat "spread out" . . . if he will resolve to consolidate his bills to both Peter and Paul . . . and will stick it out, pay up his loan, and not yield to the many, many and easy ways to fall in again. ✧ ✧

$50 a month will pay out a "consolidated" loan of $600

Top yesterday, $7.50; average, $6.25.

A new top of $10.40 was established in the cattle market yesterday when 23 prime 1,236 lb steers from Illinois attracted a good deal of competition from both local and eastern interests. Choice grades of cattle have been scarce for some time, and persistent reports of a shortage in the number of highly finished steers in corn belt feed lots, and of an excess supply of common to medium grades being forced in from drought areas, have put owners of top kinds in a rather independent position lately. Poorer grades of steers ruled weak to lower, while top sales were highest since early last April.

Light weight hogs available below $5.00 have attracted much attention lately and the largest Thursday eastern orders since early in the year came on the market yesterday. Shippers bought 27 per cent of the receipts, taking out many of the 140@150 lb averages at $4.75@5.00 and 100@130 lb pigs, many for roasting, at $4.00@4.75. These kinds have recovered about 50c of the recent loss, but they are still 50c under the high point of last week. Medium and weighty hogs moved up 10@15c on better support, the extreme top for 230@270 lb averages gaining 10c at $5.70, while the general average showed 10c advance at $5.20.

December Hogs at $4.60.

Heavy grades of hogs for delivery during the last half of next December were sold at $4.60 on the futures market yesterday. Other bids were made at $4.50@4.60, but few were offered for sale below $4.75. Buyers bid up to $5.25 for October contracts without attracting an offer.

The trade is surprised to see underweight hogs and pigs keep pouring into the yards despite the drastic cut in quotations on stock weighing under 180 lbs. during the last 10 days. Leaders have expressed some anxiety, and packers say they cannot understand it in view of the low cost of raising hogs this year and the abundance of cheap grain. Packers had expected farmers to hold hogs back longer than usual and dispose of their surplus grain by producing pork and making hogs heavier than usual for January, February and March slaughter.

Lightest Since War.

Many are probably following that plan, but thousands have already unloaded their spring pigs weeks earlier than ever before. Not since the hectic days during the war when hogs were slaughtered unusually light have average weights at Chicago been so light at this time of the year. The estimate average for September at 239 lbs stands lightest for that month since 1917. The August average was 255 lbs.

Live stock prices touched new September lows during the past month. The cattle average for the whole month at $8.05 is still above the low point last May, but it is lowest for September since 1921 and only one September has been lower since 1911. Hogs averaged $5.55, lowest for any month since May, 1908. It was the lowest for September since 1905. Lambs averaged $6.05, lowest for any month since 1911. Only two September averages have been lower since 1904.

Sheep Receipts Larger.

Big receipts reversed the trend of the lamb market yesterday and natives lost mostly 50c of the recent gain, while westerns came down 25@50c, only the very best selections showing less than 50c loss. Quality of lambs is generally about the poorest of the season, but several shipments from Colorado were exceptionally choice and stood out in a class by themselves at $7.50. Most others sold at $7.00 and below.

WHEAT MARKET STEADY DESPITE NEW STOCK DROP

Corn Sells at Prices Near Lows of Season.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market seems to be almost shock proof, and the trade paid little attention yesterday to the liquidation in securities in Wall street, futures holding within a range of ¾c for the day, and closing ¼@¾c lower, with December finishing at 47¼c and May at 51¾c.

Failure of the domestic wheat market to reflect the drastic decline which has occurred in New York during the last 30 days or more, is causing considerable comment on the part of the trade, and has resulted in inducing speculators to take the buying side on the dips. However, after allowing for the difference in sterling and Canadian exchange, it is apparent that the price of American grain is getting further out of line with other securities.

On Sept. 19, the day before England announced it would abandon the gold standard, Chicago December wheat closed at 48⅝c, or 1⅜c above the finish of yesterday. During the same period Winnipeg December has dropped equal to 5¾c per bu based on a price reduced to a gold basis, and Liverpool December has also declined 5¾c. Winnipeg December yesterday being 63¾c in Canadian currency and 46⅝c on the basis of a 13 per cent discount for exchange, with Liverpool December at 51½c, sterling being taken at $3.94.

Spreading in Wheat.

There is more or less spreading under way in the wheat market, with some buying of May yesterday against sales of December, and also outright buying of the May. Routine news was again ignored. Private crop estimates showed little change in the American spring wheat crop, which was placed at 113,000,000 bu, or 2,000,000 bu in excess of the government September figures, while the estimates on the three Canadian provinces were lowered around 15,000,000 bu, as compared with the dominion official returns of a month ago, and averaged 231,000,000 bu, against 371,000,000 bu in 1930.

Export business in Manitobas, according to seaboard reports, was confined to scattered loads to the continent, but there were intimation that the late decline in Winnipeg had resulted in a liberal business. The Canadian market closed ⅛@1¼c lower for the day in Canadian currency, while Liverpool was ½@¾d lower. The latter market on a gold basis was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher per bu, an advance in exchange offsetting the lower quotations from abroad. Deliveries on October contracts in Liverpool were 608,000 bu and passed into strong hands. Russia was reported as offering freely abroad.

Corn Near Season's Low.

Trade in corn futures was mainly of a local character. Prices held within a range of ⅜@⅝c, with all deliveries selling within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season, and closed ⅛@¼c lower, with December, 35¾c, and May, 39¼c. While country offerings to arrive were smaller than of late, purchases of 165,000 bu were reported by local handlers. Private crop estimates showed an average of 2,681,000,000 bu, or 34,000,000 bu under the government September returns, but had no effect on the market.

Outside buying was responsible for the oats market showing independent strength and the close was ¼c higher, with December, 22c, and May, 24⅝c. Rye finished ½c higher, with December closing at 37¾c, and May at 40⅛c.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Bullish statistical news failed to arrest a heavy selling wave in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, November eggs showing a loss of $1.50 per car, and November butter losing $1.20 per car. December butter closed yesterday November eggs starting out at 20¼c, dropping to 19¼c and closing at 19¼c. December butter opened at 29½c and closed at 28¾c. Potatoes were easy. Liberal country pressure in eggs appeared to be a result largely of nervousness over future production. Weather conditions prompted the fear. The storage season is better than last year, 5,000 cases more coming out, but buyers were lacking.

Despite strongly bullish storage and production news in the market was under the influence of selling, induced largely by reports of delivery of two cars of Canadian butter in New York yesterday. Domestic prices are now at the world level, even with a 14c tariff, and the need for a readjustment hurried liquidation and realignment. Production was reported 4 per cent from last year and an extremely heavy storage movement occurred, but the price factor was the major item in the day's trading. Sales: Butter, 4,037,000 lbs; eggs, 2,815,000 doz; potatoes, 940,000 lbs. Prices follow:

CORN CROP OFF 34,000,000 BUSHELS

A reduction of 34,000,000 bu corn as compared with the government estimate of Sept. 1, was indicated by an average of the estimates by the 5 leading local statisticians in their reports given to the trade yesterday. The spring wheat crop was placed at 2,000,000 bu in excess of the official returns of a month ago, while the oats crop was reduced 11,000,000 bu.

Yield of spring wheat per acre is the smallest on record, averaging slightly above 6 bu per acre. The crop in the three Canadian provinces was estimated by Cromwell at 230,000,000 bu; Murray, 228,000,000 bu, and Donovan at 235,000,000 bu, an average of 231,000,000 bu, or about 15,000,000 bu under the recent official figures. A decrease of 15 per cent in the winter wheat acreage in the United States for the 1932 crop was indicated by the Miller report.

The Cromwell-Lamson Brothers' report estimated corn crop in Ohio at 163,000,000 bu; Indiana, 178,000,000 bu; Illinois, 330,000,000; Iowa, 383,000,000 bus; Nebraska, 171,000,000 bu; Kansas, 113,000,000 bu; Oklahoma, 51,000,000 bu, and Texas, 115,000,000 bu. Details follow, last six ciphers omitted in production:

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example: the average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.
